Widow Says She Spurned Flogger's Attentions

TALE OF LASHING
RELATED TO JURY

Parks Cook Is First of Six Defendants To Go on Trial in Double Flogging of November 16.

OTHER ACCUSED MEN
BARRED FROM COURT

Prosecution and Defense Conclude Questioning of Mrs. Holcombe When
First Day of Trial Ends.

BY PAUL WARWICK.
Constitution Staff Correspondent.
Marietta, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Charges that Parks Cook, first of the six defendants in the Smyrna flogging case to go on trial, had long sought her favor without success, offering her an automobile if she would ride with him, and that on the night of the flogging he had wept as his companions prepared to ply the lash on her and had for a moment begged that she might be spared, were made by Mrs. Bertha Holcombe, young Atlanta widow, in her statement to the jury in Cobb superior court this afternoon.

Both defense and prosecution completed questioning Mrs. Holcombe Tuesday afternoon, in the first of what promises to be a long series of chapters in the case that charges six young Cobb county men with having abducted and lashed her and her companion, Stephen Morton, on the night of November 16.

Parks Cook, first of the defendants to be tried in the severance of the indictments, elected by Solicitor John S. Wood, was positively identified by Mrs. Holcombe as one of the masked men who composed the flogging party. She declared that Cook rode that night while on the motor side that took the party to a quiet spot in the Cobb county woods where the flogging is alleged to have been administered.

Cook Pleaded for Her.
"I first recognized him," she said, "when he raised his mask to wipe the tears from his eyes." She also said that Cook momentarily interceded for her at the scene of the lashing.

A mild sensation was sprung during the latter moments of the Tuesday session, when Attorney John T. Dwyer, cross-examining Mrs. Holcombe, asked:

"Are you the same Mrs. Holcombe who was in jail in Chattahoochee some time ago?"

"No, sir, I am not; I have never been in jail," the widow declared vehemently.

The entire story of the night of November 16, when she and her companion, according to her account, were forcibly seized in Smyrna and driven several miles away and brutally flogged, was detailed by Mrs. Holcombe, through the questioning of Solicitor Wood, directing the prosecution of the alleged lashing band.

Most Jilted Lover in U. S.
Returns With Happy Bride

Chicago, November 27.—Allister McCormick, America's most jilted suitor, returned home Tuesday bringing to the outstretched arms of Chicago society the fluffiest little English bride who arrived at the church on time.

"So this is Chicago!" exclaimed Mrs. Joan Stevens McCormick, late of London, pretty and radiating happiness, as she stepped from a New York train.

Needless to say, among those at the station to welcome the 18-year-old bride wasn't the elusive Mary Landon Baker, who left young McCormick waiting at the church altar here some three times and continued to the outstretched arms of Chicago society the fluffiest little English bride who arrived at the church on time.

The girl who complete the cure is what Chicago Tuesday called "a gorgeous little blond with a charming personality." She has the pink and white complexion of the English girls and sapphire eyes. Clad in a fur trimmed tweed suit, she bounded from the train into the arms of her parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick Tuesday. She had a kiss and a bouquet of carnations for the elder Mrs. McCormick, and proceeded to bestow both with the enthusiasm of a school girl.

COOLIDGE HOSTS
SPLIT OVER PATH TO WHITE HOUSE

One Group Wants President
To Accept Johnson's Challenge, Become Active Candidate.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
Washington, November 27.—(Special.)—The friends of Coolidge and those republican leader who, without being his friends particularly, want him nominated, are divided as to what is the best policy for him to pursue against Johnson's campaign.

So far as issues and positions on public questions are concerned, there is no difference of opinion. Coolidge, next week will state his attitude on all the public questions with the greatest clearness and simplicity, and will stand or fall by the public approval or disapproval of his address to congress. But, as respects the actual fighting for delegates in the direct primary states, there is a divergence of opinion.

One group thinks that Coolidge ought to accept Johnson's challenge, become an active candidate, let his friends organize in his behalf, go into every direct primary state and contest with Johnson for the delegates.

Hands-Off Policy.
The other course proposed is that Coolidge should do nothing whatever toward getting delegates for himself, and should refrain from being involved in any contest with Johnson in the direct primary states. This plan is that Coolidge should simply go on being president of the United States to the best of his ability. If that leads him to the nomination, well and good. If not, well and good. Those who counsel this course argue that it is the more dignified way, and may well turn out to be the most effective way. As one republican leader put it:

"If Coolidge will just continue to give the people the steady spectacle of a man who is not interested in the thing, he will win."

Britain Prepares
To Protect Ship
Of 'Rummy' Bill

Will Enter Protest If Vessel
Was Seized Outside the Three-Mile Limit.

London, November 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The British government has requested of its charge d'affaires in Washington a full report on circumstances surrounding the seizure of the British schooner Tomoko off the New Jersey coast and the British schooner Island Home off the Texas coast by American officials. If the report establishes that the vessels seized are British-owned and were taken outside the three-mile limit, Great Britain will formally protest their seizure on the ground that the treaty giving the right to confiscate alcoholic contraband beyond the American three-mile limit neither has been signed nor ratified.

In the reports concerning the negotiations for the treaty the British officials appear to be interested over constant references to the 12-mile limit, as though Secretary of State Hughes' proposal for an extension of the usual three-mile limit already has been enacted into law. They say they desire to make it clear that there is no such thing as a fixed 12-mile limit, but that under the pending agreement the American right of seizure will be limited by the general term "an hour's steaming distance from American shores."

SOUTH IS RICHER
BY $60,000,000 IN COTTON ADVANCE

Railroads, Bankers, Business Men and Farmers
To Benefit by High-Priced Staple.

BY R. L. BARNUM.
New York Financial Correspondent of The Constitution.
New York, November 27.—December cotton crossed 30 cents a pound Tuesday, establishing a new high record for the year despite the continued seasonal gains in price since the upward movement began August 1, when cotton was selling at 21 cents a pound.

Wall street bankers now predict that there is a long period of prosperity ahead of the south, with cotton being planted next year in every foot of available space, including backyards. One banker said with a smile that he could see the cities of the south with their rapidly-increasing wealth dotted with cotton-growing roof gardens.

Speaking seriously, this banker pointed out that with December almost here and options for that month now crossing the 30-cent mark, a price of 20 cents a pound was already being established for October of next year.

This proves conclusively that the best-posted people in cotton expect the price to remain at a comparatively high level, or, until the south with the help of the government, the bankers and everyone else interested, gets the best of the boll weevil pest, which is responsible for the short cotton crops of recent years and consequently the world-wide cotton shortage.

No Decline Near.
That cotton will continue to sell at a high price for as far ahead as can now be seen is the belief of the best-posted bankers here who have spent time and money to get at the real facts in the cotton situation. That this view is also held in the cotton manufacturing centers abroad is plain from the advice just given by the British premier, Stanley Baldwin, to the Manchester cotton mill owners to start planting cotton in Egypt, South Africa and India to gain independence from the American market which would soon be consuming for its own use all of the American cotton raised.

Wall street expects the next government cotton crop estimate, which will be issued on December 12, to show only between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 bales of this year's crop, 6,000,000 bales already have been marketed. If the crop is 10,000,000 bales and the 30-cent price level is maintained the direct difference between this year's price and 21 cents will mean to the south an additional $60,000,000. However, indirectly, 30-cent cotton will mean a great deal more to the southern railroads, and bankers, and business men and farmers through general increased buying power.

Coal Conspiracy

Bismarck, N. D., November 27.—Congressional investigation of what he said appears to him to be a conspiracy to destroy the growing coal-mining industry of North Dakota and force higher coal prices to consumers of the northwest was asked of President Coolidge by Governor R. A. Nestor, of North Dakota, in a lengthy telegram tonight.

Citizens and Southern Voted Exclusive Privilege by Board of Education in Special Session Tuesday.

CITY DEPOSITORIES OFFER IS DECLINED

Vouchers for November
Salaries Already Drawn,
Crowley Tells Board.
Details Are To Be Announced.

By a vote of 5 to 3 the board of education Tuesday afternoon accepted the offer of the Citizens and Southern bank to advance the $340,000 necessary to pay the salaries of school teachers and officials for the months of November and December.

Under the plan submitted to the board of education by the bank, the teachers will assign their salaries to the Citizens and Southern bank until after January 1, when the board receives its new appropriation from the city treasury. Details as to payment of the teachers will be announced by officials of the bank before December 1, when November salaries become due.

Decision to accept the proposal of the Citizens and Southern bank was reached after a spirited discussion, in which W. L. McCallie, Jr., chairman of the finance committee of the board, insisted that the four banks acting as city depositories be allowed to participate in advancing the payroll funds.

Speaks For Other Banks.
Commissioner McCallie moved that the offer of the Atlanta National, the Fourth National, the Fulton National and the Lowry Bank and Trust company of Georgia, the four depositories to lead the bank the amount sought, be accepted.

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson sought to amend the motion to include the Citizens and Southern bank and also the Atlanta Trust company.

At this point Commissioner A. C. Meixell moved as a substitute as a whole that the Citizens and Southern bank be given the privilege of extending the entire amount for both November and December.

Before the vote was taken Commissioner Meixell asked W. V. Crowley, vice president of the Citizens and Southern, who was present in the interest of that institution, if the bank was contending for "all or none" of the loan.

Will Not Accept Division.
"We don't want it to appear that we are antagonizing anyone desirous of making this loan," the bank official said, "and we are perfectly willing to let the depository banks to participate in the loan."

He added that the vouchers for November had already been prepared by his bank and asked that the Citizens and Southern be authorized to make the November loan. He suggested that the depository banks be allowed to participate in any way they wished for the month of December.

Commissioner Meixell, discussing his substitute motion, said that in his judgment the board should show its appreciation of the readiness with which the Citizens and Southern bank came to the assistance of the school department by welcoming an advance from that bank of the entire sum needed.

He said that while the offer of the Citizens and Southern bank was being considered, the board had received a letter from the Citizens and Southern bank offering to advance the entire sum needed.

Boss of Tammany Ranks
Birdies Above Politics

Buffalo, N. Y., November 26.—What with draping his plus four knickers correctly over his ample calves, and practicing his backspin in shots with his masher, Charles F. Murphy, boss of Tammany, had no time to waste talking politics while at French Lick.

He informed National Committee man Norman E. Mack, of New York, over the long-distance telephone from the Indiana watering place Monday that the reports of his remarks on Gov. Al Smith as a presidential possibility, and on prohibition as a vital issue in 1924, have been badly distorted.

Murphy's reassurance brings gratifying relief to many democrats who have long ruled for two weeks by his unusual candor in the dispatches from French Lick, where it appeared that the Tammany leader has broken the long rule to adorn no candidate with his bouquets nor menace any presidential aspirant with brickbats.

Instead of talking shop, Murphy declared, he and Tom Taggart and George Brennan have been just loafing around the golf links for the past two weeks.

"As a matter of fact," and here the jovial Murphy, according to Mack's story, boomed forth once more with his merry laugh, "there hasn't been a single thing so seriously important but what a par hole or a 'birdie' would have knocked it out of our heads permanently."

Perhaps Murphy re-considered that this might be treating the nation's affairs too lightly, for he added:

"I'll make just one exception to that statement. We have seriously discussed the effect of the Volstead act, the increasing disrespect for the law, and the utter failure of its enforcement."

"I have reiterated my conviction that the Volstead law should be so changed as to permit each state in the union to determine for itself the alcoholic content of its beverages."

CHANGE IN TAX
EQUALIZING LAWS
SOUGHT IN SENATE

Davis Bill, Repealing the Present Law and Providing New Equalization Plan, Approved by Committee.

The senate finance committee in executive session Tuesday afternoon voted adversely on the house resolution providing for repeal of the tax equalization law and then practically reversed itself by recommending favorably the bill by Senator John Camp Davis, of the forty-second, providing for repeal of the equalization law but reenacting virtually all of its popular provisions.

At the regular session of the upper house earlier Tuesday a number of proposed amendments to the general tax act including the provision imposing a tax of $2,500 on grand opera concerts in the state, were killed. The Lankford amendment providing for a tax of 5 cents per pound on candy retailing in the state for more than 50 cents per pound, met a similar fate in the hands of the senate.

Other proposed amendments to the general tax act which were defeated by the senate included provisions stipulating increases in taxes on gross receipts of soft drinks syrups and taxes on gross premiums of insurance companies. Both of these proposed increases were overwhelmingly defeated.

State Boxing Commission.
The senate adopted a rider providing for the creation of a state athletic commission to generally supervise boxing contests, and placing a tax on gross receipts from such contests of 10 per cent. The city of Atlanta recently inaugurated such a commission to supervise local boxing contests. A commission of three members, to be appointed by the governor, whose duties will be to control boxing contests and license participants, is provided in the measure.

Senator Davis in a lengthy address defined provisions of his measure which repeals the tax equalization law, but re-enacts certain features of the old law which were declared by the state tax commissioner to be essential in assessment and collection of ad valorem taxes. The measure provides for the creation of boards of review in all counties, whose duties consist of reviewing all taxable property, placing an equalized valuation on such property and otherwise simplifying the duties of the various county tax collectors.

Several senators during the afternoon drafted a joint resolution which would have extended an invitation to President Coolidge to visit the state.

THANKSGIVING DAY
RAIN THREATENED

Mayor Sims Issues Annual Proclamation and Urges Populace To Give Thanks for Blessings.

Just when the sun came peeping out for a few hours Tuesday and visions of a perfect Thanksgiving day arose, the weather office announced that in all probability Thanksgiving day will be rainy.

Of course, there is a possibility that the prediction will miss its mark, but after making Tuesday's observations and calculations Mr. von Herrmann said it is a reasonable certainty that beginning today Atlanta and this section will have rain which will continue through Thursday.

The forecast is not expected to halt preparations for one of the greatest Thanksgiving holidays in the city's history. Practically all churches have arranged special forenoon services of praying, theaters will offer special attractions and at Grant field the biggest sporting event of the year will be staged. Considering all that, it appears that it will take

OPPOSES U. S. JOINING

Says It Is Humiliating America Cannot Speak
of Other Nation.

Chicago, November 27.—Senator Hiram Johnson, speaking tonight before the Cook County Real Estate Board in the first public address since he announced his candidacy for the republican presidential nomination, sharply criticized America's present foreign policy, and advocated a soldier's bonus and a definite reduction in taxes.

He also advocated a constitutional amendment that would make child labor laws and women's minimum wage laws legal; suggested remedial legislation for agricultural ills and then launched into an attack on the administration policy toward the European situation. He expressed also his opposition to America's joining in any reparations conference.

Early in his address Senator Johnson told his audience "that what I say tonight is in no sense a political platform."

Johnson's Foreign Policy.

"I do not protest against an American policy toward Europe. I protest against an American policy which does not know what it is, and which seeks to discover itself, or to hide itself, by first going into a conference with Europe."

"It is humiliating that we cannot speak our mind, save with the consent of other nations, or in conjunction with them. If an administration does not like an existing situation abroad, why not say so?"

"Our position in the world is such, our financial and potential power is so great that our utterance would be of supreme importance. Throw it into conference where there are no morals, where it is in helpless minority, and it is lost."

Peace Is Desired.
"It is undeniably the interest of every country that all other countries should be prosperous and that the world should be at peace. If a administration at Washington, out of its knowledge of the diplomatic facts, is able to see in Europe an opportunity for American action, I ask it to say precisely and definitely what that opportunity is and what that action should be. Its endeavor has been

News Outside the Door.

South and west children of Plymouth Rock will celebrate Thanksgiving around groaning boards in the midst of lovely and lovely men and women, ardent Americans with no Puritan strain, and something will be lacking. They could not tell, but the old New England farmhouse, bleak and cold on the sidewalk, full of warmth and fragrance inside, will not be there.

Before wanderers in sunny California, wide horizons west, and spiced-breathed southland will rise pictures of beechen logs crackling on low hearths: white-haired grandma and her rosy daughters baking mince and pumpkin pies, stuffing turkeys, preparing nuts and cranberry sauce in the mystery of the kitchen. Ears long attuned to softer sounds will listen for chilly jingling sleighbells as stalwart sons and grandsons come back for the day.

Hearts proud of new-found friends and environments will grow homesick as visions form of red-muffled children trooping in from skating to gather at the board where silver crowned grandpa, his tribe around him, bows his head to whisper that last remembered Thanksgiving blessing.

HOUSE PROPOSES
FIVE PER CENT
AS MAXIMUM TAX

Lankford Bill, Amended
Tuesday, Goes to Senate for Concurrence Without Exemption Clause.

PEOPLE MUST APPROVE TO MAKE BILL A LAW

Scale of Rates and Exemptions Left to Future Assemblies—Double Taxation Remedy Dropped.

By vote of 141 to 51—three more than the requisite constitutional majority—the Georgia house of representatives on Tuesday afternoon, passed the Lankford bill providing for the levying of an income tax for the support of the state of Georgia.

As the measure is a constitutional amendment, it was necessary that the affirmative vote be a two-thirds majority of the total membership of the house, or 138 votes, two-thirds of the roll of 206 members. It will be necessary, before the provisions of the bill are finally adopted into the constitution of the state, that the action of the legislature be ratified by the voters of the state at the polls at the next general election, in November, 1924.

As passed by the house, the Lankford bill was changed in several features from its form as passed by the senate. A number of amendments, recommended by the house committee on amendments to the constitution, being adopted to the bill came up for final passage.

One of these amendments strikes the word "net" as descriptive of incomes under the act. This amendment was approved by the committee on the grounds that if only net incomes were to be taxed, the large corporations would so handle their statements that they would not show any net incomes at all.

Another amendment strikes from the bill that clause which provided that the taxpayer could offset his income tax payment by the amount of ad valorem taxes paid, or vice versa if the ad valorem was the greater.

Still another eliminated entirely the clause setting out the schedule of exemptions, and simply provided in its place that future legislatures would have the power of allowing exemptions, leaving the amount of exemptions to be placed in the enabling act which will have to be passed after the bill is ratified by the people.

The bill as finally passed provides for a state income tax at a rate not to exceed 5 per cent, on a graduated scale, and also provides that the normal rate shall be reduced from 3 mills to 3 mills as soon as the income tax has been ratified by the people and adopted into the laws of the state.

Under a report of the rules committee, adopted Tuesday following the vote on the income tax measures, the order of business for today's session will be, first, the Ennis Revenue Department Bill No. 47 on the house calendar, to be followed by the Pass audit bill, already passed by the senate, and No. 7 on the calendar of that body.

THREE PER CENT GAIN SHOWN IN PRODUCTION

Washington, November 27.—An increase of three per cent in production of basic commodities—the first increase to be recorded in four months—featured business conditions during October and the first half of November, according to a review issued today by the federal reserve board. While principally due to resumption of anthracite mining, the increase was declared also to reflect augmented activity in textiles, lumber, sugar and most of the other industries included in the board's index list.

Volume of freight shipments and wholesale trade continued above normal, the review showed, while wholesale prices and employment were substantially unchanged. Contracts awarded for new buildings increased 25 per cent over September, and throughout the country were "considerably more than is usual at this season," the residential projects forming a larger proportion than in any previous month of the current year.

"Heavy movement of miscellaneous merchandise and livestock," the board said, "resulted in October in the largest railroad shipments of any month on record. Wholesale trade was 12 per cent larger than a year ago, and sales in all leading lines except shoes showed increases. Department store sales were 13 per cent larger than last October and sales of mail order houses were the largest of any month since 1919.

Atlanta Librarians Will Attend Session At Macon Next Week

A number of librarians from Atlanta will go to Macon next week to the meeting of the State Library association on December 3 and 4. Those coming from Atlanta are Miss Tompkins, Miss Barker, Miss Fanny D. Hinton, Miss Loele Cobb, assistant, Carnegie library; Beverly Wheatcroft, secretary, Georgia library commission; Miss Margaret Jemison, librarian of Emory university; Miss Alma Jemison, librarian, Oglethorpe university. The Atlanta group will be joined by Miss Helen Eastman, librarian, Carnegie library, Rome; Miss Edith

Dora Barker, librarian of the Carnegie library; Miss Fanny D. Hinton, reference librarian, Carnegie library; Miss Loele Cobb, assistant, Carnegie library; Beverly Wheatcroft, secretary, Georgia library commission; Miss Margaret Jemison, librarian of Emory university; Miss Alma Jemison, librarian, Oglethorpe university. The Atlanta group will be joined by Miss Helen Eastman, librarian, Carnegie library, Rome; Miss Edith Johnson, librarian, Berry school; Mount Berry; and Miss Mary U. Bothrock, librarian, Lawson-McCles library, Knoxville, Tenn. Miss Rothrock is president of the Southeastern library association and will be one of the principal speakers before the meeting in Macon.

FARRAR CONCERT TO FILL WESLEY MEMORIAL CHURCH

The entire seating capacity of Wesley Memorial church, which has a total of approximately 3,700 seats including up and downstairs, will be taxed to accommodate the audience which will turn out Friday night to hear the classical concert offered by Geraldine Farrar, noted grand opera artist and prima donna, according to the advance sale of tickets.

Selection of Wesley Memorial for the concert was made by Russell Bridges, local representative of the Alhambra Lyceum company, after he had endeavored to obtain the city Auditorium only to find it engaged for Friday night.

Miss Farrar has frequently appeared in Atlanta, both in concerts and with the Metropolitan Grand Opera company. She has a large number of personal friends here who will greet her personally.

Bad Check Charge.
Charging cheating and swindling, a warrant was sworn out in DeKalb county Monday afternoon for Jack Holland, alias W. C. Wald, by J. Howell Green, president of the DeKalb Bank and Trust company. Mr. Green said that he was induced to cash a check for $15 on a Savannah bank for Holland after the latter introduced himself as a former resident of Decatur and a business acquaintance of the banker. The check was returned, marked "no account."

FAUST WILL SUCCEED TO ASSOCIATION POST

Rev. W. H. Faust was elected to succeed to the Atlanta Baptist association post made vacant by the removal of Dr. Henry Alford Porter to St. Louis, at a meeting of the executive committee of the association Monday afternoon. W. L. Cutts was elected president and H. E. Moody, clerk. Recommendations were made for pastoral aid and a number of churches received aid for their building funds. The executive committee consists of W. W. Gaines, J. W. Awtry, J. S. McLenore, L. E. Roberts, Warren S. Seay, C. W. Daniel, John W. Ham, J. M. Haymore, F. C. McConnell, S. A. Cowan, J. L. Jackson, W. L. Cutts, W. H. Major, L. E. Mann, W. H. Barrett, H. E. Moody, F. H. Jackson, F. S. Etheridge and W. O. Pader.

Memphis was supposed to have been one of the largest cities of the ancient world.

OKLAHOMA SENATE WOULD BAR MASKS

Oklahoma City, Okla., November 27. (By the Associated Press.)—The state senate today adopted a clause in the bill to regulate secret orders making it a misdemeanor to wear a mask. The action was greeted by proponents of Klan legislation as the greatest concession made thus far by the group opposing strict regulatory laws. The vote was 24 to 13.

The vote followed a full morning of debate and the action was amended several times before it met the approval of the group supporting the Klan. The section provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to "wear a mask, covering or hood which conceals the whole or any part of the face of the wearer."

Exceptions are listed for children, persons "going to or from masquerade parties" and those participating in "any public parade of an educational, religious or historical character."

Meetings of any organization "within any building or enclosure wholly within or under the control of those meeting there" are also exempt from the provisions of the law as are "circuses or other amusements or dramatic shows."

Imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year and a fine of from $50 to $500 are provided for violation of the law.

CAPTAIN AND CREW OF BRITISH SHIP ARE BOUND OVER

Galveston, Texas, November 27.—Captain C. H. Farrell, master of the British schooner Island Home, and eight members of his crew were bound over to the federal court grand jury at a preliminary hearing today before United States Commissioner C. J. Durrell on charges of unlawfully importing liquor. Pleas of not guilty were entered.

The Island Home, bound from Georgetown, Grand Cayman, for Nassau, via Matamoros, was seized by customs officers Friday while anchored off Galveston Island. Captain Farrell and his crew made bonds of $1,000 each for the captain, mate and purser, and $500 each for other members of the crew.

Millions Taken From Foreigners In Swindle Game

New York, November 27.—Foreigners in the last few years have been swindled out of approximately $12,000,000 by a ring of real estate sharks selling undeveloped marsh lands within a 50 mile radius of New York, James G. Wilson, deputy assistant district attorney, testified today before the joint legislative committee investigating immigrant exploitation.

Mr. Wilson said that the sharks would supply free tickets for a Sunday inspection trip to a tract of land and would tell their guests that a lucky number would draw a lot. The lots, the witness continued, were worth about $10 each and covered by a blanket mortgage. Each guest "won" a lot but was charged $40.50 to cover legal fees for transfer of property.

Mr. Wilson said the figure of $40.50 was set so as to keep within the petty larceny limit of $50.

The witness said the ring could be stopped by special legislation in both New York and New Jersey exercising a closer supervision over property transfer.

Mr. Wilson also gave other instances of alien exploitation that had come to his attention. One case was that of a bootblack who "sold" half interest in the Pennsylvania terminal for $100.

Italian Premier Given Extension Of Full Powers

Rome, November 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—At a cabinet council today it was unanimously decided that the full powers of government now exercised by Premier Mussolini should be extended. The ministers also approved the submission of a supreme commission for national defense.

The duration of the full powers given the premier was left to the discretion of Signor Mussolini, who will present the project of extending his rule to parliament. This will be done November 29, and little opposition is expected.

It is generally understood the dictatorship will extend for another year. All the parties of the right have agreed to support the premier, but the socialists and communists and a few isolated members of parliament will make addresses opposing the legislation.

The new defense commission will be composed of the premier and the ministers of foreign affairs, interior, finance, war, navy, colonies and economy, and the commissioners of aeronautics. The chiefs of staff of the army and navy will have consultative votes. A special subcommission on general mobilization will operate under the supreme commission.

PLANS LAW TO ABSORB ALL BIG INHERITANCES

Big Rapids, Mich., November 27.—Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris is opposed to fortunes being used to the discretion of heirs, and will go to Washington prepared to boost legislation that would all but absorb inheritances, he said here last night in his "home town" farewell. He leaves for the capital tomorrow.

Young men and women, he said, would be better off and make higher marks in the world if they started life with little.

QUOTATIONS ON MARK REFUSED IN NEW YORK

New York, November 27.—For the first time since the German mark started on its spectacular decline New York banks today refused to even quote it nominally. Previously the banks, which had discontinued regular dealings in Germany exchange, were willing to take a nominal rate. Today, however, it was impossible to obtain from them even the semblance of a commercial quotation.

Bankers were agreed that there had been no mark transactions in New York for some time. One firm doing a general brokerage business quoted marks at 20 cents a trillion, but that figure was obviously too high as compared with the London rate, and was believed to be the selling prices to travelers going abroad.

INCOME TAX BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

bill were voted down, as were all substitute measures, including one by Bussey, of Crisp, to create a segregation system of taxation, one by Rowe, of Richmond, and one by Whitley, of Douglas, both calling for classification taxes, and one by Fowler, of Bibb, providing for a sales tax.

The bill as passed will now have to go before the senate for concurrence in the house amendments and, if the senate does not concur, conference committees will be appointed for the purpose of reaching a compromise on the points in dispute. It is the general feeling that there will be no undue difficulty in reaching a compromise and that the bill will be ready for the governor's approval before many more days are passed.

The bill as finally passed provides for a state income tax at a rate not to exceed 5 per cent, on a graduated scale, and also that the state ad valorem rate shall be reduced from 5 mills to 3 mills as soon as the income tax has been approved by the people.

COOLIDGE HOSTS SPLIT OVER PATH

of a president working hard in his office to reduce taxes and otherwise to benefit the public, the people will never endorse any candidate who seeks to take the nomination away from a president thus engaged." In addition to being effective in this sense, some leaders say this plan would be effective in the sense of practical politics.

If Coolidge should let it be known that he will not fight for the nomination, the certain result will be that a considerable number of other men will run. Lowden would run. So would Watson, of Indiana. So would Wadsworth, of New York. The outcome of all the candidacies would be that no one would have a majority, and the convention would turn inevitably to the man who had been quietly working away at his job in the white house.

Keeps His Own Counsel

All this discussion about plans goes on outside the white house. Coolidge himself is keeping his own counsel. There is no Coolidge manager in the sense that Hiram Johnson was just made formal announcement of Frank Hitchcock, as his manager. There is no Coolidge headquarters.

For Coolidge to continue this course of making no effort toward getting the nomination, except by working hard at his job, would be consistent with a policy that has served him well in the past. When he was governor of Massachusetts, a group of his friends, acting independently of Coolidge himself, opened a headquarters, selected a manager and began to work for delegates to elevate Coolidge to the presidency. After this had gone on for some time, Coolidge took formal notice of it and issued a statement from which the following sentences are taken:

Coolidge's Statement

"The times require of men charged with public responsibility a singleness of purpose. The curse of the age is the almost universal grasping for power in high places and in low, to the exclusion of the discharge of obligation. It is always well for men to walk humbly."

"The great office of governor of the commonwealth of Massachusetts has twice been conferred upon me. There is only one higher honor in the gift of the people of the nation. For that office my name has been proposed by men whose judgment entitles their decisions to a great respect, and their proposal has not been unsupported by a most respectable public approval. For all this I am deeply appreciative, with an appreciation which words alone cannot express. "I have never said I will become a candidate for president. I have never accepted, unless by silence, efforts made by statements of more than nominal reputation to present my name to the convention. I have made it plain I could not seek this office."

Guard and Protect Office

"I have a great desire to walk humbly and discharge my obligations. My paramount obligation is not to expose the great office of governor, but to guard and protect it. The people are entitled to know that their office is to be administered not for my benefit, but for their benefit, and that I am not placing myself in any position where any other object could be inferred. There must be no imputation, however unfounded, that I permit their office to be used anywhere for manipulative purposes. I cannot consent to have their office taken into any contest for delegates in my own state. I have not been and I am not a candidate for president."

Made Passage Possible

Mr. Bussey was highly complimentary for his generous action and it was freely stated around the capitol that the passage of the income tax bill was only made possible by his stand. He was followed by other members who had voted for his bill, all calling for a spirit of give and take, in order that the Lankford bill might pass.

Thanksgiving Reverses

To adjourn or not to adjourn—over Thanksgiving and the week-end occurred the attention of many members Tuesday, the sentiment being badly divided.

Many members are trying to complete the extra session by Saturday and are determined to oppose adjournment Thanksgiving. It is claimed that 120 house members have been pledged to this plan, headed by Representative Miller of Dodge and Parks of Terrell.

Opponents argue that there will hardly be a quorum on the last three days of the week and that a recess is not taken over the week-end, no business can be transacted in the house. They argue that members should be given the three or four days in which to attend to matters "at home" and to consult their constituents.

The cost of the session is $2,500 daily, and a movement is on foot to adjourn Wednesday afternoon December 1, so that members will not draw pay for the days the house is adjourned. This plan, however, is meeting strong opposition.

Governor Is Pleased

Speaking of the result of the income tax vote on Tuesday night, Governor Clifford Walker expressed his intense appreciation of the spirit of cooperation and unity for the best good of the state which had made it possible.

"Such a magnificent spirit of forgetfulness of self, of the sinking of personal preferences for the best good of the whole, has not, I believe, been evidenced in many years," said the governor.

"I am, of course, highly gratified," he continued, "if it is gratified by the people, the writing into our constitution of a new principle of taxation, a principle which will eventually mean a more even distribution of the burden of supporting the state, by giving the opportunity of tax paying to a large class well able to pay taxes, and lifting some of the load from those who have, in the past, borne practically the entire load."

"Best of all, perhaps, is the overwhelming testimony of a give-and-take spirit, a spirit which practically assures agreement between the senate and the house on a few minor points on which they are as yet divided."

Praises Bussey

"Special praise is due the leader of the minority forces, Representative Bussey, for his generous and statesmanlike appeal to his friends to support the tax commission's bill. This spirit was also exemplified by other minority leaders."

The bill is the first item in the program of the tax commission, but the governor called attention to the fact that the commission's report expressed the overwhelming sentiment of the people of the state in favor of wise and economical expenditure of all tax money.

Governor Walker earnestly urged the legislature to complete the program laid down by the tax commission and to pass the classification, the budget, the audit and the enforcement acts. "These," he said, "are essential to a well-rounded, business-like tax system."

rather truculent challenging. They it would save Coolidge from the present entering the primaries against Johnson, would give him the maximum time and liberty of action make a good record as president, and might more surely lead him to a nomination than any more aggressive course.

OGLETHORPE DRIVE WORKERS TO MEET

The campaign recently launched by the board of trustee-founders of Oglethorpe university to raise $1,500,000 for new buildings, equipment and endowment will be pushed forward to a successful conclusion following the wide campaign next February. We have some large gifts in sight which we hope to be able to announce at an early date.

Mr. Watkins stated that the campaign has made splendid progress and that a large part of Atlanta's quota has already been raised. "We have nearly reached the half million dollar mark," he said, "and I expect the entire amount to be subscribed by the time set for the state-wide campaign next February. We have some large gifts in sight which we hope to be able to announce at an early date."

Sore Throat

NEARLY all forms of sore throat are due to germ infection. Prompt relief therefore cannot be obtained without the use of a powerful germicide. Although more powerful in the presence of saliva than pure Carbolic Acid, Zonite can be freely used as a gargle or throat spray at sufficient strength to destroy all disease germs with which it comes in contact.

The promptness with which Zonite relieves most throat affections has been a revelation to tens of thousands of users of this new form of antiseptic.

OGLETHORPE LEADERS LIONS' CLUB GUESTS

Dr. Thornehill Jacob, president of Oglethorpe university, "Big Jim" Robertson, coach, and R. O. Brown, captain of the 1923 football team, were honor guests Tuesday at the regular weekly luncheon of the Lions' club held in the Ansley hotel. Sam B. Malley, was called upon by Roy Mathews, president of the club, to introduce the guests, and short responses were made on the past and future of Oglethorpe's athletics by Coach Robertson and Captain Brown.

Dr. Jacob spoke of the high ideals and the noble character of Georgia's founder, whose memory the school was founded to perpetuate. He said that those ideals were kept alive through their teaching in the class rooms and on the campus.

A letter from J. R. Regnas, past president of the club who now resides in Tampa, Fla., congratulating the Atlanta club for its part in the recent community chest drive, was read.

CLARENCE HART GETS SENTENCE TO GANG

Clarence Hart, instigator of charges that resulted in a changing sentence for Detectives Lon Terry and Oscar Howell almost two years ago, was sentenced to serve 12 months in the changing and pay a fine of $100 after he was convicted Tuesday in Judge Andy Calhoun's court of violating the prohibition law.

Hart was charged with possessing a suitcase full of whisky. He blamed his arrest on Terry and Howell, saying that they had threatened to get him in revenge for testimony which brought them afoul of the law. Hart was released from the changing recently.

TECH HIGH MINSTRELS WILL APPEAR FRIDAY

The Tech High band minstreles will be presented at the city Auditorium Friday night, November 30, it was announced Tuesday by W. E. Cheney, principal of the school. The minstrele will begin at 8:15 o'clock, and Mr. Cheney stated that a full audience is expected to attend.

Another event of the same evening will be the appearance in the Auditorium of Wesley Memorial church of Geraldine Farrar, famous opera star, who will appear in a concert.

Humane Body Meets.

R. E. White, president of the Atlanta Humane Society, Tuesday announced a meeting to be held in room 308 of the Chamber of Commerce building at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat, and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the nauseless calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel.

Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calotabs at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size.—(Adv.)

LYRIC ROBBERY CASE ON TRIAL

Charged with complicity in the Lyric theater robbery on December 19, when the safe was cracked and more than $3,000 in currency removed, Duke Wellborn, of Atlanta, but with no permanent address, went on trial Tuesday in Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court. Wellborn entered a plea of not guilty.

The Lyric theater robbery is considered one of the boldest and most daring of the past few months. Detectives have expressed the theory that the yegmen witnessed the evening performance at the theater and afterward secreted themselves in the building as the crowd passed to the street.

Wellborn was arrested upon information said to have been volunteered by members of an alleged narcotic ring. Federal narcotic inspectors cooperated with city police officials in running the "tip" to its origin, resulting in Wellborn's arrest and recovery of a sack of currency in large denominations.

The yegmen got away with all of the money which had been received at the Lyric theater for the previous night performance of the Forsyth players on the day preceding the robbery. The Forsyth company had moved into the Lyric theater only a short time before the robbery and had been keeping each day's receipts, taken in after banking hours, in the office safe overnight.

The sixth annual convention of the Georgia Bottlers' association closed a two-days session at the Piedmont hotel Tuesday night with a banquet. Addresses of interest to the industry featured the banquet and the closing hours brought the unanimous verdict that the convention had been the most successful of any previous meetings.

Addresses of Sidney W. Lee, president of the national organization of bottlers; E. E. Ferrandou, of the Chero-Cola company; Robert Haslett, of the Liquid Carbonic company, and C. V. Rainwater, of the Coco-Cola company, featured business sessions Tuesday.

An automobile ride to Stone Mountain where visitors were shown the work under way to complete the Confederate memorial, was enjoyed between the business session in the afternoon and the banquet at 7 o'clock.

Addressing a representative of the industry featured the two-days session, many of the addresses pointing out "the almost impossible taxation system," with particular reference to the bottling industry.

All officers of the bottlers' association were re-elected for another year, as follows: President, Fred S. Gaud, Atlanta; president, J. C. May, Augusta; vice president, George S. Cobb, West Point; secretary and treasurer, Alfred E. Kelley, Atlanta.

Boll Weevil Remedy Offered by Dr. Boyd Said To Be Effective

Bearing specimens of demonstrations in which the ravages of the boll weevil have been halted by the application of Dr. Charles Boyd's regular fertilizer, Dr. Charles Boyd, of Macon, was in Atlanta Tuesday for the purpose of conferring with officials of the cotton and fertilizer industries.

The method by which Dr. Boyd proposes to dispose of the pest is a compound, officially called Dr. Boyd's Chemical Compound, and is reported to be so powerful as to penetrate the cotton plant from its roots with results almost instantaneous.

Dr. Boyd displays samples of cotton plants grown with his compound in which few harmful effects appear from boll weevil ravages. These plants, he said, were grown in fields adjoining other plants that were completely destroyed by the insect.

Letters from high government officials are also held by Dr. Boyd, in which they state that the department of agriculture will be asked to investigate the effectiveness of the discovery.

Offers have been made to Dr. Boyd for control of his product, he said, but he has declined them until he has received further reports from government officials. Large rewards have been offered for a discovery that will prove entirely effective in stamping out the boll weevil and Dr. Boyd says he is convinced that he has made the first demonstration of the effectiveness of his work.

ESSIG TURKEY GIFT WILL END TONIGHT

A campaign to give away 200 turkeys for Thanksgiving inaugurated by Chris Essig, of Essig Clothing company, comes to a close tonight at 8 o'clock with a dancing contest at 55 North Forsyth street, when two of the finest specimens will be given to the high school boy and girl who are the best dancers of the old-fashioned "Turkey Trot" step.

During Monday and Tuesday the Essig company, at 62 North Forsyth street, supplied 111 turkeys for Thanksgiving dinner, giving one turkey to the purchaser of a suit of clothes or an overcoat. Only 80 turkeys remain for today's sale, and two of these will be held back to be given to the dancers tonight. The turkeys have been on display at 55 North Forsyth street, just across the street from the Essig store.

LABOR FEDERATION WILL MEET TONIGHT

The last semi-monthly meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Trades for November will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Labor temple, 112 Trinity avenue.

Important matters in the hands of special committees will likely be reported. A full attendance of delegates from various affiliated local unions is requested by President C. W. Cunningham.

GIVEN GANG SENTENCE FOR HAVING WHISKY

Pleading guilty to charges of possessing seven gallons of liquor, R. M. St. John, of 377 Woodward avenue, was sentenced Tuesday by Judge Andy Calhoun to serve six months in the chain gang. After receiving the sentence, St. John, through his attorney, Louis Foster, attempted to withdraw his plea of guilty. Judge Calhoun denied the request.

Bible Class Supper.

Members of the men's Bible class of the East Atlanta Baptist church were entertained at a quail supper given by the president of the class, J. M. Floyd, Monday night. James L. Key, ex-mayor, was the principal speaker. About 190 were present.

Dempsey-Firpo Film Exhibitors Win Third Round

Renewed as suddenly as it was ended at Boyles' Thirty Acres, the famous Dempsey-Firpo fight entered its third round with Atlanta as the arena Tuesday night, raged throughout the day and far into the night, and subsided at the closing for a 10-day rest while Judge G. H. Howard, of the Fulton superior court, signed a temporary restraining order prohibiting Mayor Walter A. Sims, Chief of Police James L. Beavers, Recorder George E. Johnson, Sheriff James L. Lowry, Chief of County Police George Matheson, and all other employees and officers of the city of Atlanta and Fulton county from interfering with the showing of the fight picture at the Vaudeville theater. Showing was resumed Tuesday night.

The petition for such a restraining order was instituted by Attorney W. Paul Carpenter in behalf of R. M. Carvin, owner of the picture rights for the state of Georgia, after police authorities had closed the showing of the fight picture earlier in the day. Action of police officials in stopping the show is said to have been under the direction and instigation of members of the police committee of city council, in accordance with a city ordinance on July 6, 1910, wherein moving pictures of any and all prize fights were barred from display in the city.

The restraining order was signed before the regular night performance was scheduled to open, and Attorney Carpenter, Night Chief of Police E. L. Jett and other interested officials "looked in" on the object of the court fight as it was portrayed.

Attorney Carpenter stated that he would base his fight for a permanent restraining order on the grounds that the 1910 city ordinance prohibiting such pictures is obsolete in that present city laws permit actual fights, and that a moving picture of any legal event is legal also.

The city ordinance prohibiting moving pictures of prize fights followed the famous Jeffries-Johnson bout in Reno, Nevada, of July 4, 1911, and was introduced by Councilman T. J. Greer on the ground that the showing would stimulate race prejudice.

Judge Howard set December 8 as the date upon which he will hear the prayers of the plaintiffs. However, in the meantime the pictures will continue, and their scheduled run will be completed before the date set for the hearing.

WAR HERO SPEAKER AT TEMPLE SUNDAY

Blinded while saving a comrade's life in the world war was the fate of Rabbi Michael Aaronson, who will give an address in Temple, South Pryor and Richardson streets, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Rabbi Aaronson was a soldier at the outbreak of the war, and when hostilities ended he resumed his studies there.

He will present a guest of Rabbi David Marx. "Religious Philanthropy" will be the subject of his lecture, and American Legion members are invited to attend.

SAUNDERS IN RACE FOR COUNCIL POST

W. E. (Bill) Saunders, superintendent of the Atlanta Baggage and Cab company, Tuesday announced that he is a candidate for the vacancy in council from the twelfth ward. Mr. Saunders has lived in Kirkwood for 33 years and, prior to Kirkwood's merger with Atlanta, he was in the town council for six years.

Other candidates who have announced are Vernon Shearer, W. D. Langley and Thomas Goodwin. The election will be on December 5.

Knox To Lecture.

J. S. Knox, of Cleveland, Ohio, well-known lecturer on business building, will address a joint meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, the Atlanta Automobile association and Draughton's Business college at 8 o'clock tonight. "Preparing Men for Business Leadership" will be the subject of his address, bringing out all phases of salesmanship. The address will be given at assembly hall No. 2, Chamber of Commerce building.

ELABORATE SERVICE FOR 'DIXIE LIMITED'

Restoration of the "Dixie Limited" to St. Louis and Chicago, over the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis system, involving additional service features which Atlanta has not heretofore enjoyed, was announced Tuesday by B. G. Harris, division passenger agent. The schedule and service to be offered to the traveling public may be found in another section of The Constitution today.

Restoration of this service will mean the quickest trip to St. Louis and Chicago, being two hours quicker than the present schedule of the "Dixie Flyer," heretofore the fastest train from Atlanta to Chicago.

In addition to the all-steel Pullman equipment, including observation, drawing room and compartment sleeping cars and a club lounge car, valet and maid service will be available on the "Dixie Limited." The club lounge car and valet and maid service is something new to this territory, and officials of the road are enthusiastic in their belief that the general public will receive the combined service with thorough approval.

The train will be operated on the route of the "Dixie Flyer" via Chattanooga, Nashville and Evansville, and will cut off approximately six hours of the running time to St. Louis. Officials of the road are hopeful that the train will be an all-year one and that the schedule and service will warrant its continuation regularly.

The northbound schedule calls for the train to leave Atlanta at 7:30 p. m., arriving Chicago the following afternoon at 4:30. Returning, the train leaves Chicago at 11:35 a. m. and arrives Atlanta 8:02 the following morning.

M'DEVITT-FLEMING SUE FOR MONEY ON TWO SCHOOLS

Breach of contract is alleged in a suit filed in the United States district court Tuesday against the city of Atlanta by the McDevitt-Fleming company, of Tennessee, contractors who recently informed the city that they would not complete the construction of two of the new school buildings which they had begun.

The suit seeks to recover $88,534.82, the amount alleged to be due the plaintiff for labor and material under the contract. It was for non-payment of that sum, it is alleged, that the contractors declined to carry out the contract.

The board of education has already completed one of the buildings, the Joseph E. Brown Junior High school, which the company had refused to complete.

Paderewski Reaches City For Concert Here Tonight

Ignace Paderewski, the famous pianist, arrived in Atlanta Tuesday afternoon. The great star remained in his room during the day, declining to receive callers or to be interviewed. The performance will begin in the city auditorium this evening at 8:15 o'clock, according to Mrs. DeLoe Hill, president of the Atlanta Music club.

Demand for seats during the hours of sale Monday and Tuesday caused the largest portion of the 6,000 or more tickets for this performance to be sold.

and arrangements, it was stated, have been made to care for a large number of extra reservations that will be sold to those still demanding tickets.

The fact that Paderewski is to play in Atlanta on the night before Thanksgiving enables hundreds of out-of-town music lovers to take advantage of reduced railroad rates to attend the concert. Parties of students from many girls' schools in the state have made reservations and requests for tickets have come in large numbers from many cities in middle and south Georgia.

Paderewski made his initial appearance in Atlanta twenty-three years ago, playing to perhaps the greatest audience ever attracted by a musical concert.

For the past several years Paderewski has not appeared in public concerts. During his voluntary retirement from his music he served Poland as premier, and his success as a statesman was no less brilliant than his career as the premier pianist of the world. Late in 1922 he decided to resume his concert work and made his debut for a second time in Carnegie hall, New York, and was greeted by one of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences in the history of the city. His services have been in greater demand during the past year than at any time during his long career.

Atlanta Fined On Three Counts In Auto Crash

Forsyth, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—L. H. Lightfoot of Atlanta, whose machine collided with a car carrying Mercer students Saturday night one mile from Smarra, pleaded guilty to three charges against him this afternoon before Judge Ogden Persons, in superior court, and was fined $200 for driving a car on the public highway while intoxicated; $100 for having whisky in his possession; and $100 for assault. It is said that a general melee followed after the collision, in which Lightfoot lost two or three teeth and a woman companion was slightly bruised. The students were returning to Macon from Forsyth and claimed to be driving about 20 miles an hour. They were Artemis Montoya, Edgar Dunston, Scott Young, Ralph B. Moore, W. R. Carswell and Peek. Montoya and Dunston were knocked unconscious. Peek was cut in the forehead and lost much blood. Montoya had one rib broken. All the injured were brought to Forsyth for attention.

It is understood that outside of his fines, Lightfoot has paid the physician's bill for attending the injured men, as well as the damage to the limousine in which they were traveling. Lightfoot is employed by a tire concern in Atlanta.

PIGGLY WIGGLY STOCK SUSPENSION DEFENDED

New York, November 27.—Asserting that the New York Stock Exchange's action in postponing deliveries of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., stock under contracts made March 20, 1923, the day the stock was suspended from trading, was justified under the circumstances, Seymour L. Cromwell, president of the New York Stock Exchange, today replied to the $100,000 suit for damages recently instituted against exchange officials by Frank C. Milton and Walter L. Smith of Memphis, Tenn.

Briefly, Mr. Cromwell through his counsel, Carter, Ledyard & Milton, charged that the plaintiffs, Milton and Smith, did not enter the market on their own account but rather were parties to an alleged plan by Clarence Saunders, then president of the Piggly Wiggly company, to bring about a corner in the stock and to "make use of the same to extort from such persons as might be liable upon contracts to deliver said stock such sums of money as Mr. Saunders and his associates might arbitrarily dictate."

The reply charged that Mr. Saunders violated his agreement with the exchange to maintain a free and open market in the stock and stated that when the "corner" was effective, officials of the exchange decided an emergency existed and suspended the rules governing deliveries so that contracts could be fulfilled within five days instead of requiring deliveries within 24 hours.

Charmed Audience Hears Miss Lutz In Molnar's Play

Miss Florence Lutz, dean of the Curry School of Expression, of Boston, Mass., charmed a large audience Tuesday evening at the Unitarian church in a recital of Franz Molnar's play, "Liliom," sponsored by the Little Theater Guild of Atlanta.

Miss Lutz, who is a noted reader and instructor of dramatic interpretation, is on a tour of the south in the interest of the Curry school, and her appearance in Atlanta under the patronage of the Little Theater Guild was an auspicious event, inaugurating as it did the Guild's program for the year and giving lovers of the drama in this city an opportunity to hear perhaps the most finished reader who has appeared here in some time.

The selection of "Liliom" proved a happy one. Miss Lutz, who formerly was instructor at the Sargeant School of Acting, in New York, numbered among her pupils at that time Schildkraut, who created the title role in the New York production. She attended the premiere performance of the play and since that time it has been one of the most popular readings included in her repertoire.

Miss Lutz has a gifted faculty of projecting the characters of the play and making them live. She creates the atmosphere of the scenes by subtle suggestion, in pantomime and speech, and held the closest interest of her audience Tuesday evening through the play.

Miss Lutz was introduced by Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson, director of the Guild, who congratulated the organization upon introducing this gifted artist to Atlanta, and announced that the program as planned for the year will include the presentation of exponents of the spoken art.

Newell H. Grace, chairman of membership, commented on the Guild's increasing membership.

COMMANDER PYE FREED OF BLAME IN HONDA WRECK

San Diego, Cal., November 24.—Commander William S. Pye, of the navy, commanding destroyer division No. 31, two vessels of which were lost at Port Hondo, September 8, was acquitted by a navy court-martial late today on charges of negligence growing out of that disaster.

VETS WILL SEND SMOKES TO PALS IN HOSPITAL

Members of Atlanta chapter No. 1, Disabled Veterans of the World War, Tuesday night voted to spend $150 for cigarettes for disabled ex-service men in base hospital No. 48, and adopted a resolution to attend morning services at the Pryor street temple Sunday morning.

Harry C. Osburn, adjutant of the chapter, offered his resignation to take effect at once, inasmuch as he is leaving the city. His successor was not named.

The retiring adjutant was presented with a chapter ring by members of the chapter, and his work among disabled veterans in Atlanta was highly praised in short talks by members following presentation of the ring.

FARRELL INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

J. E. Farrell, of Farrell Heating & Plumbing Co., was indicted Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to murder in connection with an automobile accident several weeks ago which resulted in the injury to Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Moriarty, 653 Piedmont avenue.

The accident occurred on Ponce de Leon avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Moriarty are said to have suffered severe bruises and lacerations.

Police allege that Farrell was intoxicated at the time of the automobile crash.

GEORGIA NURSES WILL VOTE TODAY ON NEW OFFICERS

Election of officers will form Wednesday's feature of the seventeenth annual convention of Georgia State Nurses' association, in session at the Winecoff hotel. The usual morning business session will be held today and election of officers for 1924 will be taken up at the afternoon meeting.

A banquet for the nurses at the Woman's club building Tuesday night was an enjoyable feature of the convention. The banquet followed the afternoon business session and a number of short addresses by members greatly enlivened the occasion.

The convention has been in session since Monday, and more than one hundred licensed nurses are in attendance. Daily business sessions are interspersed with automobile trips and other entertainment features.

JOHNSON ASSAILS FOREIGN POLICY

merely to put us into international organizations of which the ultimate action is unknown, or at least, undecided.

"What I venture to denounce is the conscious effort to postpone having an American policy in favor of going into European international organizations where the policy reached is bound to be not American but European."

Bonus Question.

In taking up the bonus and taxation questions, Senator Johnson said:

"The responsible heads of the dominant political party have for some years, plagued themselves and their party to the soldiers' adjusted compensation act. You may say it is unwise. It is emotionally and morally impelling and long ago it was decreed by those in command of the government to be just. It constitutes now in reality a promise, a solemn pledge and we must keep faith. But a brief period ago it was insisted we should delay, not deny it because the money was not forthcoming. The passage of the act, you may assert, to be financially bad, but our pretexts and delays, our shifting and evasions are morally worse. But we can reduce taxes and we will I hope, reduce them."

Senator Johnson then read figures computed by the treasury department and American legion, saying: "But if the computations be correct we may do our duty by the soldiers to whom we were so grateful while they fought, and of whom some are so forgetful now, and still reduce taxation."

Agricultural Situation.

Senator Johnson also discussed the agricultural situation, saying: "When agriculture languishes the nation is ill. It is obvious that the farmer has been compelled to sell for less than the cost of production. Some would have the American taxpayer generally make up to the farmer that which is unjustly taken from him, first by the railroad monopoly and secondly by the middlemen. I do not wish to embark the government on this kind of enterprise. The initial step is the relief of the farmer in lower freight rates. I would not be unjust to the transportation companies, but that they could reduce the rates upon farm products I have little doubt; and if the interstate commerce commission were to function with the celerity and certainty we desire, rates would be reduced. We stand for reduction that is just, and we stand for the good faith of the American people."

Senator Johnson also urged cooperative marketing as a help to the farmers. "I would not take the government either into price-fixing or into the grain business," he said, "but I would have the government educate persons in the forming of cooperative associations and just exactly as the government has aided other activities, it could and would, I assume, aid in the same fashion the farmers in their cooperative equipment."

Advocates Waterways.

He advocated development of waterways to assist the farmer. In closing his address, Senator Johnson again reverted to the foreign situation. "It is said that people are more interested in matters that are termed democratic than they are in foreign affairs," he said. "I do not think them so unpatriotic and I do not think them so short-sighted. We hear talk of 'helping Europe.' The true problem is not alone of 'helpfulness'; it is that of justice. Our farmers have suffered from intrigues, from manipulations and from failure of our government to secure on behalf of their cooperative societies a full opportunity of development and advance. Having failed to do those things, our statesmen now in many cases endeavor to persuade the farmer that what he needs is a league of nations at Geneva or a world court at The Hague or some other preposterous and futile method of expanding his markets, while all the time the difficulty is that the profits from those supposed expanded markets would in present circumstances go not to him, but to others."

"It is increasingly clear that a determined and desperate intention exists to lead the whole American people into the European mirage where there will be certain profits indeed for the few, but disillusion and disappointment and disaster for the many."

"The reparation conference proposal is a transparent subterfuge contrived by gentlemen, who, having notoriously tried and having notoriously failed to get us into the politics of Europe directly through the league of nations, now wish to get us into the politics of Europe through the indirect road of pretending that a participation in European economic affairs in a conference called by the government, and consisting of the appointees of governments, would not take us into European governmental matters."

"If an American is asked to come to Europe, he is asked to come for some other reason than simply because he can read and write and cipher. What Britain manifestly needed, what Britain manifestly wanted, was that when the calculation was made there should lie behind it the money power and the man power of this country of one hundred million people and of illimitable natural, and therefore military resources."

Asked To Give Prestige.

"So what were we in fact asked by our government to do? We were asked to give our prestige, which in the end, if we are honest, means our resources, to a calculation not yet made and in which most of the calculators would be appointed by foreign governments. With exactly the same vagueness that we were asked to join the league of nations court, we were to join in conference or committee to determine reparations to be paid by Germany. Lloyd George said: 'Once this committee had concluded its task and Germany then refused to pay, the allies could then march together to deal with her recalcitrancy. If he would expect us then to march with the other nations he has misinterpreted and misunderstood American sentiments.' There are alternative policies. The American policy.

one, intervention in Europe and bring peace and order, an intervention dictated by conference in which we are but one of many. The other policy is our own, frankly and openly avowed, doing justice to all, wrong to none, neither asking or receiving benefits or profit, retaining our independence of action, uninfluenced by secret conference, undirected by a majority of foreigners; in short, an American policy."

The Only Way to Lower Rates—

what your business you must have good railroad transportation. You want it as cheaply as may be. There are men in public life who propose to make it cheaper for you by so exercising the government's control of railroad revenues and expenses as to force them first into bankruptcy and then into government ownership.

Transportation may be cheapened temporarily by such methods of regulation. It can never be made really and permanently cheaper except by reducing the cost of rendering it.

That can come about only through increased efficiency and improved facilities, requiring the investment of much money. For some years past, while other business has expanded, investors have not been willing to put their money into improved railroad facilities. During the present year, however, the railroads have shown their faith in the future of America and the fairness of the American people by investing more than a billion dollars, most of it borrowed, in equipment to handle your business. Partly as a result of this act of faith, a record business has been moved without a car shortage—for the first time in years.

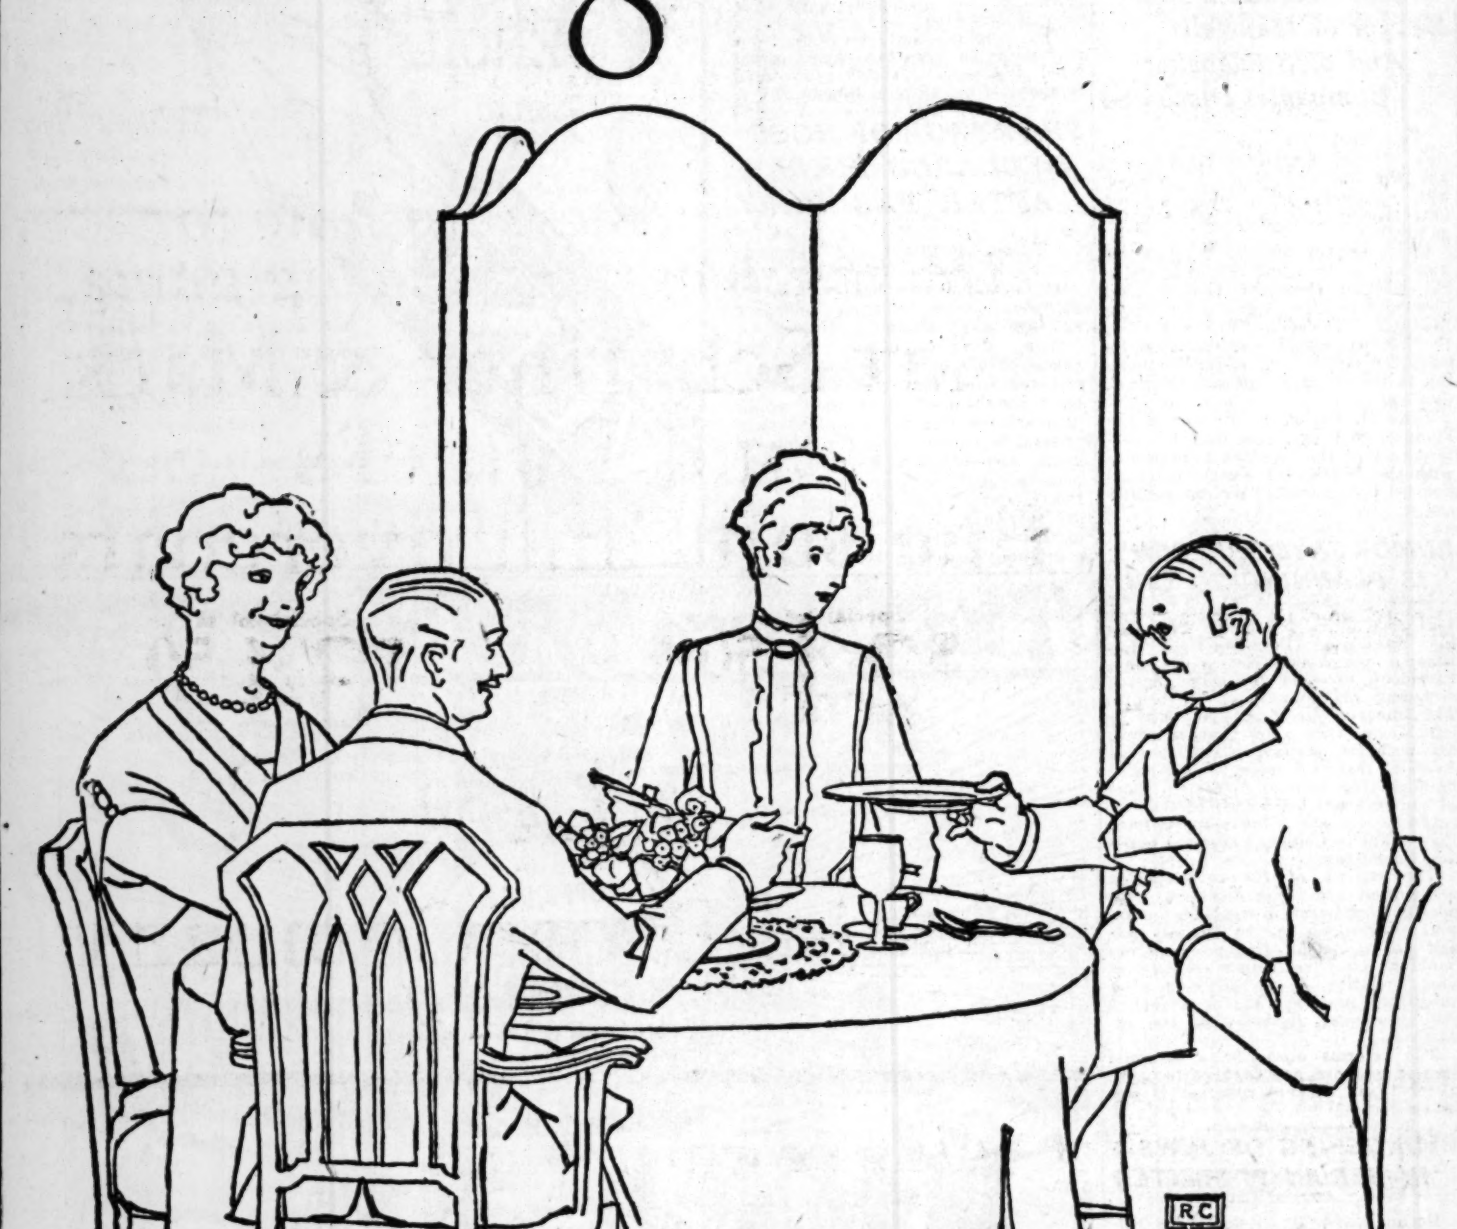

The plan to arbitrarily reduce freight rates by political action may make them cheaper for a little while—but it will mean the end of railroad investment and the strangulation of business through a shortage of good, dependable transportation.

The railroads are working for permanent results in the way of more efficient transportation, and are beginning to get them. That is the only way to secure permanently lower rates.

CLUES TO BOMBERS FOUND BY PROBES

Philadelphia, Pa., November 27.—New clues which may lead to the arrest of the men who bombed the Spanish and Italian consulates in this city early Saturday have been unearthed, department of justice agents said tonight. Three foreigners living here and three in New York are being sought in connection with the case.

The six men, according to the authorities, are members of a radical group.

More Outrages Feared.—Washington, November 27.—Philadelphia police investigating the recent bombing of the Italian and Spanish consulates in that city were said in a report to the state department today to be working on the theory that the attack was a threat of more serious activities to come.

depository banks should be appreciated, they morally forfeited their claim on the privilege of making the loan when they first declined to help the school board out of its predicament.

He said that the other banks had been waiting for about two weeks for the city to submit to them a proposition which would be entirely legal, but that the Citizens and Southern bank, of its own initiative, evolved a plan whereby the teachers could secure their November and December pay checks and whereby at the same time the bank would be protected.

Mayor Acted Unofficially.—In explaining his opposition to the award of the loan privilege exclusively to the Citizens and Southern bank, Commissioner McCallie intimated that Mayor Sims, through whom the Citizens and Southern offer had been secured, had acted without authority from the school board, and that the offer of the depository banks, which had been obtained through him, was as chairman of the finance com-

G.O.P. To Decide On Senate Jobs Held by Cummins

Washington, November 27.—Only two concrete developments regarding organization of the house and senate came out of various conferences today at the capitol.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, agreed to leave republican leader's decision as to whether he shall retain both or either of his present places as president pro tem of the senate and chairman of the interstate commerce committee.

House progressives spotted a committee to confer with republican organization leaders regarding modification of house rules and committee assignments. It was indicated, however, that this committee would not take initiative in any possible negotiations.

Ant From Argentine Lauded and Belittled As Weevil Eradicator

Crystal Springs, Miss., November 27.—A cotton boll weevil eradicator has been found in the Argentine ant, according to Manue Dees, a planter residing near here, who for some time has been experimenting with ways and means of combating the cotton pest. Mr. Dees planted two patches of cotton on the same farm this season, one of them infested with the ants, the other with the weevils. The ant-infested patch contained 140 bolls of cotton matured by the time the weevils were stalked from the other patch, infested with the weevil, contained only shriveled squares and small, undeveloped bolls.

Austin, Texas, November 27.—Eradication of the boll weevil by the use of the Argentine ant is suggested by Hancor, a Mississippi cotton planter, will never be accomplished, according to R. E. McDonald, entomologist of the Texas state department of agriculture.

Mr. McDonald said it was his opinion that the Argentine ant will not feed on the boll weevil, but even if it did, it is itself altogether too serious a pest to be considered. The ant is by far the worst household pest, and it is also to be feared as an orchard pest, Mr. McDonald said.

He stated that some years ago a large number of Kelep ants from Guatemala were imported into Texas in an attempt to control the weevil, but the attempt was a failure as the ants did not destroy enough weevils to be of any value.

Among the famous inventions of the Chinese are the following: The compass, printing, lithography, suspension bridges and gunpowder.

G.O.P. To Decide On Senate Jobs Held by Cummins

Washington, November 27.—Only two concrete developments regarding organization of the house and senate came out of various conferences today at the capitol.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, agreed to leave republican leader's decision as to whether he shall retain both or either of his present places as president pro tem of the senate and chairman of the interstate commerce committee.

House progressives spotted a committee to confer with republican organization leaders regarding modification of house rules and committee assignments. It was indicated, however, that this committee would not take initiative in any possible negotiations.

Decision Is Upset

Senator Cummins' decision upset expectations of the majority leaders that he would voluntarily give up the place of president pro tem and retain the committee chairmanship. Some of the leaders, among them Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, said the question of selecting a candidate for president pro tem probably would not even come before the republican conference to be held Saturday.

Under the constitution of the senate which accompanied his election, the Iowa senator holds the office of president pro tem at the pleasure of the senate.

Some parliamentarians contend that since the senate is a continuing body, re-election of the president pro tem is not necessary. They point to several precedents to support their argument.

Senate progressives are opposed to Senator Cummins holding both of his present places, but they have not yet formally discussed among themselves a possible candidate for president pro tem. They have told him that they would support him for the office of president pro tem.

House and senate organization was discussed with President Coolidge by Senator Lodge early today. Immediately upon returning to the capitol, the senator called into conference his chief lieutenants and later he and Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, conferred with Senator Cummins to learn his views.

The Iowa senator said afterwards that he had nothing to relinquish; that he was president pro tem at the pleasure of the senate and that it was for the majority to decide whether he should continue in that office. His position also is that the committee chairmanship likewise is a question for the senate.

While the conferences were proceeding, Senator Jones, republican, Washington, issued a formal statement urging the republicans to get together on both organization and legislative matters.

Senator Jones declared in favor of tax reduction, the soldiers' bonus, assistance for agriculture, the remedying of defects in existing legislation and the enactment of legislation to aid the American merchant marine.

Approximately one-third of the women enrolled in the Southern Branch of the University of California are earning all or part of their way through college. COOLIDGE URGED TO GRANT PARDON TO CHARLES CRAIG

New York, November 27.—The citizens' union today made public a letter sent President Coolidge asking him either to pardon City Comptroller Charles L. Craig or to commute his sentence of sixty days for contempt of court imposed by Federal Judge May.

The letter suggested that a change in procedure in regard to contempt proceedings be made so that a judge "who is defamed outside the courtroom" shall not pass on the contempt of the fact that he was engaged in an operation.

The comptroller of the city of New York is the chief financial officer of the city and is one of the most important officials in the city government," said the letter. "The conduct of municipal affairs must necessarily be greatly embarrassed by his extended confinement in jail."

TRIAL OF SLAYER OF AGED MINISTER OPENS IN BENTON

Benton, La., November 27.—Eight jurors to try W. J. Sherman, 65 years old, charged with the murder of Rev. John Keeth, aged Baptist minister, near Plain Dealing, November 4, 1922, had been accepted when court adjourned today until tomorrow.

The slain minister was 70 years old at the time of his death. He was a member of the local church and was well known in the community. His death was a great loss to the church and the community.

Trouble between the Sherman and Keeth families is said to have started when the minister is alleged to have loaned one of Sherman's daughters money with which to visit a sister at Memphis.

Band of Young Reds Led by Boy Trotsky Broken Up in Gotham

New York, November 27.—The police bomb squad today reported the discovery in Harlem of a band of juvenile revolutionaries led by a boy Trotsky—Leo Granoff, aged 11.

Lieutenant James Gagan said he had long been on the case of Justice Holt of the Children's court. Granoff had been arrested on a technical charge of juvenile delinquency, with what Gagan described as marked anarchist tendencies.

The police said they had learned that near the children's court, there were a number of boys and girls under 14, had been meeting regularly after school hours, at a house on East 103rd street. There they were met by a man who gave them for distribution radical pamphlets usually read by more mature communists.

Gagan's mother, however, was not so indignant, according to the police. She was represented as saying that she and the boy were free thinkers and that she did not propose to tinker with the young idea.

Gagan said Leo was unusually bright for his age, but irregular in school attendance.

Wholesalers Right To Ask Commissions On Goods Is Upheld

Washington, November 27.—A wholesaler can without violating any law give notice to a manufacturer that he will discontinue dealing with him unless the manufacturer ceases selling directly to retailers in the wholesaler's territory or pays him a regular wholesaler's commission on such business.

This was clearly demonstrated today as representing the views of the supreme court in its hearing of a case brought by a Federal trade commission against Raymond Brothers, Clark company, of Nebraska. After counsel for the government had concluded its argument in this section, which had poured upon him a flood of questions, was so satisfied that the practice complained of by the commission was not in violation of law that it refused to hear counsel for the Raymond Brothers, Clark company.

JEFFERSONVILLE BANK AGAIN OPENS DOORS

Jeffersonville, Ga., November 27.—(Special).—The Farmers and Merchants bank which closed its doors several months ago has again opened for business here with S. C. Jones as the new cashier.

Closing of the bank was caused by a run on it by the depositors. Its reorganization given some encouragement to the financial situation in this section, it is believed. The new cashier, S. C. Jones, is a prominent farmer and land owner of Twiggs county. His assistant in the bank is Miss Frances Whitehurst. W. H. McCrary is president of the Farmers and Merchants bank and C. C. Humphries, a prominent local merchant, is vice president. Directors are J. I. Mercer, W. M. Whitehurst, C. C. Humphries and W. H. McCrary.

IOWA SUPPORTERS OF FORD CALLED TO MEET DEC. 3

Des Moines, Iowa, November 27.—Iowa supporters of Henry Ford's nomination for the presidency were called upon today by Francis G. Cutler, of Boone, Iowa, secretary and treasurer of the national Ford-fund, to meet in Des Moines on December 3 to select delegates to a national Ford-for-President meeting to be held at Detroit on December 12.

Secretary Cutler declared in the call that both major parties had betrayed the people and said the nomination of Sherman for president was necessary to save the country from bankruptcy and ruin by the establishment of an American economic system of debt paying finance which will eventually provide the means of paying off all our national debt and restoring peace and prosperity.

MERGER OF MAXWELL AND OF STUDEBAKER COMPANIES DISCUSSED

New York, November 27.—Directors of the Studebaker corporation and the Maxwell Motor corporation met separately today to discuss the long reported merger of the two organizations.

Great secrecy marked the proceedings and at the close of the Studebaker meeting President Erskine said there was nothing to give out for publication. He declined to say whether the directors would meet again to consider the matter and reported rumors to the directors of the Maxwell corporation.

Julius H. Bache, a director of the Maxwell corporation, said after the meeting that the reported negotiations with the Studebaker corporation had not been discussed. "We have nothing to say," he said.

RUMOR SAYS OREGON IS PLANNING TO QUIT

Mexico City, November 27.—(By the Associated Press).—There has been a recurrence of reports that President Obregon is contemplating resigning on account of ill health. The rumors were circulated when he left Mexico City more than a month ago with the purpose of convalescing from a throat trouble. They have been revived by the fact that some of the personal belongings of the Obregon family are being shipped from the capital to Celaya, where the president is resting.

The reports of the contemplated resignation are being discussed with additional interest in view of the recent publication in the Official Gazette of a presidential proclamation making effective constitutional reforms relative to the selection of a substitute president in the event of permanent disability of the incumbent.

The reforms authorize a commission of senators and deputies to name a substitute in case congress is not in session.

PLUNDERING OF JEWS IN BERLIN PROTESTED

Berlin, November 27.—(Jewish Telegraph Agency).—An official protest against the mistreatment and the plundering which Jewish citizens of Poland, together with other Jews, suffered during the recent disorders in Berlin has been lodged by the Polish ambassador with the chancellor. More than one hundred individual claims are cited by the Polish authorities, far from defending the Jews attacking them, far as to encourage the plunderers.

The intervention of the consul general having been vain, the Polish government desires to know if the officials guilty of neglect have been punished. In conclusion it demands reparation for the damages sustained.

JURY IS COMPLETED IN TRIAL OF CLORE

Orlando, Fla., November 27.—Completion of the jury panel that will hear the testimony in the case of John W. Clore, on trial in the Orange circuit court charged with the murder of Alexander P. Boyer, and the introduction of testimony of ten witnesses, in an effort by the prosecution to prove that Boyer is dead and the skeleton found in a swamp near Rock Springs in Orange county, is that his body, occupied today's session of court.

Adjournment for the day was ordered by Judge C. O. Andrews at 5 o'clock, when attorneys for the prosecution stated that they were unable to produce Dr. J. R. Chappell, material witness, until Wednesday, on account of the fact that he was engaged in an operation.

It was learned today that the prosecution will attempt to prove by Dr. Chappell that Boyer was shot from behind with a rifle, and that the bullet shattered a vertebra in the spine causing death.

Sheriff Karel testified that in answer to a telephone message he went to the swamp where the young man had found the skeleton, and there he found remnants of clothing, a pair of boots, a gold plated collar button with the initial "B" engraved on the front, and a wing-bridged tooth.

$50,000 DAMAGES ASKED BY EVANS AGAINST SIMMONS

Little Rock, November 27.—Alleging that William J. Simmons, emperor of the Ku Klux Klan, in his answer to the $100,000 libel suit filed against him several months ago by Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Klan, had made charges which in themselves amounted to libel, Dr. Evans today brought suit against Simmons, filed suit in Pulaski circuit court for an additional $50,000 damages.

The new complaint states that Colonel Simmons, in his answer to the original damage suit, had made statements which were intended to malign the character of Imperial Wizard Evans and to injure his reputation as a citizen and official of the organization. The answer on which the new claim is based was withdrawn on motion of the defendant some time after it was filed.

SHORTAGE OF HOGS DECLARED LIKELY AFTER FEBRUARY

Chicago, November 27.—Overloading of the terminal markets by unrestricted shipping of hogs will inevitably be followed by a corresponding shortage after February, Everett C. Brown, president of the National Livestock Exchange, declared today, and predicted that if farmers hold back one-third of what they would have shipped, hog prices will advance at least $2 in the next sixty or ninety days. His statement follows: "Commission men," he said, "regret that the farmers all over the United States are sacrificing their hogs at prevailing depressed prices when there is such a bright prospect in 1924. ONLY 35 CONSERVATIVE MEMBERS UNOPPOSED

London, November 27.—Among conservatives today disappointment was expressed that no more than thirty-five of their candidates were returned by acclamation on nomination day. No opposition was expected by Sir Arthur Steel Maitland in Edlington, Birmingham, but his re-election was challenged at the last moment by a labor nominee.

A similar situation developed in the Edgbaston division of Birmingham, where an eleven-hour nomination of a liberal in opposition to Sir Francis Lowe was made.

The candidacy of two labor men in Paisley is considered to have improved Mr. Asquith's chances of re-election. Winston Churchill is fighting a hard battle in West Leicester. The liberals there have started a daily paper with the special object of assisting Mr. Churchill.

American Foreign Policy Defended By Richard Child

New York, November 27.—America's foreign policy is not that of isolation, but of detached activity, and its prestige in foreign chancelleries never was greater, Richard Washburn Child, ambassador to Italy, declared in addressing the Italian American society tonight.

Mr. Child declared Europe now recognizes "that our good sense, after a tragical lapse, has been restored and is considered a bulwark against international misfortune."

At a moment of crisis in Europe, he said, a most distinguished European statesman came to him and said: "You could not have had the influence you have had in these days except the power of your detachment. Detachment renders your nation and your people fearless, direct, helpful and ready to speak with candor. Keep out of the tangle, so that you can help us. You owe it to the world."

The Dawn of a New Day in Shoe Repairing

Look for the Official Sign!

It is not only the dawn of a new day for the public, but also for the shoe repairer—for the public because it can be assured of shoe repairing that might be better described as "rebuilding," for the skilled, conscientious shoe repairer who has the mechanical skill, and the desire to be a merchant rather than a mere shoe tinker.

Wherever this sign appears, it means that the shop has undergone successfully the severe tests of the master mechanic-repairers of the United Shoe Repairing Machine Company. If at any time an official shop should not live up to the required standards the sign is removed. All repairers are entitled to it who can pass the tests that guarantee, to the public, quality workmanship.

Behind the sign is the full mechanical, advertising and merchandising service of the United Shoe Repairing Machine Company that backs up the efficient repairer with its sign and calls upon the public to favor with its patronage those dealers carrying the symbol of first-class workmanship and methods.

Wahl Pen has many superior features. One is the Wahl filling device. It fills the pen plumb full of ink every time.

Another is the comb feed. This feed regulates the ink flow so perfectly that the point always writes the instant it touches paper. You never have to shake Wahl Pen. And the ink never floods.

As for the nib, experts say it is the ultimate in nib-making. It is 14-karat gold, tipped with the hardest, finest grade of iridium that can be purchased. This nib suits your hand perfectly the very first time you use it.

The wonderful balance of Wahl Pen makes it the most comfortable of pens to hold. And when in the pocket or purse, Wahl Pen can never leak, for the patented cap construction prevents leaking.

You will find a style and size of Wahl Pen that exactly suits you. Ask to see Wahl Pen at your dealer's. $2.50 up.

SALES TAX, OR NO?

The senate acted with great wisdom Tuesday when it amended the general tax act, passed by the house at the regular summer session, by striking the levy against grand opera.

This tax, from the day it was first imposed, has been the cause of more bad advertising for Georgia than any legislation, of any nature, in a generation.

The idea of taxing an educational and cultural enterprise, created through the public spirit of men and women who were generous enough to associate themselves into a guaranty organization in order that the people of Georgia and the south might have the world's best in music for one week each year—and without the possibility of individual profits—has been repelling to every sense of justice and fair play and from one end of this country to the other Georgia has been severely criticized for this wholly indefensible levy.

It is hoped the House will promptly accept the senate amendment, and thus set the real attitude of the people of the state in this matter correctly before the people of the world.

The special tax on high grade candy, as proposed by the senate finance committee, was also unanimously defeated, and in this matter the senate acted with wisdom, as in killing any proposed increases in the special sales taxes.

The fact about the matter is the Georgia legislature should either submit a constitutional amendment providing for a general sales tax in lieu of the present ad valorem system, or it should stop attempting to enact an abnormal, unsystematic, unethical and unfair sales tax by statutes by single-shotting specific articles of commerce and imposing rates that are beyond all reason, and for which there can be no justification.

There is much sound argument in favor of a sales tax of say 1 per cent on all merchandise turn-over, sufficiently small in levy as to impose no burden or penalty upon anyone, and sufficiently wide in distribution to provide the revenue required for the state.

There are objections to such a tax as well as sound arguments in its favor, just as there are sound arguments on both sides of any basic state system. One of the arguments, which touches the equity of the proposal, is that it imposes taxes upon the necessities of life which must be obtained for subsistence by the very poor and who in the nature of the justice of taxation should be immune from its levies, etc.

However strong or weak may be the legislative sentiment for a general sales tax, the disposition to throw ten per cent levies upon various articles of merchandise selected from a merchant's general stock is wrong in principle, and a penalty upon legitimate trade that is inexcusable.

During the regular session in the summer a 10 per cent tax was imposed against cigarettes, and cigars that sell at retail for more than 5 cents. It became a law in a maze of misunderstandings and ambiguities, so much so that it is doubtful what the state will get out of it; while mail-order houses in other states are already organizing to defeat its provisions and at the same time hamper and embarrass Georgia merchants. This bill, striking at the very heart of an infant but promising industry in the state, passed the legislature through the human appeal of the tubercular sanitarian and of the unpaid Confederate pensions.

Provisions should have been made, to the dollar of the state's obligations, for these matters, but they are state obligations—obligations of all taxpayers—and not those of any one class or industry.

Then came along in the present extra session a serious proposal to tax 5 cents a pound every pound of candy retailed for more than 50 cents sold in the state, it matters not how many times it may be turned over. It was arbitrary, revolutionary and wholly inexcusable and the quick and decisive vote in the senate it is hoped will seal its doom.

Already business pays into the state treasury more than $2,000,000 in excess of the entire ad valorem total, including visible and invisible properties. It is notorious that the special taxes in many instances that are levied in the general tax act are not uniformly collected. There are counties in Georgia without a single barber chair, to illustrate, judging by the comptroller's report. There is less than $500 paid into the state by the great lumber industry as occupation taxes.

And yet, without enacting machinery to make effective the laws that already exist, members of the legislature are attempting to defeat the spirit of the constitution by writing the tax laws in the statutes instead of in the organic law, and are attempting to saddle a one-sided, unscientific sales tax upon the people that is neither uniform in commodities nor rates, and with rates imposed that mean business confiscation.

This is no way to settle the tax problem in Georgia, and no way to approach tax revision. Either have a sales tax worked out with system and uniformity, or stop shooting penalizing arrows at specific lines.

The senate is to be commended for its action.

THE TOLBERT ISSUE.

President Coolidge has compromised the Tolbert issue in South Carolina, and has brought to an end the most spectacular and tenacious patronage fight in generations, and has also maintained the integrity of the old "courtesy of the senate" rule which remains inviolate.

The Tolbert issue had become national in its scope. The late President Harding opened the case many times, and listened with respectful attention to the courtesy pleas of the South Carolina senators who held up the confirmation.

As a member of the senate at the time of his election to the presidency, he was quite well informed as to the unwritten law that makes a senator's personal objections effective in blocking confirmations and to which even the white house usually pays respect by a withdrawal of the objectionable appointment.

But in the case of Tolbert, of South Carolina, the republican national committee man whom he had appointed United States marshal in June, 1922, President Harding was adamant.

Senator Dial not only registered personal objection to Tolbert but charged that the latter, as patronage referee in South Carolina, had sold and been paid for federal positions.

President Harding stood by his man, however, and when the senate adjourned in the early fall of 1922 without confirmation, he promptly gave him a recess appointment. He renominated him regularly in November. There was still no confirmation when congress adjourned on March 4, 1923, and President Harding quickly made the second recess appointment.

This defiance of the "courtesy of the senate" became a topic of nationwide comment, and had seriously strained some of the old and cordial relations between the president and some of his former colleagues.

Now President Coolidge voids the last recess appointment of his predecessor and names a nephew of Tolbert for marshal, thus effecting a compromise, upholding the senate's most cherished possession, and still in fact keeping Tolbert the "boss" of the republican party organization in the Palmetto State.

That the fine Italian hand of Secretary Bascom Slemm was felt in this strategic settlement of an embarrassing situation is more than likely.

Be thankful, where

(From The Tifton Gazette.)
Editor Hay believes that prosperity that can be seen is more convincing than that which you can only hope for,
and says so in the following:
When we get these things and roads press for the past few weeks concerning the kind of advertising this state is getting and the kind it needs, the Times claims that visible prosperity is the best advertisement we can have, and we have been trying to show the value of a painter's country homes and barns, well kept premises, well cultivated fields, pure bred live stock grazing in good pastures, etc.
When we get these things and roads

Rolliekin' an' fine,
Happiness is more than gold—
There we rise and shine,

Hands around just one time more!

Got Even at Last.

"A chap moved out here from St. Louis," says the editor of The Pacific Transcript, "and he didn't know which end of a cow to milk when he was here. But he had been here two years he was wise enough to unload on an innocent editor a cow that had lost half her teeth. She didn't have a sign of one in her whole upper jaw! She gives milk all right and gets away with her food, but how long can she gum it? The cow's teeth won't fit and we're getting tired of running her bay through the food chopper."

NERVES.

What would we do without our nerves? And what are we to do with them?
How tired they make us at times. And yet at other times we are thrilled with the power of their electric force.

It is easy to lay blame on nerves. Nothing in nature quite equals the nervousness of the nervous system. Like a delicate woven piece of lace-work is this nerve organization of ours. You can't injure or disturb a single inch of it without setting it into trouble with this perfectly put together nervous system.

Controlled as it is from the seat of the mind, it is not under our control. And when it is disturbed we get sleepless, cross, unfair, and are some-body else than ourselves.

Dr. Thomas Hylop, of England, says that the best possible sleep-producing agent which his practice has revealed is prayer. He says that it will do more for you than any other remedy. It will calm the mind and calm the nerves.

It is not so much praying to God, but to our better natures, our highest and best, and our own adjustment and solace through the unloading of our fears upon a higher power than our own.

William James says that "One part of our mind damps up—even damps up—the other parts."

When you relax and hand your burdens to some stronger agent, you relieve the tension that bound you and avail yourself of the joy of free expression.

But you would have calm nerves, get a calm mind.

IN THE PARK

Over a bed where summer flings
Her flowers glow of blue and white.
A butterfly hovered with dainty wings,
Sipping the honey and dew.
But the flowers grew
And the butterfly flew
Years and years ago.

Near by on a branch of tender green
A bird was trilling its lay:
Its song was full of a joy unseen—
The theme of a perfect day.
But the bird's song
Has been hushed for long
Years and years ago.

With musical plash a fountain played
And glittered with sunbeams bright.
While hand in hand two lovers strayed:
With lips that trod the path.
True love's fire
Though summer flies
Like fogs of long ago.

Plan Day of Hunting.

(Arlington, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—No Thanksgiving service will be held at any of the local churches Thursday. However, it is expected that all the business houses will be closed for the day, and those who do not witness the football games in nearby cities will spend the day hunting quail, as has been the custom here for several years.

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

That which was feared most has happened—
The house of representatives, in the twilight hour of Tuesday evening, passed by constitutional majority an income tax bill, under the misnomer "the Lankford bill," which, if written into the organic law of Georgia, will go further toward closing the door to progress, and economically wrecking the state, than anything that has been suggested even by the most radical groups of legislators in the history of Georgia.

The bill, as finally passed, after the defeat of the various conflicting and amendatory measures, provides that there shall be a property or ad valorem tax of 3 mills, plus an income tax not to exceed 5 per cent, without stipulation as to whether the tax shall be on net or gross earnings, assuming the same to be on gross in that the word "net" was struck; and without stipulation as to whether the exemption shall be $1,000 or $100, or what?

These matters were left, through the good graces of a legislative body, to its present or other and subsequent legislative bodies, to "fix" as time rolls by, thus tearing down the bars of the constitution of the fathers and throwing the tax issue in Georgia into the increasing fog of politics and into the gridiron of legislative logrolling and foot-balling.

Talk about the people ratifying since a lifting of constitutional amendment, the safekeeping of constitutional protection in order that politicians may keep the tax pendulum of this state swinging from year to year!

They'll never do it!
They will defeat it at the polls in 1924 by the biggest negative vote ever recorded on a constitutional amendment; and we be unto the politicians who think they can ram it down the throats of Georgians. They can't do it!

One week ago the warning was sounded, and this morning it was pointed out then that the house had reached that position, taunted from every side for failure to act, where the greatest danger rested in the possible passing of radical rather than constructive legislation.

Were the words not prophetic?
"Oh, well," will say some advocate of the bill that was passed, "we will fix exemptions and rates and prescribe the 'net' in the statutes."

But what of the legislature in 1925, or 1927, or 1929, or ad infinitum?
If the tax system of Georgia is to be statutory instead of constitutional, can't each succeeding legislature repeal, amend or otherwise abrogate and substitute any new laws it chooses for those in the statutes?

It may be "gross" one year, and "net" another. Who knows?
Any child knows that!
Then, who for one minute imagines that new industry is coming into the state to locate when any "net" income tax can be by a majority vote changed to a "gross" tax?

Or any exemption of $2,000 for a married man without children can be changed to $200?
Or any other exemption, or rate, or class or character, changed from year to year as it may suit the wills of politics, or the prejudices, or the passions or the interests of a controlling majority of legislators?

I have the highest respect for members of the general assembly—but they are human beings, just as I am, and as is every person who reads these lines.

There is no halo of glory that makes one incapable of error resting over any of the heads that I have seen; and I don't know of any more illustrious example of what may be expected of legislatures than the bill the house passed Tuesday evening.

Just read it, and think! That's all that is necessary!
It doesn't take a Philadelphia lawyer to know that if written into the constitution it would set Georgia back economically more than it has gained in a generation.

According to the statements on the floor, as reported in the press, the bill "net" was eliminated from the bill "on the grounds that if only net incomes were to be taxed the large corporations would so handle their statements that they would not show any net incomes at all."

That is an indictment that is unjust, unkind and libelous.
The corporation is as honest as the man behind it; and business today is largely conducted under corporate law.

The farmers, merchants, small millers—almost everybody who makes a living out of business incorporate that business.
And whether large or small, most of them are honest.

There should be tax revision in Georgia, but a thousand times better leave it alone than to tear down the safeguards of the constitution and throw the tax issue into the boiling pot of politics, to swing in its disturbing and menacing uncertainties from side to side as each annual legislature may will and direct.

The senate surely will see to it, in the interest of Georgia, that proper checks and balances be put onto this wholly radical and indefensible proposed amendment, as passed by the house.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, November 27.—The 18-year-old New York girl who was so touchingly "modern" minds who bob their hair in the manner of the sphinx-like beauties of Egypt seem far removed from the days when fainting was a real feminine accomplishment.

About the only thing of simplicity these days is in their dress. They are wearing no jewels and frocks are elegant snuffs. When the winds permit, they wear sandals. And rebel at everything. They do not care to have men escort them to theaters. They meet them in foyers and ask to go home alone—just to impress their independence upon male minds.

Their talk is daintily frank and there is just a touch of simplicity in the sophisticated and snobbish. They are old-fashioned and parents are a great annoyance. It is difficult to think their grandmothers once sat on horseback sofas embroidered the antimacassars and wouldn't go to the postoffice until the weather to get a fishing sheep at the star.

The most accomplished first night gallant since Diamond Jim is a tall, slender, arrogant fellow, who has plenty of money left by relatives, but who is a miser. He is garbed with ridiculous affectation and chooses the most auspicious moment for his entrance. He shows no interest in the play, although there are always a few on the stage who give him surreptitious bows, which he has secretly received with a shade of annoyance.

He is the captain of an old weather-beaten tub that touches New York harbor only once a year. He has been around the Horn on windjammers many times and felt the touch of the belayin' pin. He rarely is sober when his feet touch ground. His two brothers occupy important chairs in big eastern universities and his sister is a social light in an up-state city. He is the roving ambassador, but the sole support of an aged mother.

Captured Policeman

Is Forced To Drive Bandits To Freedom

Joplin, Mo., November 27.—A captured policeman was forced to drive to freedom four bandits who participated in the hold-up of the Bank of Asbury, at Asbury, Mo. The kidnapped officer was Clarence Allison, Joplin's motorcycle patrolman, who engaged the men singlehanded in a field near Crestline, Kan., only to be overpowered and made an instrument in their escape.

Several hours after the robbery, Allison came upon the quartet on a road near Crestline and opened fire. The bandits abandoned their motor car and took to a field. Allison headed his automobile into the field but it became mired and he continued the pursuit afoot, cut off three of the bandits and started marching toward the fourth. A gun pressed against his back and a command to "drop that gun" announced a rescue by the fourth bandit.

Returning to their car with Allison the bandits found the machine stalled and commandeered a car belonging to J. A. Lueck of Crestline, Kan. Allison was forced to drive the car south nearly to the Oklahoma line, where, under cover of darkness, he and the bandits escaped.

Approximately $1,200 was obtained by the bandits. Two bags of silver were left behind in their stalled car. A gun pressed against his back and a command to "drop that gun" announced a rescue by the fourth bandit.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE MYSTERIES OF HEALING.

Nearly every one wonders sometimes why minor cuts and abrasions heal quickly or well in this instance and slowly or only after prolonged feasting in that. I know why, of course. Anyway I have a theory about it—a theory which I hope will not be ridiculous.

My explanation of the quick healing in the one instance and the poor or slow healing in the other is very simple. But here it is—take it or leave it, as you please:

As I have said repeatedly, the healing of any sore or wound or ulcer does not on a certain normal rate when nature is unimpeded; no human power can appreciably hasten the process, and I am sure I am right, because this is pure elementary physiology, quick healing requires no further explanation; it is what happens naturally when the healing process is not interfered with.

Healing, under a policy of hands off—none, if such a policy were possible, would be precisely at the rate of growth. Until somebody discovers an agent which will hasten the healing of a wound or sore, all that even the most skillful care or treatment can accomplish is some approaching the ideal left alone.

What is the ideal? The ideal of policy or, in other words, that mode of treatment or that remedy which protects the sore or wound from misadventure, from harmful interference is the best first and last aid to healing.

The ideal to strive for in the care of a wound, cut, abrasion or other terrible wound is scientific neglect. Scientific means with knowledge. It means take expert knowledge and such as the trained physician, the pharmacist and surgeon has to gain the inestimable advantage of scientific neglect or, in treatment of any wound, trifling or severe.

MORE RARE JEWELS

FROM TOMB OF TUT IN CAIRO MUSEUM

Luxor, Egypt, November 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Six more showcases containing rare and beautiful treasures from Tutankhamen's tomb have just been added to the collection of seven cases already on display in the Cairo museum, giving visitors an admirable idea of the vastness of the eighteenth dynasty treasure.

Probably the finest piece in the collection, of which almost every object is a masterpiece, is the pharaoh's little jewel box of solid ivory, yellowed with age, with knobs, hinges and feet of solid gold, inscribed on the inside with the king's name and on the back with the lotus symbol of upper Egypt.

Also of interest are the king's scepter and a pair of golden shoes, with scenes inlaid in tiny golden granules, representing a process said to be unknown today, while the golden pendants, scarabs and beads are exquisitely carved.

There are a number of signet rings and amulets, and four torques of bronze and gold. In one of these holders the wick of twisted linen is still in position in the oil cup.

One of the cases contains a collection of the king's personal effects, including cups and vessels, the latter shaped like modern teapots.

CARTERSVILLE PROUD

OF LEGION HEAD HERE

Cartersville, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Captain J. Bennett Conyers, recently elected commander of the local post No. 1, American Legion, is a native of Cartersville, and a son of Mrs. N. Conyers, who lives here with her daughter, Mrs. William T. Townsend.

At the outbreak of the late war, Captain Conyers was among the first to enlist, and he has since been a member of the American Legion. He saw active service overseas, and has been a member of the legion since his return to Cartersville, later going to Atlanta, where he has a responsible position with one of the leading insurance companies.

His many friends in Cartersville are delighted to read of his ability to recognize by his "buddies" of the Atlanta post.

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY

NEAR CARTERSVILLE

Cartersville, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—After listening to an address by Charles E. McKendall, general industrial agent for the Seaboard Air Line railroad, the Cartersville Chamber of Commerce unanimously endorsed the proposal calling for an industrial survey of this district, which is to be made by Lockwood, Greene & Co., of Cleveland.

Under the proposal made by Mr. McKendall, the Seaboard proposes to pay half the cost of the survey, the other half to be raised locally.

J. W. Vaughan, president of the chamber of commerce, and Joseph S. Vaughan, leading business man, moved its endorsement.

After the survey is made, Mr. McKendall said, copies of the findings made by Lockwood, Greene & Co. will be sent to various sections of the country, with the idea of placing before the interested parties a clear picture of the facts they may count on as coming from an unbiased source.

THOMAS POULTRYMEN

TO HOLD 2-DAY SHOW

Thomasville, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—The third annual poultry show of the Thomas County Poultry association will be held in Thomasville Friday and Saturday, December 7 and 8.

Thomas county has some very fine chickens of various breeds, and they will be brought in from all sections for this exhibition. Not only chickens, but turkeys, ducks and geese will be entered at the show.

A number of prizes have been offered and the Commercial association and the Thomas county poultry men are taking great interest. Miss Elsie Means, the new county agent, has been very active in aiding the show project and interesting the interests of all sections of the county in making displays.

FARMERS ARE BUSY

WITH SYRUP MAKING

Arlington, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—For the past two weeks the farmers of this section have been busy making syrup, and the "cane grindings" have been a source of great pleasure to those who are fond of cane juice.

A fairly good sugar-cane crop was raised this year and the farmers are getting a good price for their syrup. 60 cents a gallon having been paid last year.

LOWER ARSENATE PRICE IS SOUGHT

The Georgia state board of entomology is now conducting negotiations with manufacturers in the hope of securing calcium arsenate, most essential ingredient in the war on the boll weevil, at a price between 10 and 12 cents per pound for the season of 1924. This statement is made in letters recently sent out by J. J. Brown, chairman of the board and commissioner of agriculture in answer to inquiries received by the board recently.

Earlier in the year the board contracted for a large supply of calcium arsenate at a price of 10 cents per pound, by a concern known as the National Gold Arsenic corporation. Now it develops there is doubt as to whether this concern will be able to live up to its contract. Owing to unforeseen difficulties in the financing of a manufacturing plant it contemplated to make the arsenate out of the arsenic ore, it appears unlikely that it will.

Southern Georgia Methodist Conference Opens With Board Meet in Savannah

Trinity church in Savannah, one of the older Methodist churches of Georgia, where the Southern Georgia conference is being held; it is the only "down-town" Methodist church in Savannah. It is on Barnard street, only a block from the main business street.

Savannah, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—The board of missions of which Dr. Bascom Anthony is president and Rev. Reese Griffin, of Moultrie, is secretary, dispatched a large amount of vital business today, preliminary to the formal opening of the session of the Southern Georgia Methodist Episcopal Church, South conference, Wednesday morning.

The following missions were discontinued, Osefield and Clearview in the Cordele district; Soperston and Mission, in the Dublin district; Bloomingdale, in the Savannah district; Eldorado, Remerton, and Statenville, in the Valdosta district; and Alma, in the Waycross district. New missions were created as follows: Adrian and Soperston missions in the Dublin district; Cross Keys and L. J. Zella, in the Macon district; Vidalia in the McKee district; and Nichols, in the Waycross. Seventy missions were recommended.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon, appeared before the body and made an appeal in behalf of a larger and more vigorous and aggressive campaign of evangelism. Rev. Osmond F. Cook, vineville, Macon, Rev. A. J. Jackson, of Tifton, and T. J. Jones, a layman from Adrian, were appointed on the missionary appropriations committee for the ensuing conference year.

Rev. J. C. Plender, presiding elder of the Waycross district, stated that his district is one hundred and forty-seven miles in length, by one hundred and twenty-five miles in breadth, and that the territory of the St. Marys and Kingsland charge covers sixty miles.

Rev. G. W. Matthews, of Fort Valley, made an excellent report of his work as missionary secretary of the conference. Rev. T. H. Thomson, of Brunswick, treasurer of the board of missions, read the report of the body showing that a grand total of $64,548.11 had been handled. Rev. Osmond F. Cook, in the absence of Dr. Bascom Anthony, who was attending the first session of the bishop's cabinet, at the DeSoto hotel, presided at the afternoon session. Excellent reports from the missionary evangelists were received.

The following young ministers were before the committee on applicants today applying for recommendation for admission on trial into the traveling connection of the conference: Revs. W. M. Hobbs, Ed. A. H. McKean, of Fitzgerald; Rev. M. P. Webb, of Dublin; Rev. L. M. Pillsbury, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Rev. J. A. Wiggins, and Arva C. Floyd, of Macon; Rev. Mack Anthony, of Gaston; Rev. E. S. Winn, of Lenoir; Rev. S. P. Smith, of Valdosta; and Rev. R. H. Moreland, of Chatsworth.

Recommendations Made. Rev. W. H. Budd, of Albany, was recommended late today by the board of missions for appointment by Bishop Ainsworth, as missionary secretary of the South Georgia conference, and Rev. G. W. Matthews, of Fort Valley, as secretary of stewardship. Rev. Matthews will accept a pastorate and attend to the duties of his secretaryship in connection with his pastoral work. Rev. C. B. McDaniel, of Atlanta, was recommended for appointment as one of the conference evangelists, and Rev. N. M. Lovein, of Macon, as evangelist for the Macon and American districts, and Rev. T. M. Luke, of Brunswick, as evangelist of the Waycross district, to succeed Rev. J. F. Clark, of Warehos, who will return to the work of the pastorate.

Lay Cornerstone. Savannah, Ga., November 27.—The corner stone of the St. Thomas Episcopal church at the Isle of Hope, the Rev. Frederick North-Tummon, priest in charge, was laid this afternoon at 4 o'clock, with appropriate ceremonies in which the address by the Rt. Rev. Frederick F. Reese, bishop of the diocese of Georgia, was a feature.

STRUCK BY AUTO. DALTON CITIZEN DIES OF INJURY. Dalton, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Walter S. Richardson, prominent lumber mill owner and operator of Dalton, died at a hospital here this morning from injuries received when he was struck Monday night by an automobile driven by Elbert Long, of Chattanooga. The car which struck him was one of several being driven through the country from Atlanta to a dealer in Chattanooga.

Mr. Richardson was a partner in the lumber firm of Strain & Richardson. He was a Mason and member of St. John's commandery, Knights Templars and a member of the First Methodist church, of Dalton.

He is survived by his wife; four sons, George Richardson, a student at Georgia Tech; Charles Swift, Frank Shumate and Walter S. Richardson, Jr.; one sister, Mrs. S. P. Maddox, and one brother, Roy Richardson, all of Dalton.

PREBYTERIAN FUND DRIVE IN SAVANNAH. Savannah, Ga., November 27.—Malcolm and J. B. Lockhart, with a team of other workers—five in all—are canvassing the Presbyterians of Savannah in the interest of the fund of $600,000 being raised for Davidson college, N. C., the college of the denomination backed by Georgia and the two Carolinas. Much success has been met by the workers; $300,000 of the amount has been pledged, mostly by North Carolina; $40,000 is asked of Atlanta, and $60,000 of the rest of the state.

McCord's Bulletin MY OWN SUBJECT. I am going to talk about coffee this time, and all who are not interested in the subject can browse on some other part of the paper.

They will miss something, for coffee is one of the most interesting things in the world, as well as one of the most refreshing. Millions live by it and hundreds of millions are cheered by it.

The making of good coffee begins on the plantation by selecting the proper site, at least 2,500 feet above sea level, with suitable climate and soil, to which costly equipment must be added for harvesting the crop.

The variety must be right and great care must be used at every stage of culture to get a good article. Having secured the right proportion of the best varieties to give the exquisite flavor and aroma which are the delight of coffee drinkers, the coffee roaster and blender must have an expensive equipment, with experienced and skillful operators.

With all these it takes infinite care and tireless vigilance to maintain a uniform standard of excellence. All this goes to make EMPIRE COFFEE, and after years of experience, without sparing pains or expense, we challenge anyone to show a better blend.

Great care is necessary to secure the best blend of coffee that can be sold at a popular price, and by such methods we have produced BLUE RIDGE COFFEE to retail at 25c per pound package.

The long continued and increasing demand for EMPIRE and BLUE RIDGE COFFEE, shipped in large quantities every day over a wide territory, is the best evidence of the truth of these statements.

DAWSON WILL HOLD SERVICES THURSDAY. Dawson, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Citizens of Dawson and vicinity are preparing to observe Thanksgiving in a fitting manner. Schools of the city will close Wednesday afternoon and remain closed until the following Monday morning, the Friday following Thanksgiving having been declared a holiday. Banks and business houses will remain closed all day Thursday.

Thursday night at the Baptist church a Thanksgiving service will be held, at which time Elder Virgil F. Agan, Primitive Baptist minister of LaGrange, will preach. This will be a union service and all denominations of the city have been invited to attend.

WOMEN INJURED IN JITNEY CRASH

Two persons were painfully injured and the lives of six others endangered late Tuesday afternoon when a crowded Luckie street jitney, driven by Edward McQuire, of 32 North McWilliams street, collided with a produce truck, driven by T. A. Shirley, of Ranger, at the intersection of Luckie and Harris streets.

Marshall Dean, 20, of 419 Luckie street, a student at Georgia Tech, was taken to Grady hospital with Mrs. W. H. Reinhardt, of 236 Hemp hill avenue, and Mrs. J. L. Loyd, of 149 Carrier street. Dean was badly bruised about the head and body, while Mrs. Reinhardt suffered bruises on her lower limbs. Grady attaches stated that Mrs. Loyd was not injured, other than being severely shaken up.

According to witnesses the truck was traveling toward town on Luckie street, and when Shirley attempted to make the turn into Harris street he struck the jitney, knocking it several feet upon the sidewalk. McQuire received several cuts about the face as a result of flying glass.

B. M. Shirley, of Ranger, a cousin of the driver of the truck, was also badly bruised and shaken up. Call Officers Henry Donohoo and Ed Arthur were detailed to the scene of the accident. Shirley was taken to police headquarters, where he was questioned by Police Captain A. J. Hoccombe. No cases have been made.

VETERAN CONDUCTOR IS DEAD IN ATHENS

Athens, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Funeral services for W. A. Clarke, aged 65, for 35 years a conductor on the Gainesville Midland railway, will be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning at the residence here, 245 Boulevard. He is survived by his wife; a son, Dr. W. A. Clarke, of Athens; and a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Shields of Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. Clarke was the brother-in-law of Sam G. Hunter, chief clerk for the Southern Bell Telephone company at Atlanta.

Nearly 300,000 more horses are in this country now than in 1905.

FIVE TECH STARS WILL PLAY LAST GAME ON THURSDAY

One Practice Day Remains Before Annual Turkey Day Classic With Auburn Tiger

Practice today, the game tomorrow, and then, five of the Tech players will go through. It kind of hurts when you come to the end of the road. There is the love of the game and the intimate association with the players that are left behind. But worst of all is the realization that you are soon to join the ranks of the has-beens, and commence to talk about what your team did when you went to Tech.

The old guard that fades from the picture after Thanksgiving Day is composed of Captain McIntyre, Alterna Captain Frye, Pinky Hunt, Red Fleetwood and John Staton. The boys come from various and sundry places on this old globe, no two coming from the same town. John McIntyre is from Pine Bluff, Ark. Claire Frye is from Oklahoma City, Okla. "Pinky" Hunt is from Hodge, La. Red Fleetwood and John Staton are Georgia boys, the former being from Savannah, the latter from Atlanta.

It is significant to note that four of the five are linemen, Hunt being the only backfield man in the group. Claire and Fleetwood play center. John McIntyre a guard, and Staton an end. Apparently, their loss will leave a big space in the line. But it will be filled, and adequately too. There is always some one to fill the places of those departed.

Played Under Heisman.
Most of the fellows came to Tech in the last year of the Heisman regime, and have been under Coach Alexander ever since his election to head coach in 1920. Playing football together for four or five years binds boys closer than any ordinary relationship.

The scrubs put in their last day of work yesterday. Each man on that squad knows that the glory of the big games will not be his, each man knows that he is doomed to end his starring in the mid-week scrimmage. They all know that they're nothing more than varsity fodder. Yet, they come out each afternoon promptly, and keep rigorous training.

And, a scrub team is indispensable. The varsity is developed by continually pounding on the scrubs. The scrubs learn the plays of the opposition in order to give the varsity plenty of defensive practice against the plays which the opposing team is to use in the match games on Saturday. They don't get any individual publicity, they don't get anything but hard knocks and work. Yet, they're in there fighting all the time.

As a rule, a man can't make good on the varsity until he has put in his apprenticeship on the scrubs. Claire Frye had to do it, John McIntyre had to do it, so did Felton McConnell, George Jerry Albright, and a host of others who are starring for Tech this year. These men are among the very best to be found anywhere, not only on the Tech team but elsewhere.

At the beginning of the afternoon, Coach Clay called his men together, and they executed several plays off the line divide for the benefit of the varsity. It was a dummy drill with both teams lining up in regular position. Through this sort of practice, the varsity is able to get an idea of how to set on defense in order to effectively stop the line divide.

Give Cheer for Coaches.

That being over, the scrubs ganged together in one part of the field with all their heads close. Soon, from their midst, a roaring cheer went up for Kid Clay, their coach and friend. This was followed by similar shouts for Coach Alex and then the whole coaching staff. They ended up with a rousing cheer for the varsity, and then beat it for the showers. The varsity answered their tribute with a cheer for the scrubs.

Then it set in for a snappy signal drill. It was, incidentally, one of the best of the season. Pep was flowing freely, the men were concentrating on the plays, and best of all, each man was charging his hardest on each play. If they can go into the game on Thursday like they went into the signal drill, then look out Auburn.

All during the afternoon the band lined up on the side of the field and played "Ramblin' Wreck" and all the war songs. It sounded mighty good to the men, especially to those who

MOVE IS MADE TO PROHIBIT RACING

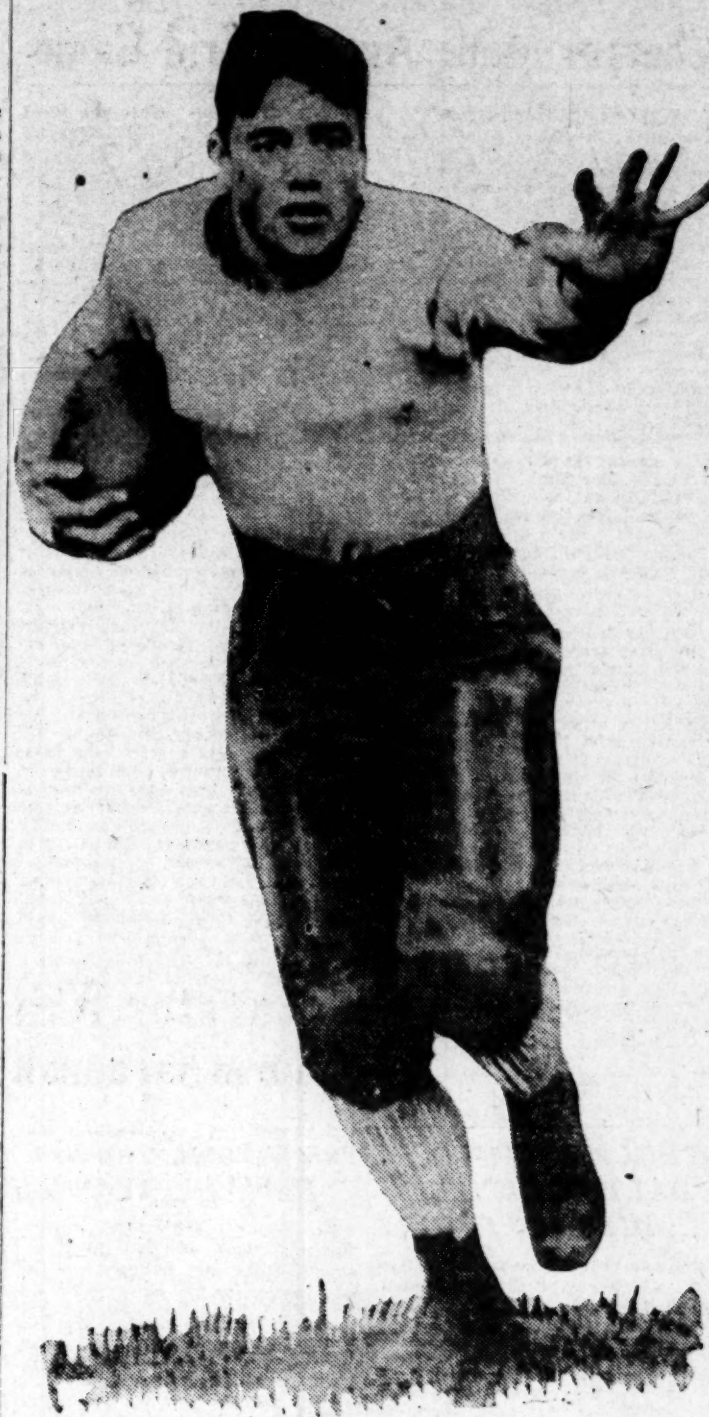

New Orleans, November 27.—There will be no racing at the fair grounds track here this season if an ordinance introduced in commission council today by Commissioner of Finance Richard Murphy is adopted at the council meeting next Tuesday. The Business Men's Racing association, owner and operator of the track, owes the city approximately $30,000 and the city wants its money. Commissioner Murphy's ordinance would repeal the permit of the association to conduct racing at the track and a canvass conducted today indicated the ordinance would be passed by a 4 to 1 vote.

MANY ENTRIES FOR ANNUAL RACE.

New Orleans, November 27.—Twenty-five nominations for the $3,500 Thanksgiving day handicap, the feature of the opening day's program at Jefferson Park here, were made public today and at least a dozen horses are expected to parade to the post. Present indications point to a lightning fast track and should that be the case the field probably would consist of 15 starters, the limit set by track officials. The nominations follow:

Bradley's Tony, Brunel, Best Pal, Baracuda, Clough Jordan, Delante, Dustabout, Lady Madcap, Makeup, Ramo, Sogarth, Aaron, Tender Seth, New Market, Pathan, Belzoni, Wrangle, Radio, Child's Play Romany, Berewyck, Revenge, Cherry Tree, Dr. Clark, Prince of Umbria, John Finn.

Can the Tiger Stop Him?

Doug Wycoff, Tech's mainstay in the backfield, who will be in excellent shape when he faces the Auburn Tigers in the annual tilt between the schools on Thanksgiving Day. Doug has been the outstanding star on the Tech squad this year along with John Staton. He is certain of all-southern honors.

North Carolina Points To Game With Virginia

BY ROBERT W. MADRY.

Chapel Hill, N. C., November 27.—On a crisp Thanksgiving Day in Richmond in the year 1916, one big Bill Folger, halfback of the University of North Carolina varsity, managed somehow to get around one of the Virginia winners and when he brought himself to a halt he had gone 52 yards down the field and across Virginia's goal line, enabling Carolina to win for the first time in ten years. Folger's immortal run seems to have thrown off the jinx that in the years from 1905-1916 had apparently held the Tar Heels at bay when time and again they sent good teams to Richmond and victory seemed certain.

As proof of which it may be cited that since 1916 Carolina has dropped only one game to the Orange and Blue, that of 1920 at Charlottesville. On the night of that memorable battle, after the smoke had cleared away, the athletic moguls of Carolina and Virginia held a conclave and decided that it was high time the home folks were getting the full benefit of those classics. Hence the contests since then have alternated between Chapel Hill and Charlottesville.

Games Postponed.
Due to the war, there were no games in 1917 and 1918. Carolina won in 1919. Virginia took the scalp in 1920, but for the last two years the Tar Heels have won. All the games since 1916, however, dopsters should note, have been won by close margins. Next Thursday the two ancient rivals, whose gridiron relations have extended over a period of thirty-one years, meet for the twenty-eighth time.

Advance dope, statistics and comparative scores are always at a discount in these games, for the two teams fight to the last ditch. In all those twenty-eight years Carolina won only seven times, although the Tar Heels have put up a bitter fight year in and year out and their followers, admiring their dogged determination to win, have steadily increased.

If comparative scores and statistics must be taken seriously, however, let it be said they indicate a nip and tuck battle is to be expected in this village next Thursday. Carolina beat Trinity 14-6 in Durham on October 12. Two weeks later, in Charlottesville, Virginia defeated the Methodists 33-0. Carolina held V. M. I. to a 9 to 0 score in Richmond, November 10. Three weeks later, Virginia led to V. M. I. 35-0. Maryland defeated the Tar Heels 14-0 at College Park, Md., on October 27. V. P. I. defeated Maryland 16 to 7 on October 19. Last Saturday V. P. I. licked Virginia 6 to 3.

Virginia undoubtedly has the best backfield. In weight it averages 160 pounds as compared with 155 pounds for the Tar Heels. In the line both average 175 pounds, although Carolina's line is considered the stronger of the two.

Riverside Will Play Richmond

BY FRANK C. GILREATH, JR.

Gainesville, Ga., November 27.—While most eyes on Thanksgiving Day will turn to the gridiron contests of the larger colleges, interest will not be lessened in at least one prep school battle over the pickin'. This is the game between Riverside Military Academy of Gainesville and Richmond Academy of Augusta, which will be played at Augusta.

A year ago Riverside defeated the Richmond boys but it does not necessarily mean that victory will perch upon its banners on Thursday; in fact, the Riverside team is somewhat less confident in view of a material change in the aggregation since last year.

Only three men of last year's varsity have returned, hence there is a team of practically all new faces. Coach Bunting found it a most difficult task to pick a winning team with but three old players as a nucleus, but he has put the boys through daily practice and believes he has succeeded in making the most of his material. "Mutt" Riddle, veteran end and halfback, whose spectacular playing this season has elicited frequent comment, is now on the injured list with a sprained shoulder received in Friday's scrimmage. Whether he will be able to resume his position on the team in time for the game with Richmond Academy, is not yet known, but the indications are that he will be sufficiently recovered to play.

Another new man who deserves much credit for his work is Bethea, and although this is his first attempt at football, the big auburn-headed youth has been highly praised for his performance at tackle.

Although no official announcement has been made as to who will start the game for Riverside on Thanksgiving at Augusta, the probable line-up will be as follows:

Riddle and Brishola, ends; Huff and Bethea, tackles; Moore and Forsyth, guards; Winford or Bahnsen, center; Merritt or Holt, quarter; Bray and Harris, halves; Vaden, fullback.

SET DATE FOR SKATING CHAMPIONSHIP RACE

New York, November 27.—The national amateur speed skating championship will be held at Saranac Lake, N. Y., February 14, 15 and 16, and the international championship at Lake Placid, N. Y., February 19, 20 and 21, according to announcement tonight by Joseph K. Savage, president of the International Skating Union.

Harry Kasky, of Chicago, is the present national amateur titleholder, while the international ice king is Charles Jewtraw, of Lake Placid.

PETRELS ARE READY FOR 'NOOGA

BY BILL MORROW.

Bringing to a close one of the hardest schedules attempted by an institution of its size, the Oglethorpe Petrels will show for the last time this season in Chattanooga, Thanksgiving, against the University of Chattanooga eleven. In their schedule of encounters, the Petrels have met some of the leading forces of the south and their exhibitions against great odds have been commendable.

The Petrels are doped to defeat the Chattanooga forces. After having been the under team in the betting the Stormy Birds have the edge in this coming classic and unless something unexpected happens in the Turkey day fracas, the Peachtree Road institution should celebrate another victory. Not that the Petrels will have an easy afternoon in stopping the rival backs, but the Oglethorpe crew seems to have struck its right stride lately and it is doubtful that the Chattanooga defense will be able to stop Mr. Adrian Maurel, Gordy and Company.

The Petrel grid players will leave this morning for the scene of their final battle of the season and with them will go the coaches, Robertson and Brown, football manager "Rich" Martin and also a squad of cinder enthusiasts. Besides the grid affair, the Chattanooga lads will also be the hosts in a little cross country run covering approximately three miles and the Oglethorpe crew is anxious to snatch a victory in this department from the home athletes.

Injuries Are Scarce.

The Petrels are ready for their final invasion and with only a few injuries in their ranks will be able to put a strong combination on the field to tussle the customary sixty minutes against the Chattanooga representatives. Several of the Petrel's mainstays are on the injured list but these vacant positions will either be filled by capable substitutes or the wounded regulars will step in for their last display for the '23 season.

When the Oglethorpe-Chattanooga fracas is a matter of history, several Oglethorpe players will have turned in their uniforms for good after having played their allotted number of years under the Gold and Black standards. The Oglethorpe cause will lose the services of Ed David, Jake Morris, "Rube" Bartlett, Campbell, "Mutt" Stephens, and "Pac" Whitehead—a number of athletes that have more than done their part for the Oglethorpe cause, a group that have seen the athletic name of the Stormy Birds rise from practical obscurity to a position that is respected by the leading elevens of the south.

Centenary, though winning over the plucky little Petrels here last Saturday, accomplished a long list of injuries besides the two touchdowns and extra points after touchdown margin that spelled defeat for Coach Robertson's claim. "Bo" McMillin's bunch of modern Goliaths must have evidently played a little too rough and found the Oglethorpe crew very boisterous in the affair of Saturday afternoon.

Officials Will Complete All Arrangements Today; Many Riders Are Entered

Today will be the last time that entry blanks will be received for the fourth annual motorcycle endurance run to be held Thanksgiving Day. The event will be sponsored by the Atlanta Constitution and those wishing to enter can get in touch with any member of the Atlanta Motorcycle club, before 6 o'clock tonight.

Many of the members of the club will be busy all day making the necessary plans for the holding of the race on Thursday. According to the latest plans the endurance race will start from the Constitution building at 4 o'clock Thursday morning and barring any accidents the first racer should check in at the same place not later than 8 o'clock Thursday night.

The checking lists have been sent out to the checkers named in the various towns along the roadway and all of those connected with the race, announce everything in readiness.

Maffett Is Referee.

H. A. Maffett has been named as the referee of the fourth annual motorcycle endurance run and will start "Burt" Butterick off at 4 o'clock as the first rider to leave the city. Butterick is an old endurance runner and probably holds the record in the number entered and he was chosen as the first rider to leave on the long jaunt. Others will follow in short order.

The starting order of the racers does not make any difference in the final awarding of the prizes for riders given a perfect score when they leave the Constitution building. As they check in at the checking places the record is kept clean and on through the day and the rider that checks in every place on the exact minute will return with a perfect score. One point is deducted every time a rider reaches a checker ahead of time, or late, and also points are deducted for those riders that get off the official course.

Placards have been placed on posts all along the course and there should be no excuse for riders going off on the wrong road. Official checkers will help those in doubt as to the road ahead.

Johnny Balmer, southern Harley Davidson motorcycle representative, arrived in the city from Augusta Tuesday morning and immediately set about making the final adjustments on his Harley, Harry Glenn, southern representative of the Indian, was busy Tuesday helping many of the race entrants that will ride Indians during the race.

The Harley-Davidson Motorcycle company also had a busy day Tuesday making ready for the race tomorrow. The Harley-Davidson Motorcycle company will enter a team in the race and will also have a team entered from Columbus, Ga. The team has not been named as yet but "Burt" Butterick will be one of the Harley team members.

Others will follow in short order.

As they check in at the checking places the record is kept clean and on through the day and the rider that checks in every place on the exact minute will return with a perfect score. One point is deducted every time a rider reaches a checker ahead of time, or late, and also points are deducted for those riders that get off the official course.

Placards have been placed on posts all along the course and there should be no excuse for riders going off on the wrong road. Official checkers will help those in doubt as to the road ahead.

Johnny Balmer, southern Harley Davidson motorcycle representative, arrived in the city from Augusta Tuesday morning and immediately set about making the final adjustments on his Harley, Harry Glenn, southern representative of the Indian, was busy Tuesday helping many of the race entrants that will ride Indians during the race.

The Harley-Davidson Motorcycle company also had a busy day Tuesday making ready for the race tomorrow. The Harley-Davidson Motorcycle company will enter a team in the race and will also have a team entered from Columbus, Ga. The team has not been named as yet but "Burt" Butterick will be one of the Harley team members.

Others will follow in short order.

FLOWERS AND ROBINSON BATTLE FIERCELY TO DRAW

Good Card Is Staged In Auditorium Ring; Avera Whips Murphy

BY PAUL WARWICK.

Boxing commission or no boxing commission, for the present—in the fight Tuesday night between George Robinson, hero of Boston's night life, and Tiger Flowers, local battler who has originally from the Marshes of Glynn, there was nothing shady except the color of the participants.

Atlanta customers are accustomed to seeing Tiger weave his chili-bean-colored form in and out of the guard of visiting colored lads, inflicting a deal of snappy punishment, seldom receiving any punishment himself. He was considerably Tuesday night, he landed a quantity of blows—but received a vast quantity of thumps for his own consumption.

This boy George Robinson wore a puzzled look for the first six rounds and was content to do much backing about and covering up to elude the lightning left and right which the Tiger slung at him from every conceivable angle. But along about the seventh round he began to figure out the southpaw stance of Flowers and to batter the carcass and face of the local dark boy with tremendous regularity. So regularly did he smite Tiger, in fact, that it was the whirlwind first rounds of Flowers and a slam-bang five-and-take attitude in the final periods that allowed Tiger to achieve a draw.

A Fast Fight.

The Atlanta eight-ball probably landed more punches than the ginger cake from the Charles river, but the Postonian has more power behind his slaps, and besides, was not being hurt by the licks in the degree that his were wounding Flowers.

In the ninth round Tiger began to lose use of his right optic. In the tenth round Tiger's eye was closed so tight it couldn't have been opened with an eye-opener. He stayed shut, and this morning when Walk Miller turns over to Flowers his share of the mighty good gate—Tiger will probably have to count to nine one eye.

Tiger never let go of his old habit of leading when possible, however, with the probable exception of the seventh round, when Robinson awoke to the realization that he had to do some tall hustling to get a draw and therefore plowed into Flowers with demoralized vim.

Vinson's Vaccinated Wing.

The entire card was worth visiting, except one scrap, which would never have been waged if the boxing commission had been functioning properly. Sailor Vinson stepped into the ring with Irish Paddy Olin, alias Pledger, and sought to do battle. But the fact had over-estimated the power of a right arm that had recently been vaccinated and was consequently forced to see the fight called off in the fourth round.

Larry Avera, who has trained himself to better condition than had been expected for his attempted comeback, won a decision over Mike Murphy in ten rounds of semi-final fighting. It was a good battle, but had Murphy pressed his advantage more energetically on several occasions, if he had led more instead of waiting for Larry to waste in, the story would have been otherwise.

Reagan and Collins.

Following this was a six-round melee (twist Benny Reagan and Young Collins. Cy Young called the fight a draw, and if it were not for the fact that Cy Young used to fight a bit himself and is still probably in better condition than we are—we would dare assert that Benny really won the match. Collins has created considerable favorable comment for a light and very young fighter, but his steam was somewhat equalled and bettered by Reagan's showing.

Still, come to think about it, our future happiness didn't depend on that decision so much after all, so we'll let it stand.

It was a nice evening of fist-fighting, taken all in all, and one which will assure the boxing commission of financial support, at least, when it gets going good. Wonder what a regulated fight's going to look like, anyway?

Senate Passes More Seats Go Boxing Com. Law On Sale at Tech

If the Georgia house of representatives concurs in the amendment to the general tax act, passed by the senate, to create a state boxing commission, the rules of the New York commission will be followed in the organization of the board here.

Work for the creation of the commission in Georgia shortly after the McTigue-Stirling fight, in Columbus, was begun and the movement was endorsed by Representative Dykes, of Dooley, and other lawmakers. The fight in Columbus and others held in the state were cited by some as indicative of the need of a board of control for all boxing matches.

The amendment passed by the senate today would create the commission, with three members, appointed by the governor, one of whom would be chairman-secretary. The chairman-secretary would be the executive member of the commission and would draw a salary fixed by the other two members. The other members would serve without compensation.

A ten per cent tax on the gross receipts of all boxing matches would be levied under the amendment. The commission would grant licenses to fighters and promoters and would supervise all matches. A fee would be charged for the licenses and all fighters examined before being permitted to enter the ring.

YALE STUDENTS' ACTIONS ARE CRITICIZED

New Haven, Conn., November 27.—The Yale News today calls the action of Yale men in tearing down the posts in the stadium Saturday after the football victory "bad manners."

It says: "Complete wreckage of Harvard's football fixture seemed somewhat dramatic, though the wonder was that after the lean years the sons of Eli did not attempt to remove the stadium itself."

"For the destruction of the goal posts there was some excuse. To drag down the Harvard colors from the union and other places was excessively bad mannered. Apologies are due to a university which played, as it always plays, hard and cleanly against heavy odds and then took defeat splendidly."

In many of the modern banks only one type of vault door is used, this being the so-called plug door, which is shaped like a cork.

Boys' Hi and Tech Hi in Annual Clash Today

SEASON ENDS IN EAST ON THURSDAY

New York, November 27.—Four games between more or less prominent teams and a number of farewell brawls between schools in the secondary football class, Thanksgiving day, will wind up the greatest of all football seasons in the east.

The undefeated Cornell team, which has not even been tied, and whose supporters claim for it a share of the championship generally awarded to Yale, will play the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. The time was when the Cornell game was a glorious finale for Penn, with Cornell a pitiful victim; but the positions are reversed as the hour of the kick-off now approaches. Penn is not conceded a chance to win and the team was ripped apart last week in a desperate effort of Coach Lou Young to assemble a team of men who, if they can't lay star football, at least can be counted on to make a fight.

Dartmouth, which beat Harvard but spoiled a great record by losing to Cornell, plays Columbia in New York. The Pittsburgh Panthers, in their last game under Pop Warner who goes to California next year, will play their favorite rivals, Penn State. State has by far the better record, but Pitt has been improving in the last weeks of the season.

And at Morgantown, West Virginia, the West Virginia Mountaineers, whose worst showing was a tie with Penn State, will meet Washington and Jefferson in the ultimate culmination of a successful season.

Everywhere in the east this year the sporting atmosphere has been saturated with football interest, and the crowds at the big games were limited only by the generous capacities of the amphitheatres. Maryland, Brown, Dartmouth, Syracuse and St. John's, of Brooklyn, a secondary school which was not defeated, all distinguished their names.

Only Cornell and Yale have been undefeated and untied in this part of the country.

TO MAKE SEEDED DRAWS IN NET TOURNEYS

London, November 27.—Seeded draws will probably be made for all future lawn tennis championship tournaments at Wimbledon. This system of scattering star players through the various sections of the draw to prevent one topnotcher from being put out of the tournament by another in the early rounds, was approved by the council of the lawn tennis association.

Last summer the best two players in the championships were conceded by everyone to be the Americans, William M. Johnston and Vincent Richards. In the final but by the luck of the blind draw they were put in the same half and Johnston eliminated Richards in the third round.

At 12 o'clock Thursday, at the office on the corner of North avenue and Fowler street, 1,000 standing room tickets on the south side of the field will be placed on sale. Purchasers of these tickets will be admitted to the stands as soon as the tickets are secured.

Athletic association officials announced Tuesday night that they thought that these additional tickets would take care of the heavy demand, and urged that no one purchase tickets from speculators or scalpers.

MACON IS AFTER BIG ATHLETIC CONTESTS

Macon, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Dr. J. B. Crosshaw, of Georgia Tech, and Dr. S. V. Sanford, of the University of Georgia, were today invited to attend a membership meeting of the Macon chamber of commerce, which will be held December 4.

The occasion will be a joint meeting of the chamber of commerce and the various civic clubs of the city to discuss the plans for a municipal stadium and the bringing to Macon of outstanding athletic contests.

A feature of the meeting will be an address by Fred N. Shepherd, executive manager of the American Bankers' association, and a former director of the United States chamber of commerce.

House Peters, who has the leading role in the Metro production of "Hell to Answer," entertained some of his friends at a Sunday chicken dinner a week ago. The dinner was to all intents a great success, but the next day Mr. Peters called at his usual market.

Former Football Stars Answer Charges Made Against Grid Game

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, November 27.—The football dummies charged out from behind their desks in New York and other cities Monday and boosted Dr. Stewart Paton, of Princeton University, for a goal from the 90-yard line.

Doctor Paton is the lecturer on neuro-biology, who recently found the affairs of his own department in such tidy order that he had time to denounce the institution of football as it is today in the big schools.

His latest was the statement Sunday night that if football was not abated, students would go out into the world with football on the brain and never would rise above the mental level of football.

In a random selection of old football names once famous at Harvard, Yale and Princeton, it appeared that the football dummy is not altogether deplorable when you consider him in his studies. Football men realize that they are prominent in school and the result is that most of them set a fine standard of conduct.

Walter Wheeler, Harvard captain in '16, and Billy Robinson, quarterback of the same team, are citizens doing well in New York, who don't have to ask the corner policeman the way home. Red Genert, center of Princeton for three years up to '16, and Hack McTraw, his teammate, have virtually assured themselves by now that they will not have to become night watchmen on the docks in their old age.

There are some great football men who failed of success in business or professional life, but old varsity men discussing the thing could only recall the names of two, offhand. One drinks too much. The other just can't make the grade.

Aldrich is the only Yale man ever touted by a Harvard team, and at his time at school was spoken of at Harvard as "an ideal for Harvard men."

Mack is in the real estate business in New York. His friends did not care to say he had made his million so soon, for he is still a young fellow, only a couple of years out of school. But he hasn't been seen around the soup kitchens.

Charles Telf, who spent four years of his boyhood in the white house and three autumns on the Yale varsity, is a lawyer in Cincinnati. The last word of him by the Yale Alumni Weekly was that he was prospering, and might soon be a candidate for an important office. He hadn't bought a new city hat, but he hadn't stolen the old one, either.

Julian Curtis is vice president of the biggest sporting goods firm in America, the E. J. Corey Company, an executive of the Bankers' Trust company. Nelson Talbot, captain in '14, is a financier in Dayton, Ohio. Ed Glass, whose football day was 25 years ago, is something important with the Stanley Steel company in New Britain, Conn. The great tackle Cincinnati a year ago, who enough insurance to buy gas for his own car, anyway.

Cupid Black, fullback of the last great team at Yale before the great team of 1923, also sells insurance, but naturally less is heard from him in that field than was heard of him in the striped award of new Haven, Cambridge and Princeton.

Have Made Good.

Chester La Roche, quarterback of the '16 champions, an advertising man in one of the biggest publishing houses in America, said there were no big three varsity football men that he knew of wasting their time in the bush leagues of professional baseball, but a few were coaching football teams.

"They are not only making good money at it," La Roche said, "but they're making mighty good men. I'm for football. It certainly can't harm a man to teach him to play hard and fair. As for the overwhelming interest in football, the best argument is that a man can't play unless he qualifies in his studies. Football men realize that they are prominent in school and the result is that most of them set a fine standard of conduct."

There are some great football men who failed of success in business or professional life, but old varsity men discussing the thing could only recall the names of two, offhand. One drinks too much. The other just can't make the grade.

Rochester Will Train in Savannah

Savannah, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—The chairman of the executive committee of the athletic association of the Savannah High school which recently leased the Fairview athletic grounds and ball park, announced today that arrangements had been perfected by which both the Rochester International league ball team and the Scranton, Pa., team will train in Savannah next spring. Georgia Stallings is manager of the Rochester team.

Offered Manager's Job.

Minneapolis, Minn., November 27.—Joe Cantillon, veteran manager of the Minneapolis American association baseball club, has been offered the management of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league, according to word received here. Cantillon will be replaced at Minneapolis next year by Mike Kelly, of St. Paul, who has purchased a controlling interest in the local team.

FIRPO PLANS TO RETURN SOON

New York, November 27.—Luis Angel "Firpo" expects to return to the United States next year with "five hundred per cent more pep" and capture "for his beloved country" the world's heavyweight title he almost knocked from Jack Dempsey's head last September at the Polo grounds.

This declaration was contained today in a cablegram received by Tex Rickard from the Argentine heavyweight, who, despite charges since returning to Buenos Aires that he was not accorded justice in the Dempsey fight by the State Athletic commission, conveyed his respects to the commission and its chairman, William Muldoon.

Firpo's cablegram follows: "Heartiest regards from my home country. My left arm is improving continuously and I am sure I will be able next summer to beat all the stars of the heavyweight class. Will have five hundred per cent more pep and conquer heavyweight championship for my beloved country. Give my respects to Muldoon and the boxing commission."

DEMPSEY FACING A BUSY WINTER

New York, November 27.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will have a busy winter and spring, but his activities are more likely to be before the footlights than in the ring. Plans for his campaign in his beloved country. Give my respects to Muldoon and the boxing commission."

Reynolds declared he was ready to sign for a return match with Luis Firpo and also will be ready to listen to proposals for bouts with Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight, or Jack Renault, Canadian contender, but said he was more interested now in several stage and exhibition offers. Reynolds also has under consideration another visit to Europe.

Both Elevens Will Enter The Contest on Even Basis; Field in Bad Condition

This afternoon at 2 o'clock out on Spiller's field prep football will reach its supreme height in what is probably the last battle between two of the oldest rivals in the state, Boys' High and Tech High.

These two schools have been fighting it out on the grid, diamond, basketball and tennis courts, almost since time immemorial. The greatest rivalry is on the gridiron, however, and if the football team of either institution turns in a win over the other, the athletic year is a settled success.

For the past three years, dope has pointed strongly to the Smithies to take the game by a large score, and although all three games were close, one a 3 to 0 affair, and contained all the fight and dash of the traditional Boys' High-Tech High battles, the Purple and White elevens kept their head above the water by sheer fight and nerve.

The field is drying but slowly from Monday's drenching, and little puddles of water are still standing in the middle of the gridiron. This will slow the game up considerably, and in all probability the team getting the breaks will come out on top. This is usually the case anyhow, but the water and mud will serve to make it even more a matter of good fortune.

At present there is not a single field in the city with a stand to accommodate the crowds, with the exception of Grant Field, and that is of course unavailable Wednesday because both the Tech and Auburn elevens will be holding a final workout there for their annual battle Thursday.

Spillers is bound to be crowded this afternoon so everyone wishing to see the battle from anything like a decent bit of standing room, will have to be on hand before time. The officials announced that the game was to get under way promptly at 2 o'clock.

All the players on both elevens are in the best of condition, and in spite of the short rest and single practice since the games of last week.

Tech High is going to be short two good linemen today, both McDavid and Goldsmith being out. The places of these stellar forwards has been filled by O'Bear and McConnell, however, and the line is not expected to be weakened materially. Tech High will have the weight on the Purple team considerably, but Boys' High hopes to make up for that with speed.

Thomason, a sure bet for all prep honors, will have to be watched very closely this afternoon, and it will not do to give O'Neil or Van Houten too much slack.

Boys' High has lost three good players in Palmer, Miel, and Waite. True, none of these men have played since the Griffin battle, but their services are still missed and they would be especially useful this afternoon. As far as that goes, both teams will need all and more than they have. Butler has been shifted to fill one of the holes, and Noyes has been sent back to his guard from end. McClellan will take care of the vacant flank.

Hill, the other veteran who has played some at end, is back at half, and the new backfield consists of Hearn, Rieger, Hill and Butler. As to the method of attack each team is expected to use, little is known.

Last year the Smithie line outweighed the Gilmerite forwards considerably, and it was naturally supposed that Boys' High would have to resort to the air route around the ends, but it developed that the majority of its first downs were made on off tackle plays and line bucks. Therefore, it is only a matter of guesswork to try to figure the probable method of attack of either eleven.

GEORGIA WILL ATTEMPT COMEBACK AGAINST CENTRE

Bulldogs' Team Will Resume Practice Today After Rest; Team Hampered by Injuries

BY WALTER G. COOPER, JR.

Athens, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—As the final of a long and arduous schedule, Georgia will meet the Centre College Saturday in Athens. Fortunate it is that this game is set for Sanford Field, for only one of the important games to date has been played on the Bulldogs' own stadium ground. It comes at a time, too, when the support of the student body and friendly civilians is sorely needed.

Resting again today, the Bulldogs are letting time play a leading role in making a comeback possible. The two recent reverses have been due mostly to the fagged condition of the men, so it is high time that they be given a chance to breathe a while some other atmosphere beside that of the gridiron. Actual injuries are more general than scale except in the cases of Thompson, Kilpatrick and Fletcher. These three consistent performers will probably be unable to display their best football until another season.

Tomorrow the practice will be resumed, the final touches will be added, and the team will be drilled in the plan of campaign against the undefeated gridironers of the Blue Grass state. It will be a final desperate effort to right "the good ship Georgia," give it a rudder, put the driving engines in order, and place an able pilot in command.

The next and last opponents of Georgia are the dreaded Centre College, as yet unbeaten and just now traveling at a rapid pace. The only direct standards of comparison are the games Oglethorpe and Auburn have played both teams. The Petrels in the second battle of the fall held the Bulldogs to a two-touchdown margin.

TIGERS HOLD FINAL PRACTICE AT AUBURN.

BY EMMETT SIVEMORE.

Auburn, Ala., November 27.—Tuesday afternoon saw the curtain drop on football practice on Drake field for the 1923 season. The Tiger varsity, weary from a long signal drill, which made up their final "ay's" program on the Plains, closed out their training and preparations prior to their annual engagement with the Golden Tornado, which will be staged at Grant Field in Atlanta Thanksgiving day.

No doubt, as the Tiger gridmen wended their way toward the gymnasium, they had a feeling of relief to know that their last efforts at training on their home playground had been spent and that only two days hence their football togethery would be carried to the storerooms until next September. Probably the "heaviest burdens borne by that stalwart crew as they journeyed from their training quarters were the thoughts of their gigantic task of turning back the stormy gales of the Tech Tornado. These weighty cargoes will doubtless cling with the invading Plainsmen during the drizzly, suspenseful moments intervening before the blasts from the referee's whistle send the two teams together in mighty conflict Thursday afternoon.

Monday afternoon the Tiger team went through a short signal drill in a sea of mud after a heavy rain that lasted through the day. Tuesday was devoted to the same kind of work with some attention being given to work on formations. One team used the whole afternoon in signal work while another was busily engaged with a dummy scrimmage with the scrub teams who were exhibiting a but against the fast flying Colonels they emerged the loser in a one sided affair that ended with a score of 20 to 0. Here the dope is decidedly in favor of the Kentuckians.

Bulldogs Win 7 to 0.

Auburn and Georgia battled desperately and evenly with the result that the more alert Bulldogs won by the customary 7 to 0 score. Later in Birmingham the Plainsmen were turned back by the Colonels with a 17 to 0 score.

In this battle Centre didn't use a single one of the open formations that made her famous, but instead launched a terrific smashing line offensive that crushed even the powerful line of Auburn. Again the dope favors Centre, and more especially because the Bulldogs were at their best when they conquered Auburn, but are now far from the top of their game.

Every other indirect standard of comparison proves that the past record of the Colonels is more impressive than that of the Bulldogs. The long and severe grind that the Georgians have gone through since the very opening game has battered their first string men until they can stand little more. Lacking the reserve force necessary for such a titanic undertaking as their schedule, they couldn't do the impossible. The outcome of Saturday's battle is largely a question of how much the overworked Bulldogs return to normal.

When they are normal, they have one of the very best eleven in this section, but when their first string men become disabled and overtaxed, there are no others just as good to replace them. Saturday the crippled Bulldogs should show much more drive than they have in the past two weeks.

replica of some formations said to have been used by the Alexander team during the year. Both defensive and offensive reproductions were being gone through with by the Shirling scrubs.

Ford Is Improved.

The condition of the squad on the eve of its departure for the Georgia capital appeared fairly good. Ford, who after being out all of last week, was lining up at fullback his second time since the Centre game. The coaches expressed themselves as being hopeful of the big fullback getting into the Tech fracas. Ford's injury is indeed a blow to Auburn's hopes. While there are others, such as Reese and Howe, who have done some fine work at full back in the past, the combination of Ford and the backfield is badly needed in the concluding game of the season with the Jackets.

Huckabe, the big lineman who received a severe sprained ankle in the Centre clash will not be able to display his crutches for the coming game. "Huck," as he is known about the campus, possesses plenty of weight and fight and has been relied on a number of times this fall to strengthen the forward line of attack the numerous "Charley horses" and minor bruises that were evident in goodly numbers following the game with the Kentucky Colonels have been worked out and the remainder of the team seems to be in fair condition on leaving the Plains for the scene of battle.

After three successive victories for the Gold and White of Georgia Tech and with odds favoring a fourth Tech victory the Plainsmen, the players and coaches, as well as the two thousand students and townspeople supporters are mindful of the great task that now looms up at short range with its mountainous proportions as the Thanksgiving classic approaches.

The Auburn Tiger will carry to the historic Grant field, the scene of many a noble and gallant fight, the same never die spirit and with a determination to throw entire whole resources into the concluding conflict.

Great Pep Meeting Held.

A great pep meeting was held in the Wake Forest To Meet Carolina

Wake Forest, N. C., November 27. (Special.)—Undisputed holders of second honors in the state by virtue of the decisive victory over Hartwell's Wolfpack on Saturday, Wake Forest football players today began preparing for their Turkey day game with South Carolina in Columbia. The game will end the season for Garrity's Demon Deacons.

Saturday's decisive victory over North Carolina State gave Wake Forest her fifth victory in seven contests. Only Carolina and Florida have taken the measure of the Deacons. The Carolina game opened the season and in the Florida game, Garrity's men put up an exhibition that won south-wide recognition. Guilford, Lynchburg, Davidson, Trinity, Elon and North Carolina State have been defeated.

Was Well Coached.

The victory Saturday was the demonstration of the power of science and training in football. Garrity sent a machine to the field, while State sent eleven players. The difference of the two teams could be seen even in catching punts or attempting the forward pass. Wake Forest men doing the job with sureness and State doing the job fumblingly.

Garrity's men went into the State game in better physical condition than in any game since the Davidson campaign. The difference was in the catching punts or attempting the forward pass. Wake Forest men doing the job with sureness and State doing the job fumblingly.

No further scrimmaging practice will be held this year. Garrity announced Monday. The practice on the first afternoon consisted in work intended to eradicate the stiffness resulting from the Saturday contest.

MANY CLUBS ARE AFTER SERVICES OF SHOCKER

St. Louis, November 27.—Every club in the American league, with the exception of Chicago and Detroit, has lines out for Urban Shocker, star twirler of the Browns, it was learned today.

Philadelphia has offered a pitcher and a third baseman and Boston has offered a pitcher and first baseman for the local moundman.

Shocker has an application pending before Commissioner Landis for a hearing to be declared a free agent. He is disgruntled with his local berth because of his suspension last season for failure to accompany the team east after being denied permission to take his wife on the trip.

Fighters Matched.

New Orleans, November 27.—Max Baer, Brooklyn, light heavyweight, of promise, has been matched to meet Tommy O'Brien, of Milwaukee, in a 15-round bout here Monday night.

Plainsmen's village Monday night and the spirit back of the exhibition by the student followers is at a peak, a fitting climax before the final play Thursday afternoon concludes the season. Numerous speakers were on hand at the spirited assemblage, presided over by Cheer Leader Bill Wood, to speak to the crowds. The addresses were short but straight to the point in dealing with the Tigers' turkey day objective. Among those who were heard were Coach John Pitts, Dr. B. B. Ross, Will Patterson, who had journeyed on from Montgomery to be present on the occasion; Irving Patrick, popular Plainsmen editor, and others.

The team headed by Captain "Rip" Reagan will leave Auburn on Wednesday morning, arriving in Atlanta in time for a light workout Wednesday afternoon.

A football special will leave the Plains Thursday morning that will carry the hundreds of students and supporters to the ringside of the great battle. The student body will be headed by the Auburn band and ad- ticks student ticket sales indicate that the largest student contingent from Auburn to see a game this season will be on hand for the game.

V. M. I. CADETS ARE WORKING HARD FOR V. P. I. CONTEST

Lexington, Va., November 26.—Every cadet in the V. M. I. corps is counting the minutes to the time on Thanksgiving day when the Flying Squadron and the V. P. I. Gobblers will meet on the gridiron for the twenty-second time since the memorable series started back in 1894.

With the memory of other defeats when V. M. I. was apparently slated to win, the corps as a whole is by no means confident of victory. But the Flying Squadron has come through an unusually heavy schedule with the loss of only the Georgia Tech game the margin of a field goal, and Cadet supporters are hoping that after Thursday their team will still be in the lead for sectional honors.

Coaches "Blandy" and "Bill" put their charges through a stiff half-hour scrimmage Saturday, and this marks the last of the rough work for the year. The varsity players emerged from the battle with the scrubs in good physical condition. The program up to and including Wednesday will consist mainly of practice in perfecting the new plays put in by the coaches since the Tennessee game. And everybody on Alumni field is determined to be loaded for the Gobblers when Referee Tom Thorp signals that the season is open.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shinholser entertained at a buffet supper Tuesday evening at their home in East North Avenue following the wedding rehearsal of Miss Mary Shinholser and Dr. J. M. Brooker, of Atlanta, S. C., whose marriage will be an interesting social event, of this evening, taking place at 6 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church.

The reception rooms were decorated with a profusion of pink roses and mimosas.

The table in the dining room was overlaid with a cover of filet and adorned in the center by a tall silver vase filled with pink roses surrounded by silver candlesticks holding unshaded pink tapers.

Mrs. Shinholser was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. H. L. Flynn, Mrs. Ward Albertson, Mrs. J. M. Reeves and Mrs. T. J. Delamater.

The hostess received her guests wearing a handsome gown of black lace.

Miss Shinholser wore a gown of castor-colored lace combined with chiffon of the same shade.

The guest list included the members of the bridal party and a few close friends.

Party Is Entertained at Supper

Miss Lucy Terrell and Charles Frederick Winburn, whose marriage will take place this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the First Christian church, were guests of honor at an informal buffet supper, Tuesday evening, given by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Foster Terrell at their home in Inman Park following the wedding rehearsal.

A profusion of long-stem yellow chrysanthemums, artistically arranged in vases and baskets, decorated the reception rooms. A large silver basket filled with these same lovely flowers formed the central decoration of the table in the dining room. Silver candlesticks holding unshaded yellow tapers were placed at intervals.

Mrs. Terrell was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. A. E. Wynn, Mrs. William Arnold and Mrs. E. J. Smith. The hostess wore a gown of black charmeuse.

Miss Terrell was gowned in gray crepe with touches of rose-colored velvet.

The members of the bridal party formed the guest list.

Miss Mary Carroll
Is Complimented.

Miss Mary Carroll was the lovely guest at a bridge-ten at which her aunt, Mrs. Robert Crumley was hostess Tuesday afternoon at her home in Ansley Park.

The attractive rooms were decorated with vases and baskets of chrysanthemums in varying shades. Beautiful hand made pin cushions were awarded as first and second prizes. The consolation was a bridge novelty.

The tea table was adorned in the center with a golden crystal basket filled with yellow chrysanthemums. The color note of yellow prevailed in the other appointments.

Mrs. Crumley was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Clifford Carroll, Mrs. James Love and Miss Dorothy Morris, of East Orange, N. J.

The guests were Mrs. Love, Mrs. Clifford Carroll, Mrs. Sanders Hickey, Mrs. Irene Campbell, Mrs. Hugh Inman, Jr., Mrs. Robert Oldknow, Mrs. Joseph McCord, Jr., Mrs. Richard Hawick, Mrs. Milton Riley, Mrs. Play Holt, Miss Louise Nelson, Miss Yellie Moxley, Miss Sammie Nixon, Miss Jennie Robinson, Miss Pauline DeGree, Miss Sue Bucknell, Miss Margaret E. Whiteford Ave. P.-T. A.
Hold Open House.

The Whiteford Avenue P.-T. A. employed an "open house" day recently. Many mothers visited the school and watched the work done in the various grades.

The Rev. F. B. Crantford spoke to the children in their classes and again to the assembled school.

As this was education week his subject was the value of an education, and his talk was both interesting and instructive.

"Look here," he said with some vigor, "when I order poultry from you again I don't want you to send me any of those airplane chickens."

"What kind do you mean sir?"

"The sort that are all wings and no meat."

"Held to Answer," adapted by Winifred Dunn from Peter Clark. "Ligers" jaws and teeth easily crush the large bones of a buffalo and the striped animal can break a horse's back with one blow of his forepaw."

Miss Gladys Donaldson Weds Mr. Donaldson at Church

A beautiful autumn wedding of interest to a host of friends was that of Miss Gladys Donaldson and Earle Ray Donaldson, which was solemnized Tuesday evening at the Buckhead Baptist church, the pastor, Rev. W. J. D. Upshaw, officiating.

Handsome Decorations.
The church was elaborately decorated with smilax, palms and ferns. Against the background of green were baskets of white chrysanthemums and candelabra burning white tapers. A program of appropriate wedding music was played before and during the ceremony by Miss Leona Wood and Roy Liddell, assisted by Paul Crutchfield.

First to enter were twelve young girls, friends of the bride, who sang the bridal chorus. They wore gowns of white georgette crepe and carried white candles.

Next came the ushers, Rudolph Schneider, Calhoun Minchener, Tom Donaldson and Jasper Donaldson. Following the ushers were the bridesmaids, Misses Ethel Minor and Grace Lettew. Their gowns were fashioned of chiffon in the pastel shades veiling cloth of silver. The bodies reflected the battens neckline and the skirts were made bouffant. Miss Lettew wore orchid chiffon, fashioned over silver metal cloth, and carried an arm-bouquet of pink rosebuds. Miss Minor was gowned in green chiffon over silver metal cloth and her bouquet was of pink rosebuds.

The junior bridesmaids, Misses Mortine and Vivian Donaldson, sisters of the bride, were lovely in exquisite frocks of orchid and pink chiffon. They carried shower bouquets of pink rosebuds.

Miss Lottie Donaldson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a beautiful costume of blue chiffon handsomely beaded and fashioned over silver cloth. She carried an arm-bouquet of Ophelia roses tied with pink tulle.

The little ringbearer, Johnny Akin, nephew of the groom, wore a suit of white satin and carried the ring in a box.

The little flower girls, Sara Joyce Cunningham and Helen Kay, entered together, wearing pink and blue chiffon frocks fashioned alike. They carried baskets filled with rosebuds tied with pink tulle.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father, J. S. Donaldson, with whom she entered, and was met by the groom and his best man, Arthur Harber, at the altar.

Lovely Bride.
The lovely bride was beautiful in her wedding gown of white chiffon fashioned over white satin. Her veil was of tulle, worn in coronet fashion, beaded in pearls and crystals, and was adjusted to her hair with a wreath of orange blossoms. The train of white satin fell from her shoulders in graceful lines. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies.

The bride and groom will be at home to their friends after January 1 at 48 East Twelfth street.

Free Lectures at Hotel Ansley.

A series of instructive and helpful lectures have been arranged for the Atlanta Psychological society for the month of December and will be given for four consecutive Sundays in the mahogany room of the Ansley hotel. Memorial Body Holds Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Memorial association was held at Edison hall on Friday afternoon, November 23. Mrs. William F. Williams, first vice president, presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. William A. Wright. Mrs. Wright was prevented from attending the meeting on account of the critical illness of her sister, Mrs. Tuggle. This was Mrs. Wright's first absence since she was made president upon the death of Mrs. W. D. Ellis. A resolution of sympathy was sent Mrs. Wright by the association.

Mrs. Edward H. Barnes, representing Mrs. Sam D. Jones, president of the War Mothers, thanked the association for the memorial wreath placed by Mrs. Wright on the monument at Pershing Point at the annual memorial services of the War Mothers.

Additional subscriptions were announced for the Stone Mountain Memorial and the Jefferson Davis Monument funds.

Announcement was made of an elaborate play to be given by the Junior Memorial association in December.

Camp Rally At Y. W. C. A.

The Camp Highland rally that is to be held at the Y. W. C. A. Peachtree Arcade, Saturday night at 8 o'clock, is planned to interest every Atlanta girl who has ever visited the camp. Two playlets will feature the evening's program. Refreshments will be served and the girls will enjoy a typical camp reunion. The first playlet is in two acts and is entitled "Marianne Moore." The cast includes Misses Elizabeth Speer, Mary Glenn, Olive Hall and Leonard Anderson.

The second playlet has three acts with the scene laid at Camp Highland in 1830. The title is "It's A Girl." According to those who have witnessed rehearsals "the girl" will forecast her as she will be in style and manner at Camp Highland in 1930. The cast includes Misses Nell Walhall, Katherine Fischer, Ray Knight, Cora Martin, Edith Walhall, Mary Anderson, Ena Hoelinger, Louise Cawthon, Mildred Kelly, Margaret Bockeler, Adole Anderson, Louise Walker, Elizabeth Speer and Grace Miss. Miss Leonora Anderson and Miss Olive Hall collaborated in writing the playlets.

Miss Rosa Ponselle Will Be Guest of Mr. and Mrs. Halle

Miss Rosa Ponselle, beautiful grand opera star, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera company, a social and musical favorite in Atlanta, will arrive today to visit Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Halle, at their home in the Pallas apartments, on Peachtree road.

Miss Ponselle will be extensively entertained during her visit by her many friends made during her former visits here with the Metropolitan Opera company.

Mr. and Mrs. Halle will compliment her with a dinner-party this evening. She will be the central figure in a party at the Thanksgiving dinner-dance, Thursday evening, at the Capital City club.

Miss Ponselle has just completed a most successful concert tour in Cuba and is en route to New York.

Ban Urged on Christmas Holly.

The farmers of the municipal curb market are requested not to cut or sell holly during the holidays, according to Mrs. Norman Sharp, chairman of the market committee of the Atlanta Woman's club. Mrs. Sharp states that a number of organizations have made this request through her to the farmers of Georgia.

Among others having made this request of the farmers are Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the City Federation of Women's clubs, the Atlanta Woman's club and the young ladies of the Young Women's Christian association. The reason which brought about this request is that the forests are rapidly becoming denuded, as far as these beautiful evergreens are concerned, and a movement has begun to preserve the beauty of the forests.

As material for interior decorations, the farmers are requested to supply the housewives for the holiday season, lovely wheat-grass, pine burs, cat-tails, poke berries and other decorative berries, which will answer the purpose just as well and at the same time will give the holly tree a chance to regain its former beauty and luxuriance.

This also furnishes the farmers' wives with an opportunity to assist the city housekeeper in making her home more beautiful for the Yuletide season, where nature can not so abundantly provide the decorations just outside the homekeeper's door. Every woman is urged to visit the city market this week and take advantage of the opportunity to do their own Thanksgiving shopping where everything is fresh, fine and crisp from the farmers' gardens.

Mrs. Hancock Will Give Astrology Lecture.

The regular lecture on astrology will be given this evening by Mrs. Marie Louise Hancock at 7 o'clock, 303 Grand building.

The subject of the lecture will be the planet "Mercury," the planet which, in the constitution of man, represents the thinker, the incarnating ego, the soul, the link between spirit and matter, the messenger between the divine within and the personality. Thus will be shown the duality in the planet's influence, according to whether the mind is turned outward reflecting the activities of matter or turned inward, reflecting the activities of the spirit. In the higher phase the planet becomes the symbol of divine wisdom, bringing the at-onement between God and man, and awakening into activity the faculty of spiritual vision. The public is cordially invited to attend.

School of Democracy Comes To Successful Close Tuesday

J. J. BROWN DELIVERS ADDRESS

The School of Democracy, conducted under the direction of Mrs. Halsey W. Wilson, director of education of the democratic national committee, came to a successful close Tuesday evening after a two days' session, with three meetings a day. J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, was the principal speaker on the program and presented as his subject "The Farmer's Distress and Labor's Interest."

The afternoon session was featured by an address by Mrs. Thornton Lee Brown, national organizer of the democratic national committee, who spoke on club organization. Mrs. Brown, whose home is in Joplin, Mo., has been prominently identified with the civic welfare and activities of her native city for many years. She has been closely associated with the League of Women Voters in its school work, and has campaigned and organized democratic clubs.

Awakened to Need.
She first became interested in civic work when she entered her child in public school and was made to realize the need along educational lines. Since that time she has led in the fight for free textbooks, for a new clubhouse in her home city and for other needed improvements.

"I have always been a democrat."

said Mrs. Brown, but I never realized just the fine difference between the two parties until, in recent years, I heard representatives of the two parties talk on the same program. The democratic speaker always talked on 'principles,' while the republican orator always flayed Woodrow Wilson and made limitless promises regarding what his party would do for the soldiers."

Mrs. Wilson addressed the morning session on the subject of "Old Principles and New Problems." This was followed by an open forum for the discussion of the subject at which time many extemporaneous speeches were made by the women in attendance.

A discussion of the technique of the speech featured each of the meetings Tuesday.

School a Success.
Mrs. Kate Green Hess, chairman of the school, expressed entire satisfaction at the result. "We have planted the seed for a wonderful movement which I believe will germinate and spread over the entire state. We have gained a knowledge of the true essence of democracy and with that knowledge has come a spirit of cooperation which will express itself in the service our women will render the democratic men in 1924 in the campaign for a democratic president."

Jane Hedden Hat Pattern

No. 8-719.

Flat apples are made in velvet or duvety to resemble the brim of this roller sailor. Russian green for the hat with almond green apples and leaves, African brocade for the hat with beige for apples and leaves, or wine color for the hat and beauty for the flowers and leaves make handsome color combinations. The girl who makes this hat has a hat with all the finish of a French creation at a fourth the cost of one. The shape is particularly designed to suit the face with a wide oval. The soft roll and trimming is very becoming to this type.

Mrs. C. T. Pottinger Elected President of G. H. S. Alumnae

Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger was unanimously elected president of the Girls' High School Alumnae association Tuesday afternoon at a call meeting of the executive board of the association for this purpose. Mrs. Pottinger will fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Joseph Boyd, formerly Miss Jessie Reynolds, who has recently gone to Albany, Ga., to reside.

Mrs. Pottinger was before her marriage Miss Jessie Thompson and is one of the most popular and beautiful young women who has ever attended the Girls' High school. She is one of Atlanta's prominent young matrons and is an active member of the junior league, having served as an officer of that organization and leading her efforts to all the charities sponsored by the league.

STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

An Anonymous Tribute.

Madelon lifted startled eyes to Ann, after a glance at the lovely folds of chiffon across her arm.

She wondered if Ann had taken leave of her senses to be showing her Barbara's frocks at such a time.

But Ann had slipped her hand into the lace of the negligee, and sought

The latter accepted it wonderingly. "Open it!" Ann's face was grim.

Madelon did so. It was quite empty.

"Yesterday afternoon," said Ann quietly, "that box was full. At 4 o'clock, Barbara herself showed it to me. There were at least a dozen tablets in it then."

Her startled eyes met Ann's.

"You don't think—"

"The contents of the box are nowhere in this house . . . This is the negligee she wore when I saw her yesterday. She was still wearing it when they found her this morning."

"Do I think, you ask? . . . My dear, I know."

"But why?" faltered Madelon.

"Why should she do a thing like that?"

"She was very unhappy, much more unhappy than she let any of us suspect."

"Does Uncle Stephen know?"

Ann shook her head.

"I doubt it. He may suspect, but he speaks quite calmly about her heart. The doctor is an old family friend and can be trusted. He was very fond of Barbara and very sorry for her. What would be the use of stirring up trouble, suspicion, publicity, now that it is too late? No, I think that Dr. Grant has kept Barbara's secret as you and I must keep it."

Poor unhappy Barbara had been laid to rest and the household once more returned to its narrow groove, before Madelon broached the subject of her return to Boston.

Lane met it with stubborn disapproval. He could no longer quite forbid her going—marriage had done that much toward securing her freedom—but he insisted in no uncertain terms that her persistence was hardly repayment for all he had done for her prior to the time when she had left his guardianship.

But Madelon had no thought of weakening. Her freedom was too dear to her. Perhaps if he had exhibited some real need of her, her determination might have flagged. But he had once more become his old grim, hard self. The glimpse of him, softened, made more kindly by the presence of death had been only momentary.

To Ann, however, he seemed strangely changed. He had sent for her immediately upon the discovery of Barbara's death. He had turned to her frequently during the sorrowful days that followed. The maternal in her yearned over him; he was like some naughty little boy who becomes tractable when he is badly hurt or frightened.

He asked her to accompany him to the cemetery on the Sunday following Barbara's interment. They took flowers, great beautiful white roses from the Lane conservatory. At the gate they met Duane Farley.

He stopped and offered his condolences. It was the first time Ann had seen him in many months. He had not come to the funeral. She recalled the letter she had posted for Barbara—the last letter she had ever written.

What had been Barbara's farewell to Farley? She looked after him as he passed on.

Did he still love Madelon? Was it too late for them to find happiness together?

When they reached the Lane plot, there was a great, fresh cluster of violets laid carefully at the foot of the marble shaft, under which Barbara slept her last sleep.

Lane looked at Ann inquiringly. She shrugged, disclaiming all knowledge of their origin, but in her heart she knew that they were a tribute from Duane Farley.

On the following day, Madelon received the letter which Barbara had written her on the last afternoon of her life. It had been forwarded by her maid.

She tore it open with the queer chill that accompanies an epistle penned by a dead hand.

When she had read it through, she sat staring into space.

It was as though Barbara's still life hand had reached up from the grave and closed the door to her freedom.

Casual Comments

BY LOUISE DOOLY

"ATLANTA stands out to me as one place in the south above all others which I must see and know more of before I go back home," a Pittsburgh man was heard to say recently in a group of visitors here in Asheville for the winter.

Atlanta's clearing house figures for the past month, which had far exceeded those of New Orleans and Richmond, had just been quoted by an Atlanta; also the splendid fact that Atlanta had gone $19,000 over her Community Chest allotment, and the other proud circumstance that there had been one Atlanta man generous enough to agree, had there been a deficit to cover it.

"I like the way Atlanta people talk about their city," the Pittsburgh man continued. "When they boast, they produce the figures to back up what they say. I have been spending many months in Florida, and your city's spirit reminds me of Miami."

"Everybody knows the marvelous growth of Miami, but it isn't mushroom growth. Her people, when they advertise, have a substantial city and real values to back up their talk. Atlanta sounds genuinely prosperous to me and interesting, too. I shall certainly see Atlanta before I return to Pittsburgh."

A FORMER Atlanta man has in charge one of Asheville's big projects for December. James Alderson, now for a year organizer at Grove Park Inn, is impresario as well as director for the Christmas season production of "The Messiah," which is to enlist several hundred local singers and a group of artist soloists.

It will be put on in the great hall that forms the lobby and reception room of Grove Park Inn. Atlanta people who know that wonderful room, which is built of the native rock in all its crude massiveness, and is like nothing else so much as a "hall of mountain kings," will perceive the importance of the possibilities as a setting for the inspiring ensembles of the Mendelssohn oratorio. The Asheville Music club, with Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt and E. L. Seely as co-patrons, are back of the movement to present this Mendelssohn masterpiece. An admission fee will be charged, to go to the new Biltmore hospital.

The real purpose of the undertaking, however, is not money-making. Asheville is a city which finds its prosperity and growth largely on its tourist business, winter and summer, and the production of this great Christmas feast of music is a part of that necessary provision of high-class diversion desired by the kind of people Asheville would tempt to spend their winters here, or their summers.

In a limited way, this oratorio will feed Asheville's better appetites, just as Atlanta's symphony orchestra is nourishing the good taste of Atlanta and the guests within her gates, as well as furnishing a very fine advertisement to offset Georgia's famous, or more correctly speaking, infamous tax on grand opera.

It was another indication of Asheville's good judgment about public entertainment, and the quality it should have and yet pay expenses, that the Kiwanians, in order to add to their education fund (one of their good works is the education of an Asheville girl for the concert stage) should have selected for raising this fund a concert by the distinguished American tenor, Edward Johnson, of the Chicago Opera company. The house was full, thus insuring a nice sum for the scholarship fund. More than this, the people who heard Mr. Johnson pleased themselves mightily in enjoyment while their ticket money went to another good cause in addition to the young tenor.

Mr. Johnson's voice, a lyric tenor, is robust, musical, skilfully handled, and so capable of injection into the real spirit of a Don Jose of "Carmen," for instance, as to make one very glad that his name is Edward Johnson and not Tito Barano or such like. "Apropos of Don Jose, the singer's two arias from opera—the other was from Giordano's "Andrea Chénier"—proved that Mr. Johnson's true meter at present is opera. He overacted his arias a bit more than strict concert taste would prompt, but that could be ex-used him since he sang so well. The less eventful things Mr. Johnson does not yet infuse with the highest art of the recitalist—this art is one of an absolutism that is different from the emotional abandon permissible of—in fact, necessary to—the true spirit of the operatic aria.

It was rather strange that Mr. Johnson's enunciation of his French and Italian things was better than his English. More of the text of his French songs was intelligible than of the songs in his own language, and a very limited knowledge of Italian suggested a similar condition as to the Italian songs. I believe, if memory does not trick me, that Mr. Johnson gained most of his voice training and knowledge of repertoire, as well as his first reputation in opera, in Italy. These two things, therefore, the romance languages better than ours, and his experience in opera has been almost totally in languages other than English. These two things probably form the explanation. But the day is passing when a song recital before an American audience can get away with poor enunciation of English, even those singers who belong to countries that are not English speaking. The funny part is that the foreign singers have been quicker as a rule to perceive this and live up to it than many American singers.

I WONDER if Atlanta singers, or those coming to Atlanta in concert, have been doing any of the Frank Bridge songs. This British composer happens to be in this country just now, and has been conducting works of his own symphony and chamber concerts in the music centers of the east. Mr. Johnson sang Mr. Bridge's "Love Went a-Riding," which in its fullness of content, both as to background and accompaniment, and sweeping force of the vocal part, accentuated by a spontaneity of spirit to which Mr. Johnson did justice, that it might be compared against the average concert song or ballad, with the piano concerto, in all its usual brilliance, as opposed to a nocturne. It was distinctly interesting.

TO go back to Atlanta people: When they move to another city they usually take with them their habit of doing constructive things. There is Mrs. Edward King, who was Miss Virginia Bowman, of Atlanta. She has lived in Asheville only since her marriage in May, and she has had a busy time since she came here, being made much of socially. But she has been content with that alone. On the contrary, she has aligned herself in the work of getting rid of illiteracy in what is now her home town and county. Her immediate work is the inauguration and directorship of a newspaper for and by the foreigners who are pupils in the night school, which is the city work of Buncombe county's program for eradicating adult illiteracy. This is her winter program. For next summer she has plans for co-ordinating various welfare agencies in the interest of the children of the rural districts who are patients of the public health clinics in their orthopedic work. This will include as one of its first activities the bringing of books within the reach of these children and the provision of story tellers while the children wait. The clinics are held as a rule in the courthouse and the school, and a whole world of imagination, Mrs. King believes, can be opened up to these isolated little folks through the same books that bring great happiness to the more fortunate boys and girls in touch with city libraries.

Mrs. Clark Gives Birthday Party.
Mrs. J. Homer Clark entertained at a party Monday afternoon at her home on East avenue in celebration of the sixth birthday of her son, J. Homer, Jr.
In the dining room the lovely appointed table was covered with a lace cloth and had for a centerpiece a large white birthday cake holding six lighted pink candles. Interesting games were enjoyed by the little guests.

W. A. Cochran Host At Birthday Party.

W. A. Cochran entertained quite a group of friends Sunday, November 25, at his home on Sunset avenue, in honor of his 60th birthday. The living room and dining room were decorated with ferns and chrysanthemums and in the center of the dining table was a beautiful cake covered with 60 pink and white candles. An elaborate dinner was served at 6 o'clock and fruit, candy and punch were served throughout the evening.

Assisting Mr. Cochran in entertaining were his daughters and sons Mrs. Bonnie Gordon, Miss Affie Cochran and Fletcher, Guy, Johnnie, E. M. Rush and Hoke Cochran.

The invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Haygood, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Dempsey, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Patten, Mrs. Corn Patton, Mrs. M. E. Barrett, Mrs. Elizabeth Sims and Mrs. C. Bell, Misses Mamie Cochran, Lura Denham, Claudine and Gladys Welch, Kate Thrash, Mildred Sims, Eugenia Whitlock, Kathryn Rouemore, Mrs. Stella Chambers, C. F. Hinton, R. W. Wheeler, A. N. Motes, J. M. Colley, A. J. Jackson, D. L. Wyley, Steve Cochran, Mildred Cochran, J. A. Howes, A. A. Fowler, J. E. Fowler, H. S. Lewis.

Kentucky Club Meets Tuesday.

Mrs. M. Ashby Jones was hostess to the members of the Kentucky club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Piedmont avenue. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Clarence Williamson, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Abner Hord.

Mrs. Guy T. Woodford was chairman of the program which included a reading by Mrs. William F. Minnich, address, "Kentucky Artists," by Miss Nell Van Hook; a group of songs by Miss Louise Mahoney.

A social hour was enjoyed following the meeting. The officers of the Kentucky club are Mrs. Abner Hord, president; Mrs. C. L. Williamson, first vice president; Mrs. Frank Woodruff, second vice president; Mrs. W. F. Minnich, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence Williamson, recording secretary; and Mrs. W. H. Wilson, corresponding secretary.

Miss Adler To Wed Mr. Ackerland.

Savannah, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Adler, of Savannah, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elsie, to Mr. Thomas Ackerland, son of Mrs. Max Ackerland, of New York city, formerly of Cincinnati.

Miss Adler is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adler and has been extremely popular in social and welfare work in Savannah. She was especially prominent in Red Cross motor corps activity during the war.

Mr. Adler is one of the leading merchants, bankers and manufacturers of the section. Mr. Ackerland is prominent socially and in club life in New York, a graduate of Harvard, and is a member of the firm of Tompkins, Neely & Ackerland. He was an officer in the navy in the world war.

Miss Erma Fischer Honors Miss Tennent.

Another lovely compliment to Miss Emma Stacy Tennent, whose marriage to Ashley Bernard Haght, which takes place on Thanksgiving day, was the party given recently by Miss Erma Fischer at her home on Myrtle street. The house was beautifully decorated.

The top prize was a set of iridescent desk vases, the consolation a perfume novelty, and the honor guest was presented with a pair of silk hose.

After the game a delicious salad course was served. The hostess was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Johanna Fischer. Sixteen friends of the honoree were invited.

Entertains.

Pi Lambda Delta.

The members and wives of the Theta Delta Chi alumni, of Atlanta, were delightfully entertained at a dinner given in their honor by the Pi Lambda Delta fraternity of Georgia Tech at their home on Peachtree street.

The dining room was attractively draped in gold and white, while the living room and reception hall were draped in chestnut gold. Vases and jars of ferns were artistically arranged and completed the beautiful setting.

Those invited were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Giblin, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gottschmidt, and J. W. Henderson.

Hostesses at Bridge At Fort McPherson.

Miss Elida E. Raffensperger and Miss Elizabeth McClellan were joint hostesses at a bridge party Tuesday afternoon at their quarters at Fort McPherson.

Bowls of white and crimson chrysanthemums, ferns and autumn leaves were lavishly used in the decorations.

The top score prize was won by Mrs. Robert Lytle, and the second by Mrs. J. I. Lowery, Sr.

Those invited were Mrs. R. S. Porter, Mrs. James Regan, Mrs. Robert Lytle, Mrs. J. I. Lowery, Sr., Mrs. H. S. Parnell, Mrs. J. I. Lowery, Jr., and Mrs. Walsh.

The Lady of Pentlands

As she was finishing her coffee another warning tap struck the door panel, and Anne strolled in, wearing a negligee whose transparency dimmed the beauty of the morning. Valerie combined a pang of sympathy for her friend with the reflection that henceforth Anne must really take her colors in smaller doses. Anne approached the fire and spread her thin hands to the blaze with a at the brilliant sunshine, she sighed again, not so luxuriously.

"I suppose they'll have us skating an hour from now," she remarked without enthusiasm. Soon after Betty's arrival Anne had ceased to be an outdoor woman.

"Yes," Valerie obediently agreed; "won't it be fun?"

"For those who like it I suppose it will," Anne stilled a yawn. "Probably I shall need both Perry and B. G. to hold me up. I haven't skated half a dozen times in as many years. Did you sleep well?" she asked abruptly.

"Very well, indeed. Did you?"

"Yes."

Anne appeared to have achieved the object of her visit, whatever it was. She drifted toward the door, leaving a trail of color after her like a fading sunset.

"I didn't bring any skating shoes," she mournfully observed as she went, but that won't let me off. B. G. will have some. He always does. Pentlands is like a department store. He will take us into the gun room and fit us out. I don't know why he calls it the gun room," she ended disconsolately, as she crossed the threshold. "I suppose it used to be that years ago. There aren't any guns there now, but there is everything else you ever heard of. Betty's most earnest prayer is to be taken there some day and left alone."

She nodded, closed the door and disappeared. Valerie began to dress, choosing the short, heavy sport suit and high, thick soled boots, which she had packed with an eye to country walks. They would serve admirably for skating. She had a strong disinclination to borrow garments of any kind from her host. Moreover, as a sophisticated traveler she had brought to Pentlands a wardrobe that would suffice for all ordinary occasions. Her black suit was rather somber, but it gained a few high lights from a black fur scarf and a fur trimmed coat that she secretly proclaimed their home as Paris.

She was ready before Anne's hostess was up. She threw her windows wide to the outer air, put the protective brass fender around the still blazing fire, for she had no desire to burn out her host, and started for the library with a vague notion of browsing among her books till the men came in.

Just outside of Anne's door she was checked by a procession. It consisted of three children and two nurses, but it had all the effect of an army with banners. At sight of her firm lines wavered, a familiar face flashed from its ranks, and something detached itself and grasped her knee. Betty, unperturbed almost out of recognition in ulster, leggings, rubbers and tan, was ready for a morning walk, but was dutifully bent on seeing her mother first. She did the honors of the occasion with careless grace.

"Hello, Aunt Valerie. This is Genevieve, an' she's a bad, wicked little girl. She's just as bad as I am. She'll hit me ear this morning. B. G.'s awful 'scouraged 'bout Genevieve. He said so. I don't know what he's going to do 'bout Genevieve. I can't bite her ear back 'cause she's got on her tam."

She pushed Genevieve forward as the nurse, and thus impressively introduced, that young person, a lovely, fair curled, golden-haired thing of it, in a blue "bunny" outfit, smiled up at Valerie with such grateful sweetness that the girl herself kissed her. With a ruthless hand the mistress of ceremonies dragged forth her second exhibit. Genevieve, a youngster appropriately clad for an outdoor expedition, with snapping blue-gray eyes and a pugnacious expression. A fur coat, which he hastily snatched off, had covered his red hair. He was carrying a pair of snow shoes, and now shifted these to his left hand that he might be right to the visitor. His manner suggested courts and seventeenth century drawing rooms.

"How do you do?" he asked, gently, as he bowed low. "I hope you are very comfortable here."

Miss Knight assured him that she was comfortable, and studied him with interest. He was amazingly unlike his twin sister, and quite as smartingly like his father. He was Bruce Gordon the fifth, future master of Pentlands, and he seemed fully to realize his responsibilities. Betty remembered the innocent bystanders.

"Genevieve's new governess doesn't like Genevieve very well," she went on pleadingly. "She told mammy she didn't like her. I heard her. But I mustn't say so," she added before Valerie or the horrified nurse could cause that isn't polite and I'm five—"

Valerie, who had smilingly greeted both the French women when she stepped into the procession, now mercifully said a few words to them in their own language. As she spoke she was impressed by the look on the pretty face of Mademoiselle Charpentier, the young governess who had entered upon her new duties only the night before. It was thoughtful and anxious, as might well be the expression of a lady who had been sent to the care of a young child, and who was endeavoring to do the best for it. She had not worn that look when she joined them in the automobile last night, when she had been so easily won over by the French woman's soft, persuasive words. She had been, when unexpectedly she heard her lover, tongue perfectly spoken in a foreign land. The remarks exchanged were of the nature of the weather and the coming walk, but both parties seemed surprised and flattered by the encounter and flattered by the attention. Valerie had a suspicion that they were full of some hidden meaning, but she would not touch on the child's presence.

Good Taste in Dress

A Series of Thrice-Weekly Articles by Julia Hoyt (Mrs. Lydig Hoyt)

No. 16.—AMERICAN WOMEN CAN HAVE A STYLE OF THEIR OWN—IF

In my last article I said I would tell you a few of my theories on how the American woman should go about emancipating herself from the edict of the Parisian with regard to dress. I said that I was sure that if we only study her own ideas, we will realize a very satisfactory profit on the crop. Almost all of them are planning to plant even larger acreages next year, it is understood.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Lubricator. That obstinate bureau drawer can be made to open easily and without noise by rubbing it with common soap.

Another Use for Fuller's Earth. Grease stains on marble can be easily removed by covering the spot with a paste of Fuller's earth and water and allowing it to remain for two days.

Protect Your Table. Place a piece of waxed paper under the centerpiece upon which your vase of flowers is to be placed. Some of the dampest causes the linen to stick to the table and ruins the finish.

Practical Hints. Hot water dampens clothes for more evenly than cold. Well brushed and spotless clothes are not apt to attract moths. Paraffin taken from the top of jelly or jam can be washed and used many times.

Oil of pennyroyal sprinkled in the places infested with ants will soon frighten them away.

Loves Home So Well Refuses Flat Offer Of Million for Land

Arkansas City, Ark., November 27.—The love for his home place was discovered by Robert Johnson, owner of Discovery Well, northeast of here, as the reason why Tuesday he refused a flat offer of a million dollars for his land.

"It's been the home place for years," said Johnson. "I don't need the money."

Johnson is receiving royalties from 1,000 barrels of oil a day.

VOTER REGISTRATION IS ASKED IN CHATHAM

Savannah, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Two important recommendations were made in the Chatham county grand jury presentment published today. One was that the Veazey law be repealed; this came as endorsed by the body in recommendation of the committee on institutions; the other was that the registration law be changed for Chatham county to nonin person registration for two years, thus doing away with the so-called permanent registration for this county.

REPORTS OF PLAGUE ON CANARIES DENIED

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, November 27.—The report published abroad that the bubonic plague had broken out here is untrue. The foreign consuls have issued clean bills of health.

A dispatch from Gibraltar last Friday said the Official Gazette there published a notice declaring Las Palmas and the Canary Islands "infected places" and under quarantine owing to an outbreak of pneumonic plague.

ROME CURB SALES BRING PROSPERITY

Constitution Bureau.

F. J. Bryson, Mgr., Phone 164.

Rome, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Five hundred and seventy-eight farmers of Floyd and adjoining counties have had their incomes increased by amounts ranging up to $1,400 by the Rome curb market during the past six months. Rome Kiwanians were told at their regular weekly luncheon today by Miss Corbelle Mae Dean, market mistress, who points out that the local market has grown to where it must have larger quarters and should have a shelter to protect both the vendors and the buyers.

For sixty miles around Rome farmers are coming here to sell their produce. Miss Dean pointed out—produce which up to now has not found any sort of dependable market in all this section of Georgia. As a consequence, local bankers and merchants say, scores of farmers have not only financed the raising of this year's crop without going into debt, but many of them have bought high-grade seed, calcium arsenate and fertilizers, all from money obtained for garden produce at the local curb market.

Rome housewives have bought vegetables of better grade and have bought them at lower prices than for many years past. Miss Dean showed, the farmers being obtained through the curb market widespread publicity which has attracted to Rome the attention of almost every section of the southeast.

Following her talk, the public improvement committee of the Kiwanis club was instructed to look into the matter of securing better quarters and erecting a suitable shelter for the market.

To Buy Fire Truck.

Rome, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Rome is to buy another fire truck, but this will be only after bids have been submitted by all manufacturers of fire apparatus who care to bid, the city commissioners have decided. The truck must be bought by next fall, the commissioners' point out, if Rome is to retain its present insurance rate.

The commissioners, at their meeting last night, also decided to connect the ends of water mains on Sixth and Eleventh streets with a main along East Third street, the improvement being needed because of the recent increase in the size of the Rome Hosiery mill, which is not afforded adequate fire protection by the existing mains.

Seeks Band Leader.

Rome, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Ensign Horgan, of the local Salvation Army corps, who has been in the east for the past ten days seeking a leader for Rome "Newspaper band," is expected to return to Rome tomorrow. In his announcement the ensign did not say whether or not he had secured the band leader, but he did say on leaving that he would not return until he had located the band instructor.

Harvest Potatoes.

Rome, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Floyd county's first crop of Irish potatoes planted in commercial quantities is now being harvested by some 35 farmers. Due to drought which lasted over the whole of the late summer, the yield is not as good as was expected, but at present prices the farmers believe they will realize a very satisfactory profit on the crop. Almost all of them are planning to plant even larger acreages next year, it is understood.

C. C. Directors Meet.

Rome, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Directors of the local chamber of commerce attended to little save routine business at their regular meeting here this afternoon. Distribution of the information gathered in the chamber's recent industrial survey was the most important matter taken up.

Quartet To Sing.

Rome, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—The Morehouse quartet, of Atlanta, said to be one of the most famous negro quartets in the United States, will be one of the main attractions at a Thanksgiving concert to be staged at the city auditorium here Thursday afternoon for the benefit of the Rome High and Industrial school.

Spending Money Described As Medicine For Women

WOMAN DECLARED MOST EXPENSIVE THING IN U. S.

BY HARLAN S. MILLER.

New York, November 27.—Money, money—in itself, it means nothing to the American woman.

With this astonishing discovery, W. L. George, the British novelist who knows more about women than a dozen high school sophomores, has leaped into the esteem of that section of American femininity which is being altruistic this season.

"Your ladies in this country don't love money," said Mr. George, looking vindictively across the Ritz parlor at his attractive wife. "They love only the men who get it for them, and things it buys them."

"In this way, they are very much like Norwegian women, Turkish women, French women and Eskimo women," he went on to explain. "But none of the others can spend money so fast as the American woman."

"I'm surprised!" exclaimed Mrs. George. "Surprised that you would admit anyone spends it faster than I do."

"You are held in check the same way the husband in the story held his wife's extravagance within bounds," returned Mr. George. "I never give my any."

"What does your wife do with all the money she asks you for? a chap asked this husband.

"I don't know," replied the husband. "I never give her any."

To say that Mr. George knows more about women than a dozen sophomores may be an exaggeration. But since publication of a half dozen of his novels in which he revealed some quaint quirks of feminine psychology, which women declared they had thought beyond the range of more man to imagine, it has been conceded widely that W. L. George can see through a woman at 40 paces.

So far as women are concerned, Mr. George is understood to have profited by the mistakes of Casanova, Don Juan, Nat Goodwin and Wesley Barry. He knows everything that Solomon knew, yet he can take 'em or leave 'em alone. He knows, for example, why virtue hasn't been so popular since the war.

"It's because the cartoonists always represent virtue as wearing the wrong hat," he vouchsafed.

"Money represents canned success to you," he said. "If the American endures money at all, it is only because it represents potted power to him. And to continue alliteratively in the pursuit of truth, your ladies tolerate money only because they can make it into mink. I never saw so many fur coats in my life. Every woman has one or is shopping for one."

"You know," he said, "when an American woman feels badly, she goes and spends and spends, until she feels good again. In fact, the most expensive thing the American man can buy is the American woman."

COOLIDGE DECLINES ALL GIFT TURKEYS

Washington, November 27.—All offers of a gift turkey for the white house Thanksgiving table have been declined with thanks. President and Mrs. Coolidge will buy their own.

For many years it has been the custom of admirers of the nation's chief executive to compete for the honor of providing the bird for his Thanksgiving dinner. Sometimes enough turkeys have been received at the white house to load down the tables of the whole staff of employees. But Mr. Coolidge does not regard the practice as one that should be encouraged.

Except for attendance at religious services, the president and his wife expect to spend Thanksgiving day quietly at home. Their two sons, John in Pennsylvania, will not be home. Mr. Coolidge does not regard the practice as one that should be encouraged.

Mrs. Susan Cook Dies.

Rome, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Mrs. Susan A. Cook, 75, for many years a resident of Rome, died at a home for the aged, Mrs. Sam Holcomb, in South Rome last night. Besides her daughter, she is survived by two sons, H. L. Collins, of Lawrence, Ga., and J. C. Collins, of Birmingham. The funeral will take place at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at Pleasant church. Interment will be in the churchyard.

PINCHOT WILL CALL NEW COAL MEETING

Harrisburg, Pa., November 27.—Governor Pinchot today made plans to convene next month the conference of representatives of anthracite consuming states which adjourned here last night without action upon plans submitted for regulation of the hard coal industry.

Proposals considered by the conference differed widely in methods suggested for attaining the purposes for which the conference was called—lower prices for hard coal—and the three governors present, Pinchot, of Pennsylvania; Silzer, of New Jersey, and Freus, of Minnesota, failed to agree on any one. Others present, delegates representing the governors of nine hard coal consuming states, were divided in their opinions.

Governor Pinchot's plan, calling for a compact of states to establish a joint commission for regulation of the anthracite industry, met with opposition from the other governors and delegates. They called upon Pennsylvania to take the first steps by repeal of its state tax on anthracite and by other remedial legislation.

Governor Silzer, who led the opposition to the Pinchot plan, submitted resolutions to place the conference on record as favoring legislation by Pennsylvania for repeal of the tax laws, "which limit the production of coal," and for enactment of laws fixing standards and creating a state commission.

He proposed the state declare the industry a public business—the suggestion of Governor Freus—and that a special session of the Pennsylvania legislature be called to consider the proposals. He also submitted resolutions dealing with proposed congressional action.

Governor Pinchot defended his plan and criticized the New Jersey governor's attitude. The resolutions were laid aside when a motion to adjourn the meeting subject to Governor Pinchot's call was passed. The motion provided that the complete record of all the plans be sent to the various governors in order that they may reach a decision before the next meeting. This the governor plans to call about December 15.

FIGHT OF WALTON ON KLAN INDORSED BY MINE WORKERS

Fort Smith, Ark., November 27.—A resolution endorsing former Governor J. C. Walton's fight against the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma was adopted by the constitutional convention of District 21, United Mine Workers of America, in session here late today. There was but one dissenting vote.

DUANE IS SUSPENDED BY BOXING COMMISSION

New York, November 27.—Carl Duane, one of the new crop of first-rank bantamweight fighters, was struck a glancing blow by the boxing commission's cancellation stamp Tuesday and disabled for 60 days. Duane was six pounds over the bantamweight limit for a fight last week with Frankie Jerome and it is said that he failed to train. As punishment he was declared ineligible for two months and ruled out of the bantam class forever. Hereafter he will be a featherweight.

Beauty Chats

SHAPELY NAILS.

There is no reason why any woman should have ugly nails, for beautiful nails are only those which show they are well cared for. The shape does not matter so much. The essentials are a smooth cuticle, a moderately high polish, and no discoloration or dirt. Learn to be your own manicurist. It is very easy and saves you any amount of time and money.

If you know nothing about it, follow these simple directions: With a long, fine file shape the ends of the nails to moderately pointed oval. Hold the finger tips for five or ten minutes in a bowl of warm, soapy water. This softens the cuticle, the dead skin which has grown over the nail can be scraped off then quite easily either with the pointed blade of the file or a cuticle knife. The ugly, rough edge of the cuticle can then be cut with special scissors, and the dead skin at each side of the nail clipped off.

The nails should be cleaned underneath and the edges filed smooth with an emery board. Oil or cold cream should be rubbed into the nail and around it and allowed to stay on some minutes. It should be washed off then and the cuticle pushed back with an orangewood stick.

There are hundreds of nail polishes to choose from, but personally I think a rose-tinted paste is best. This gives the nails just that faint pink which is always becoming, and does not dry the cuticle at the edges as a powder does. The paste should be wiped off and the nails given a final polish with a dry buffer. Be sure to buy as good manicure scissors as you can afford. Cheap ones do not do their work properly. Good ones will be a satisfaction for years. The long, flexible file should be good quality, also.

WEST WILL JOIN TARIFF CONGRESS

Chattanooga, Tenn., November 27. (Special.)—The Southern Tariff Congress which will convene here December 7 assumed national proportions today with an announcement from the Western Tariff association, with headquarters at Salt Lake City, and the Midwest Tariff association, now in process of formation, that these two organizations would actively participate in the congress here. Decision of these two organizations to cooperate with the southern body united three principal raw material producing sections of the nation into an organized unit which is expected to prove a powerful combination of industrial strength in securing and maintaining tariff rates suited to the needs of productive industry.

These coordinated interests will fight to retain the vegetable oil schedule of present tariff laws. Telegrams received at headquarters of the Southern congress today said that W. F. McClure, head of the recently organized Western Tariff association, and W. S. Weston, of Omaha, chairman of the Midwest Tariff association, now forming, would be in Chattanooga, December 7, to attend the tariff congress to aid in the formation of a program of action that will unite and cement producing interests of the nation.

The three tariff organizations represent more than 35 producing states of the nation. Bankers of the south are conscious of the fact that reopening of the vegetable oil schedule by tariff commission is a serious menace to farming interests of the south and have joined in aid of the fight. The congress is making for southern producers by sending checks to congress headquarters to aid the campaign against the tariff reduction. L. C. Nottingham, of the First National Bank of Chattanooga, is treasurer for the congress. Banking associations all over the south will be represented at the Chattanooga meeting.

In rallying to the support of the attacked producers, the banking interests, according to congress officials, have shown they appreciate that the welfare of the south is linked with the prosperity of southern farmers. It is pointed out that concerted effort is being made in Washington by powerful organized, selfish commercial interests that are purchasers of the south's raw products to destroy present schedules of principal products of the south. The meeting is to plan a defense and solicit sympathy and sentiment of southern industry.

The bankers, according to a letter from Robert E. Wait, of Little Rock, president of the Arkansas Bankers' association, is more capable of quickly grasping the significance of sudden deflation in prices and to visualize panic that would follow if the hopes and aspirations of powerful interests antagonistic to the farmers succeed in carrying out their program. Mr. Wait has advised the congress officials that he has appointed a strong delegation of Arkansas bankers to attend the meeting.

Anti-Jewish Currency. Stolt, Pomerania, November 27.—Anti-Jewish feeling has been manifested in a novel form by the appearance of the new law on emergency paper money, based on rye values, issued by the Agrarian union, on which are printed the words "Not valid in Jewish hands." Attempts are being made to declare such a restriction illegal.

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE.

Following the Lead of Paris, American Women Don the Simply Tailored Cloth Suit.

In the vocabularies of some word-wise persons "boyish" along with "girlish" has become taboo. And there are women who fairly shudder when the eager saleswoman, who is showing a frock or suit or hat, gushes out with: "I am sure you will like this. It is so 'girlish'."

Doubtless there are French women who have become as weary of the word "femme" as we are of the word "feminine," used to describe styles for young women—any women who hope to look young by dressing like their daughters—of a sort suggestive of and cleverly adapted from the clothes of young boys.

If you are one of the objects of these words pray forgive us then while we say that there is nothing much smarter, if you can wear it, than the boyish tailored suit of gray—such a suit as is shown in the sketch. In beige it is quite as smart, and in France is sometimes made of wool velours. The low closing with three buttons and the impertinent little pockets give it decided smartness. The sleeves are close-fitting and cuffless, and the notched collar is very flat and well tailored. Always in these smart little suits the closing is held by three buttons and buttonholes placed fairly low. Some cut very straight, but many of the tailored suits in Paris are cut with a slight curving in at the waist—at a rather low-placed waistline, to be sure.

Whatever the blouse or the collar thereof, there is always seemingly a scarf of some sort, though sometimes this is worn pendant from the crooked arm rather than draped around the throat.

BODY OF DAUGHTER OF JUDGE IS FOUND FLOATING IN RIVER

Louisville, Ky., November 27.—The body of Miss Marguerite Dearth, daughter of Circuit Judge Clarence Dearth, of Muncie, Ind., was found floating in the Ohio river here today. Identification was established by a wrist watch.

The body was discovered by the captain of a passing river steamship near the shore a few blocks from the Baltimore & Ohio railroad bridge. Coast guardsmen rescued it.

The young woman, about 22 years of age, wore bobbed hair and was dressed in expensive clothing. She apparently had been in the water for about three weeks. Across the forehead was a wound which indicated a fractured skull.

Serial numbers in a gold wrist watch furnished the clue which led to identification.

PLAN PARTY TONIGHT FOR "Y" BOYS' CLUB

Special entertainment for members of the Y. M. C. A. Boys' club tonight will include snappy short talks, special music, cakes, candy and chocolate. "Red" Barron, former star Tech football player, will be the principal speaker. The meeting will be held in the boys' clubroom at central Y. M. C. A. and the entertainment is sponsored by a group of young people of Payne Memorial church, Miss Sara Shedd, in charge.

A girls' quartet composed of Misses Eleanor Sims, Evelyn Sims, Dorothy Parsons and Mary Ruth Beharleschen, will be heard in a group of favorite quartet selections, and George Browner, cornetist; Edwin Simmel, banjoist, and Morris Leonard, violinist, will be on the program.

Harry L. Schlesinger will furnish cakes, and the Norris Candy company will donate chocolates. A committee from Nellie Dodd Methodist church will serve refreshments.

W. J. Humphreys Named To Succeed Father in Congress

Greenville, Miss., November 27.—Virtually complete unofficial returns from eight of the eleven counties in the third district indicate the election of W. J. Humphreys, of Greenville, to succeed his father, the late Representative Benjamin Grubb Humphreys, in the special congressional election held today. At 10 o'clock tonight Humphreys was leading J. C. Roberts, of Cleveland, by nearly 1,000 votes. The vote: Humphreys, 5,283; Roberts, 4,362.

CREW OF JAPANESE FREIGHTER RESCUED

Cordova, Alaska, November 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Forty-two crew members of the ill-fated Japanese freighter Shinkoku Maru, which was being pounded to pieces today by high waves on the northern shore of Montague island, Prince William Sound, arrived here at 7 o'clock tonight on the tug Humacousa.

Purser Suzuki, who headed the party, declared that Captain Salter, his two small sons, and four other members of the crew would remain on the ship until a salvage boat arrived.

Jinx Continues To Haunt Trail Of King Alfonso

Naples, November 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The "jinx" which has been with King Alfonso and Queen Victoria since their arrival in Italy continued today to hover about them. The Spanish sovereigns accompanied by the Duke of Aosta, sailed Mount Vesuvius today, but arriving at the summit a heavy mist and a driving rain settled down, shutting out a view of the crater and the gorgeous vista of which has been said "see Naples, and then die."

The royal party, however, particularly the king, maintained its usual good humor. They descended the mountain and visited Pompeii, minutely inspecting the ruins there and propounding many questions to the guides.

Alfonso's "jinx" began its attendance upon the royal party when they arrived in Italian waters. Its first manifestation was when a sailor was washed overboard from the battleship Jaime. Then, arriving in Rome the automobile of the Spanish royal couple struck a building. Afterwards the lights at the state banquet in the Quirinal were extinguished by a short circuit. Then violent hail storms prevented the holding of several large outdoor functions. At army maneuvers held in honor of the visiting monarchs several soldiers were wounded by a premature explosion.

FORD ROAD OFFICIAL WILLING TO APPEAR

Washington, November 27.—E. G. Leibold, vice president of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, Henry Ford's railroad, notified the interstate commerce commission today that he was willing to appear before it next Tuesday to present his company's views on railroad consolidation. A hearing was set for that day.

The United States marshal at Detroit had returned to the commission a subpoena for Mr. Leibold marked "not found."

The Ironton official himself informed by the commission.

COUNCIL TO ATTEND RENFROE'S FUNERAL

Funeral services for James N. Renfro, former councilman, whose death occurred Monday, will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the parlors of Harry G. Poole. Dr. Charles W. Daniel will officiate.

Mayor Sims and members of city council will attend the funeral in a body. A formal request that councilmen and aldermen thus honor their former colleague was issued Tuesday by the mayor.

The following have been asked to serve as pall bearers: John Jentzen, Albert Thompson, Frank H. Reynolds, R. C. Congdon, N. M. Daniel, W. B. Cody, James L. Key, Walter Sims, W. C. Taylor, J. Walter Mason, R. G. Ray, and J. B. Richardson.

formed the commission, however, that he had not known of its desire to procure his attendance, and had given the notification immediately upon reading newspaper accounts of the search instituted for him.

The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton is the only road in the country which has failed to put up evidence asked for by the commission.

MONEY CAN'T BUY HER!

But She's Yours Free of Charge

Santa Claus Time is rapidly approaching, and hundreds of little girls are dreaming of dolls. "Betty Ann," the finest doll made by an American maker, will gladden their hearts this Christmas.

The Constitution has 500 of these gorgeous "Betty Ann" dolls, each the triumph of the toy industry and the pride of a well-known maker. Their retail value would exceed $10, but any person who secures eight new subscriptions of 20 weeks each to The Daily and Sunday Constitution will be given a "Betty Ann" absolutely free.

Any NEW subscription in Atlanta and its suburbs and in any town or city where The Constitution has an established carrier service will count. (On rural routes and small towns without regular carrier service The Constitution has a special doll offer, particulars of which will be supplied upon request.) By a NEW subscription is meant a subscription to a person who has not been a regular subscriber of The Constitution for the past 30 days. There is no money collection on your part.

Two little Atlanta girls have won "Betty Ann" dolls in one day's time, and a little Atlanta boy won another in two days. "It's easy—anybody can do it," they declared.

Don't wait. Act Now. Fill in the Entry Blank Now, and mail or bring it to The Constitution.

Then get busy, and "Betty Ann," the doll supreme, who walks, talks and sleeps, will gladden your home during the Christmas season.

THE WAY OUT BY EMERSON HOUGH

Next Week: "Gold Out of Celebes."
By Capt. A. E. Dingle.

The eyes of David Joslin, roaming around the little apartment, spied Polly's violin resting upon the dresser top.

"You play the violin, ma'am," said he, "You're the first woman I ever knew in all my life who could. I reckon you studied?"

"Years," she said simply. "It cost me a lot of money—and at that time you don't like the best things I do. You can play?"—eagerly.

"Only a few of the mounting tunes—ballets such as our folks taught us years ago."

"Ballets? You mean the folk songs?"

"Maybe. I could play 'Barbara Allen.' They told me it was Scotch."

"The Scotch have pretty melodies sometimes," said Polly Pendleton judiciously. Then she smiled frankly. "You see, I'm half Irish myself—and half French."

"What?" David Joslin sat up suddenly and looked at her straight.

"My own granny was half Irish and half French. There wasn't nary a woman in all the mountains like her. That maybe accounts for a heap of things. My granny loves to sing and dance. She's over ninety year old."

The unweighed flattery of his tone was a thing to be valued. She extended to him the instrument and bowed.

"Play for me," said she. "Play 'Barbara Allen.' Do something for me this morning."

So David Joslin, student of Calvin Cumberland mountain, self-selected minister—and as he now fully felt, lost soul—thus cast away in a buffet list of upper Manhattan, played the old ballad of "Barbara Allen" to one of the gayest young persons at that time in the great city. He played it in minors, bowing very badly, missing the key sometimes a half note or so, slurring here, over-accentuating there, phrasing after his own quaint mountain fashion, but none the less producing something which might have been called a melody. Polly's foot began to beat upon the floor, her fingers upon the arm of the chair.

"Man!" said she, after he had finished. "If I could take you into vaudeville, I'd break this country! That's class."

"It's not much," said he, misunderstanding. "I never had no lessons. I've never been to school in all my life, an' I never seen a music book in all my life—I reckon that's music ye got over that?" He nodded toward the sheets which he saw standing in their rack.

"You're an odd chap," said she, with a strange softness in her tone. "I've never seen a man like you—never in all my life. You're a strange chap. What brought you here?"

"I come out, ma'am, to build a college for my people. I come out to get my education. I come up here with Mr. Haddon, just to talk to a few friends of his'n about timber an' oil, ye know."

"Jimmy Haddon, eh?" Polly's lips set rather tight together. "Well, he's a good business man. You have to hand him that. But say—keep an eye on him, that's all. Listen here, son—you're what we call 'easy' in this city. You don't know no good enough to straighten—you're too good for it."

"What do you mean?" said he. "Too good? I'm the wustest of sinners. But if I accepted sin—say, if I made a lot of money—several hundred dollars a month—an' had it clear—would ye tell me to throw that over an' go back home?"

The dark eyes of Polly Pendleton looked straight into his face.

"There's a lot of things a girl can understand without explaining very much," said she, simply. She saw the rising somber flame in this man's eyes that met her own so straight. And then, suddenly, he broke out all restraints gone.

"Last night ye touched me—it was in a joke—ye was makin' me foolish. I don't want you to talk that way. Ye don't know how foolish ye made me then. Ye took away my brains. Ye got my soul, and all that's in me," flashed Polly, swift tears in her eyes. "No, no—don't—don't! It wasn't right for me to make fun of you—I ought to have known you were different. I came home last night, and I talked about you to my partner. Somehow, I don't know why you seem like a preacher to me. Besides, once in a while a woman sees something in a real man that gets close to her."

She rose now and spread out her arms, a very beautiful vision of young womanhood, in spite of her eager vitality and her over-flowing joy in life.

"Why, listen," said she, "I know about men. You needn't make any map to explain anything more to me. You'd be foolish, you'd be crazy and I'll not have it. I'm not good enough for you. You mustn't stay here. You mustn't be foolish over a girl like me—I'm not worth it. I'm—I'm not good!" She slurred the last two words hurriedly together. "Get on out of here before you're spoiled."

Her voice trembled. "The city will get you some time. It's got me. It's got my partner. We're gone. Lost souls. You? Oh, don't, don't! You haven't got the gait that we have. Listen to me now—I think enough of a good, square chap not to want to see him go the wrong way. Can't you see that a dancing girl can be a good pal after all? I'm trying to help you."

"Easy!" said he, his voice trembling in his own self-scorn. "I had nothing! Only what ye taken away from me."

"Take some of this, won't you?" said Polly Pendleton, her double hands full of bills which she held out to him, her dark eyes shining. "Here, take it. Do something with it. You wouldn't call that tainted money, would you?... It isn't yet. Look!"

But he put his hands. "No," said he. "My God! No! From ye?"

He hurt her because she wholly mistook his real meaning. Her face fell, but she shook her head bravely, like a fighter taking a blow in the ring.

"Ye never cared," he added. "Ye don't feel—ye don't care." The low notes of his voice rumbled through the little room.

An odd feeling of helplessness seized her all at once. "It's a good thing for you, I don't," said she at length. "Don't I know men are fools enough without making another fool to add to the list? If I cared—good God, if I cared! Why, I don't dare care for anybody. Now, don't you think you'd better be going?"

She had his hat in her hand, and was replacing the violin and bow. He rose and stood before her, his hands clenched tight, his eyes still burning, his voice vibrant.

"Ma'am," said he, "I never seen ye but once. Maybe I never will again. But I'll always remember what ye said to me."

"What do you mean?"

"I was hopin' ye'd say it would be a good piece of business for me to stay here this winter for a while. I was hopin' I could see ye an' hear ye play some time, now an' then. I was hopin'—I was hopin' what I oughtn't to hope. Ma'am I never seen no women like ye in all my life. I reckon I never will again."

"Well," said Polly Pendleton, at length having herself in hand, "you've got none the best of me at that—I've seen a considerable many fools in my time, but you're the human limit, son."

"And yet," she added—still laughing kindly, and all the half-virginal softness of her original nature coming into the wistfulness of her tone—"I'm glad ye came! I was startin' out to be a preacher myself. I was startin' out to do something in the world to help the rest of them. But if ye hadn't said what ye said just now to me, I'd be willin' to throw it all away for jest—for jest—"

How, he knew not, nor she, he caught her arms, soft and white, in the grip of his great hands, and stood looking down at her fiercely, she as helpless as a child in his grasp.

"It's not right!" said she. "I'm alone here—Oh, are you any kind of a man after all?"

At this he dropped her arms, his own falling lax.

"Why, of course I'm a man," said he quietly. "Of course, I am. I'm all man. I'm a lost man, a damned one."

"Go!" she whispered to him hoarsely. "I'm not worth that. Go on away, and leave me something decent to remember."

Within half an hour after Joslin had left, Polly Pendleton, unfinished cigarette in hand, turned in her cushioned armchair as she heard the strident call of the telephone.

"Yes?" she said. "Who is it, please?"

"You, Jimmy?"

"No, don't come up. I'm awfully busy today. . . . I've got to work."

"Who—the wild man? Keep him? Ask him to stay here this winter? I should say not! I told him to get out of town!"

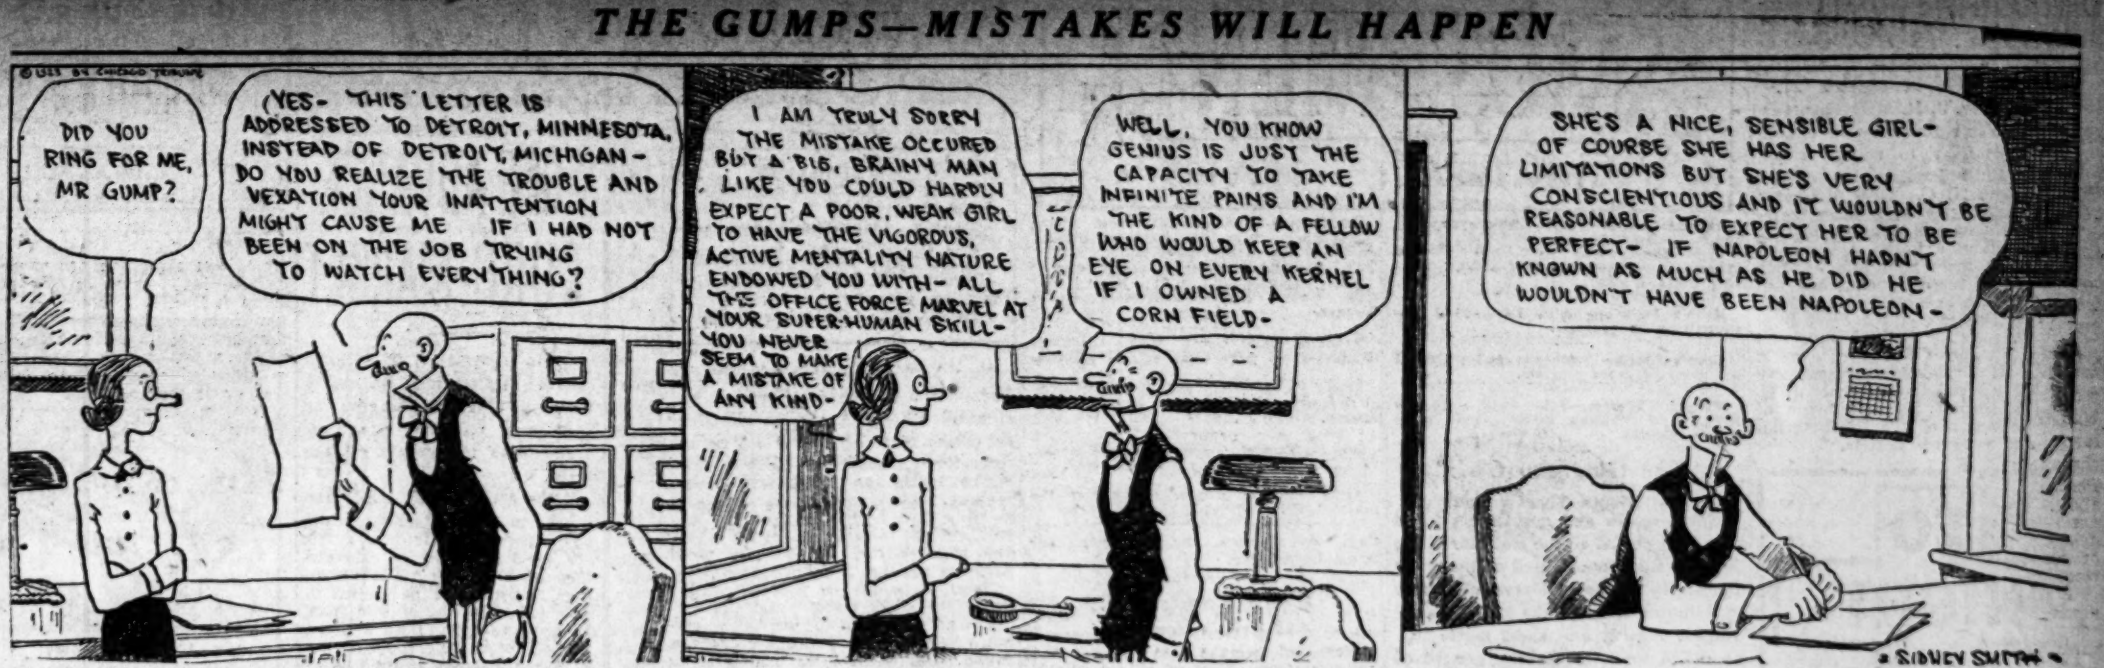

At this he dropped her arms, his own falling lax.

"Oh, come now, Jimmy," she went on in rejoinder to what she evidently heard. "There's no use talking that way. . . . Oh, you're sore? Well, I can't help it. I wouldn't have any different even if you had told me what you wanted. . . . You don't care if I never come back? Oh, very well—same to you, and many of 'em!"

So long, Jimmy, and when you get decent come up. I may let you in, and then again maybe not."

CHAPTER VII

The main floor of the mill building at the Forks afforded a room perhaps fifty feet in one dimension, low ceiled and dark. The reticent postmaster and the blacksmith had provided a few flickering lamps. And finally, thither, soon after twilight of the appointed day, the mountaineers turned, group by group, man after man, silently, two score Joslins and as many or more of the Ganns, all of them too proud to stay away even though a stern mystery lay ahead. Every man of them was armed, every one of them ready for what might come. The old mill building, the only meeting place tacitly held neutral and the only practical town hall available, bade fair to see red history this night. And there was history done that very night. They had all gathered, the men of both clans, sitting in the dark interior. For half an hour they all sat, silent and alert, squinting here or there on their heels, slouching on one of the men of the other side. The Ganns were on the left-hand side, the Joslins on the right, as one entered the door. No one seemed to know what was expected. There still was mystery as to what had brought them here. Perhaps the postmaster, and the blacksmith knew. If so, they would tell in time. That word had been passed to the Ganns that the Joslins would be here, and to the Joslins that the Ganns would come, was the only sure thing; and it was quite enough.

The blacksmith and the postmaster passed here and there, setting alight their lamps. No man poked on either side. Both factions sat looking across the little white floored lane of No. Man's Land which lay between them. A quick motion, a shout, the sound of a shot, would have been fatal to half the men present here; but if any one of them felt agitation, it was not manifest by any word or sign, by any paling of the face or trembling of the hand. Unguarded, calm, they sat, each with his eye on his own selected man, ready for what might happen.

What did happen was this: The door darkened against the pale starlight. There stepped slowly into the interior, where the shadows lay heavy upon the floor, the figure of a tall man.

It was a man whom they all knew. As he came into the circle lighted by the lamps a sort of sigh went up, audible in its united volume.

It was David Joslin!

Now they knew why they were to come here. The leader of the Joslins had come back! That meant trouble. He had not died—everybody knew that—everybody had heard from down the river that he had run out and left the country. But now he had got courage to come back!

Yes, it meant trouble. The men on both sides eased off their pistols, loosened their holsters, under pretense of settling their coat tails or fumbling for toba co.

But David Joslin raised his hand at once. "Wait!" said he. So, still silent, still motionless, they sat and looked at him, many in contempt, as many in judgment suspended.

He seemed thinner even than when he had left. His face bore a certain scholarly whiteness visible even under the burning of the sun—Joslin did not tell them so, but the truth was he had walked more than half the way from Brandon college—where for two years he had slaved at learning as no man in all the history of that school had been thought able to slave. Penitent at his hopeless start, he still was penitent after his overleaping of all rules and schedules and curricula. He had walked to this, his great trial. In some way he had been fed. In his own conviction that had been by direct act of God.

Better clad than when he had left, in a dark suit of clothing which did not fit him ill, with shoes at least not badly broken, and with certain touches of refinements of the civilization outside, none the less he remained the mountain man they had known so well. But something in his voice seemed different. His diction had altered perceptibly, if not consistently. He stood before them now at ease, a leader, a speaker, even an orator of some sort, at least in the possession of that gift of oratory which in simple terms commands the attention of an audience.

"Wait!" said David Joslin. "Don't make any more. I know why you're here as well as you do, maybe a good deal better. I sent word in for you all to come. I've asked you to come here myself—I arranged this meeting with some of my friends here at the Forks. I wanted every moonshiner and feudist in the mountains to be right here tonight, where I could look him in the eye and he could look me in the eye, and we could have it out together."

"No! I don't mean to have it out in the old way. I want to tell you those times are past. I see you sitting there. Absalom Gann—I know you're not a scared of me, and I'm not a scared of you. You're fighting men, every one of you. And you've come here to fight each other once more—to kill each other, just like you and I and our fathers have been doing here in these mountains farther back than any of us can remember. You don't know why you do that, but you think you ought to do it. It's a sort of religion with us, just to kill each other. We don't know no better—we never have."

Howard Theater—All week, Thomas Meighan in "Woman Proof" and other screen features.
"The Gingham Girl."
(At the Atlanta Theater Tonight.)
Theaters and magazine readers who kept posted on the real life of the New York season, as well as the many thousands of music lovers who keep well informed as to the latest phonographic records and sheet music will not doubt welcome the engagement of the acknowledged musical hit of last season on Broadway, "The Gingham Girl," which opens at the Atlanta theater tonight and continues for the balance of the week, with matinees tomorrow (Thanksgiving) and Saturday.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At Keith's Forsyth.)
Skeptical Atlanta has been aroused the first three days of this week by the demonstration of the psychic influence of thought transmission that is being given by George Lovett at the headlining feature of the Keith vaudeville at the Forsyth theater.
In addition to this performance, which justly could be called marvelous, there is the comedy of Rene and Florence in "Sparkling Bits of Broadway," Hazel Cox, "The Likable Little Lady," Johnny and Mabel Ziegfeld's Follies and "Ideas in Dance," as presented by Joe Fitch and Fred Ziegfeld, who will be followed by the installation of Aesop's Fables complete to the bill.

Loew Vaudeville.
(At Loew's Grand.)
"Stepping shoes, swift-moving shoes, twinkling shoes, dancing shoes, all of these the dancing shoes at Loew's Grand this week, an act which admirably tops an unusually excellent bill of vaudeville. The other numbers run this particular number a close second and any one might just as well be selected for headlining honors.
In Dancing Shoes there are five young men and a pretty woman. All dance with amazing grace and the young woman sings as well. The scenic effects are fine and the numbers selected well planned.
Harrie and Willie Lander, a couple of good men gone wrong, have a riotous act that gives Willie every opportunity to play a character familiar to us all.
Kane, Morey and Moore open the bill with amazing athletic eccentricities in which skill is combined with fun for 15 minutes.
Picture is "The Spider and the Rose," featuring Alice Lake.

"Woman Proof."
(At the Howard.)
Thomas Meighan, in "Woman Proof," a Paramount picture, is the Howard this week, presenting a capacity house. George Ade is one of America's foremost humorists and his stories have inspired a few authors to imitate him. Thomas Meighan has played in many of Ade's stories, but none of them has been as pleasing as "Woman Proof." Tia Lee is seen as the girl who proves to the world that no man is "Woman Proof," regardless how busy he is with other matters. The supporting cast features Louise Dresser and Robert Agnew.
"Favorites of Yesterday" is the overture, featuring "The Pink Lady." Felix the cat in "Felix Strikes It Rich," is the comedy.

"The Covered Wagon."
(Coming to the Atlanta Theater.)
The new Paramount picture, "The Covered Wagon," which has already won the greatest success of many seasons in New York, is coming to Atlanta, comes to the Atlanta theater next Monday night, and will be shown thereafter twice daily, at 2:30 and 8:30. The picture is a stirring dramatic incident of the Emerson Hough narrative; the thrilling beauty of the scenes, and the exciting episodes of the picture, the Indian attack and the perilous fording of the treacherous Platte river by the wagon train, the picture carries a message of high picture realism and the best of every beholder. No one can see "The Covered Wagon" without gaining a new understanding of the courage and idealism of those pioneers who created the civilization of the west, nor can anyone escape a feeling of pride in the men and women who were the forebears of the American of today. Seats go on sale Friday morning. Mail orders may be sent in now.

"The Fighting Blade."
(At the Metropolitan.)

COL. SPRINGS' MILLS NOT IN CORPORATION

Charlotte, N. C., November 27.—Colonel LeRoy Springs, of Lancaster, S. C., today confirms reports that he has withdrawn his properties from the New England Southern mills, an international corporation, formation of which was announced last week. The South Carolina cotton mill magnate declared, "I never sold my mills to any international corporation."

Colonel Springs said that the sale of his mills to the new corporation was canceled last Saturday, but added that it was his understanding that officials of the purchasing firm were to make the formal announcement. The Springs mills involved in the deal, it was stated here, included the Lancaster Cotton mill, Lancaster, S. C.; Fort Mill Manufacturing company, Fort Mill, S. C.; and the Eureka Cotton mills and Springstein mills at Chester, S. C. Colonel Springs, according to the story, was to have received $10,000,000 for his properties.

Announcement of the formation of the New England Southern company, made from Boston last Thursday, named, besides the Springs properties, the Peizer Manufacturing company, Peizer, S. C.; the Troup mill, Troup, Ga.; the Stark mills, Hogsheadville, Ga.; and the plants of the international corporation in Canada, Maine, Massachusetts and Georgia, as being involved in the deal. The announcement also stated that Colonel Springs was to be a director of the new corporation.

S. Francis Loo, a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania, a native of China, believed that the average person spends too much time in sleeping. Mr. Loo either studies or attends class 19 hours each day, and sleeps but five hours for rest and recreation.

TILES For Bath-Room Walls and Floors

Industrial Kings Chorus Girl Tells Called Makers Story of Affair Of Modern Wars With Joe Diamond

New York, November 27.—Two new senators from northwestern states delivered addresses tonight in New York. One, Henrik Shipstead, farmer-Industrial king, attacked the modern "industrial king" as a war-making despot, while the other, Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, asserted that the channels of publicity in America have been commercialized. Both spoke at a dinner given in honor of Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation.

Senator Shipstead said there is a growing suspicion of parliamentary governments all over the world. "Parliamentary governments came to life and power, succeeding military and political despotism," he said, "because they had dispossessed the producers of wealth and rewarded the destroyers of wealth, the war makers. After destroying the old-fashioned political and military despot, we have substituted for these a new despot, the industrial king. This new king also is a war maker, sacrificing the producer and builder in order to reward the destroyer. He will use parliamentary governments as his instrument if he finds them plant tools, but will discard them for dictatorial rule, if necessary to accomplish his purpose."

"Industrial kings sacrifice nations and governments on the poker table of international politics when iron mines, coal mines, oil wells, land and trade are the stakes. This game is destroying the white man's civilization."

Senator Wheeler told his audience that in both the United States and in Europe public opinion is largely controlled by the output of propaganda factories.

Asserting that the day of the great personal editors—the Greeleys, the Danes, the Storrs and the Watermans—is gone, Senator Wheeler declared that with a very few notable exceptions, the magazines and newspapers are "either owned outright by the great industrial and financial interests or controlled through the advertising patronage."

BIG G. O. P. DEFICIT HAS BEEN WIPED OUT

Trenton, N. J., November 27.—The 1920 deficit of the republican national committee, amounting to approximately $1,500,000, has been wiped out, it was announced today by C. H. Huston, of Tennessee, at the republican regional conference.

All funds raised in the future for party purposes may be devoted exclusively to financing the 1924 campaign, Mr. Huston said.

Romance Blasted, Huntsville Girl Returns to Home

Nashville, Tenn., November 27.—Her brief dream of romance blasted, an attractive girl of Huntsville, Ala., was held in custody by Nashville authorities today until stern parents arrived, while a police dragnet has been spread all over four states for Jesse B. Burgess, Huntsville attorney, who, it is alleged, accompanied her to Nashville.

Burgess is wanted on a technical charge of kidnapping, according to information given by Sheriff Lane, of Huntsville. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

In addition to an empty heart, the girl admitted when apprehended at the junction station, that she had pocketed $200. She said she had been registered at a local hotel Sunday under an assumed name. Burgess, it is declared, was also registered there under another name. Their rooms were on different floors. Burgess, according to the hotel clerk, claimed that the girl was his cousin, and that he was on his way to see her.

It is the belief of Huntsville authorities that the trip was made by automobile.

Burgess is married, his wife living in Huntsville at the present time.

First knowledge of the girl's presence here came Monday when she visited a former resident of Huntsville at L. Jones Millinery company, and asked her to check a check cashed on people in Huntsville.

Through the innocent assistance of the millinery company employee, the girl managed to convert a check for $175 into currency and again disappeared.

Through the assistance of a traveling salesman, Burgess was traced and brought the check to light in Huntsville a few hours later, and the girl was held in custody until train for Huntsville at the Union station. She had only a few bills in her possession.

Huntsville, Ala., November 27.—A girl of prominent family connections is back in the family after a trip to Nashville in an automobile which her relatives claimed was taken against her will with Jesse B. Burgess, law student. Burgess has disappeared and police in several states have been notified to arrest and hold him on technical charge of kidnapping. The young woman was quoted as saying she had not seen Burgess since she learned he nearly $200 in Nashville yesterday.

Americans To Lose Taste For Liquor, Scientist Claims

New York, November 27.—With continuance of prohibition in the United States, the next generation, brought up in an environment of interdiction of alcoholic beverages both for their parents and themselves, will have no taste for such beverages, Dr. Paul Kammerer, Viennese scientist who claims to have proof that the characteristics which the present generation is forced to dispense with.

Dr. Kammerer said he would describe to scientists here how he had grown efficient eyes and nose and how he afforded the colorations of salamanders by keeping their parents under special environmental conditions.

He declared he also would explain the rejuvenation methods of Dr. Eugen Steinach of Vienna, with whom he collaborated.

$20,000 in Loot Seized by Seven Seattle Bandits

Seattle, Wash., November 27.—Seven heavily armed bandits held up two messengers of the Bank of California in a house early this evening at the corner of Second and Jackson streets and escaped with a large quantity of registered mail, said to contain $20,000 worth of negotiable bonds.

Only a few details of Whitehead's made ride from New Haven could be learned. Motorists who were passed by the car on the Boston turnpike say it was going at least 60 miles an hour. A policeman on traffic duty at Park and Main streets when the car ran down John Federal says it was going at least 50 miles an hour, then, and passed so close to him that he fell against his "stop-go" sign.

Thug is the name of a religious brotherhood in India, which, in honor of the Goddess Kali, commits murders and lives chiefly from the plunderer got from its victims.

TATUM REVIEWS ATLANTA GROWTH IN CITY BUILDER

"The Record of a Stupendous Year" is the title of a special article by J. Henson Tatum which is featured in the December issue of "The City Builder," an official journal of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, which is just off the press.

The article is a review of the city's accomplishments during the year with reference to building permits, bank clearings, postal receipts, and growth in population, and is illustrated with pictures of the new Rich street and several big office buildings, hotels and apartments constructed during the year.

The leading editorial is a tribute to the leadership of President Alfred C. Newell during 1923. General news of the chamber of commerce and of the city civic bodies is also contained in the magazine.

Strange Mixture Of Men Seeking Rule in Congress

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.
Washington, November 27.—Behind closed doors at the capitol, a heterogeneous group of men are mapping out a campaign which is expected seriously to affect, if not absolutely change, the complexion of legislation in the next congress.

Little heard last year, when they cried out boldly—but as a voice in the wilderness—the ultra-progressives in the house now hold the balance of power, and have attracted eastern aid to the movement which began as a storm in Wisconsin, stirred up by the mild-mannered John Nelson.

When the doors swung open late Monday afternoon after an all-day confab, a strange assemblage came forth.

There was Florella Laguardia, of New York, the son of an immigrant, who has played a prominent part in politics in his home city. Rubbing shoulders with him was John Shaffer, of Wisconsin, a tall, heavy-set young man of 29 years, with a flaming red pompadour and a boyish, eager face, a former railroad engineer, and Florian Lambert, a merchant of Oshkosh, Wis., stout, a product of main street.

Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, scion of a blue-blood New York family, a football star at Harvard, also has indicated that he will stand squarely with the group in liberalizing house rules. He was not present at the meeting Monday, but is expected to join them later.

Fish was thwarted last year in his efforts to get veterans legislation that he desired through the house by his father, Hamilton Fish, was one of the leaders in fighting the "czarism" of Joe Cannon.

Fish is now understood to be drawing up modifications to house rules which the progressives are going to demand.
